HUERTA DECLARATION OF WAR CHECKED; HESITATES OVER OUR LATEST MESSAGE

STUNG BY OUR DEMANDS

But Cabinet Members and Senators Counseled Him to Fire the Salute Required.

WASHINGTON WAS RELIEVED

But Reassuring Message from O'Shaughnessy Is Followed by Doubt and Delay.

NO 'SIMULTANEOUS SALUTE'

Latest Plea of Huerta Rejected and He Again Delays Compliance.

MAYO'S TERMS MUST BE MET

Washington Still Thinks Mexican President Is Bluffing to Win New Prestige at Home.

From sources which THE NEW YORK TIMES has every reason to believe are trustworthy and well informed, it learns that President Huerta's first act in response to President Wilson's demands in relation to the Tampico incident was to prepare and submit to his advisers a declaration of war. The fact that President Huerta had prepared this "important declaration" was published in THE TIMES last Wednesday.

While President Huerta at the decisive moment controls both his Cabinet and the Congress, THE TIMES is informed that in the present instance free expression of opinion was not only allowed but invited. Therefore many of President Huerta's advisers, both in the Cabinet and in the Congress, have not hesitated to counsel a settlement of the Tampico incident without recourse to arms, that is to say, by firing the salute demanded. They have urged at least a suspension of the declaration, and thus far it has not been formally issued, but President Huerta is reported not to have given up his determination to maintain what he conceives to be "the honor and dignity" of Mexico.

WASHINGTON FEELS BETTER.

Hears from O'Shaughnessy That Huerta Is More Favorably Disposed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—At the moment when this Government was confronted with the prospects of another serious snarl with President Huerta over the settlement of the Tampico incident, and when it seemed doubtful whether the reparation required of Mexico could be obtained without resort to force, news of a cheering character came this evening from Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American Chargé at Mexico City. He sent word that the situation was much brighter, and that the differences that had threatened to bring on hostilities were in a fair way of adjustment.

A new spell of optimism was inspired before any inkling reached here tonight of the distinctly unfavorable reception given by the Huerta Government to President Wilson's refusal to agree to a "simultaneous salute" when formal reparation was made by Mexico.

Members of the Administration are not putting too much faith in the assurances contained in Mr. O'Shaughnessy's dispatches, which were not made public. They feel that the danger still exists of a definite break that will compel this Government to take a drastic course. One official said that the communication from Mr. O'Shaughnessy showed that the difficulties of the Tampico incident were being "ironed out," but he felt that the Government should not be too sanguine that the result would be satisfactory.

Prior to the receipt of Mr. O'Shaughnessy's message, President Huerta had again assumed a defiant attitude toward the United States and brought this country and Mexico a step nearer war, or something akin to it. In his latest response to this Government in connection with the efforts to adjust the Tampico incident Gen. Huerta had insisted that the salute to be fired in behalf of the Mexican Government to the United States flag as reparation for the indignity offered the Dolphin's paymaster and bluejackets and the return salute promised by this Government as

"Unfavorable to Early Adjustment," Is Mexico's View of Washington's Stand

MEXICO CITY, April 17.—The substance of the reply of the United States Government to the demand of President Huerta that there should be a simultaneous salute fired by the Americans when the Mexicans salute the American flag was delivered verbally to-night by Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American Charge, to Senor Portillo y Rojas, the Foreign Minister. The reply, it is said, was unfavorable to an early adjustment of the situation.

The Cabinet held a three hours' meeting to consider the matter. It was impossible to learn the result from either the Ministers or Mr. O'Shaughnessy.

Text of Admiral Mayo's Ultimatum to Tampico Commander.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—To make plain the nature of the demands originally made by Rear Admiral H. T. Mayo upon the military commander at Tampico, Gen. Zaragoza, the Navy Department to-day made public the text of the document which Mayo sent to Zaragoza on April 9, following the arrest of the Dolphin's men. This document, which is the basis of President Wilson's demands on President Huerta, reads as follows:

"This morning an officer and squad of men of the Mexican military forces arrested and marched through the streets of Tampico a commissioned officer of the United States Navy, the Paymaster of the Dolphin, together with seven men, composing the crew of the whaleboat of the Dolphin. At the time of this arrest the officer and men concerned were unarmed and engaged in loading cases of gasoline which had been purchased on shore. Part of the men were on the shore, but all, including the man or men in boat, were forced to accompany armed Mexican forces.

"I do not need to tell you that taking men from a boat, flying the United States flag, is hostile act not to be excused.

"I have already received your verbal message of regret that this event has happened and your statement that it was committed by an ignorant officer.

"The responsibility for hostile act cannot be avoided by the plea of ignorance.

"In view of the publicity of this occurrence, I must require that you send by suitable members of your staff formal disavowal and apology for the act, together with your assurance that the officer responsible for it will receive severe punishment; also that you publicly hoist the United States flag in a prominent position on shore and salute it with twenty-one guns. The salute will be returned by this ship.

"Your answer to this communication should reach me and the called-for salute be fired within twenty-four hours from 6 P. M. of this date."

ASTOR HAS A SETBACK

But Rallies Later, and Mr. Huntington Hopes He Has Improved.

The condition of Vincent Astor, who has been seriously ill with an affection of the lower right lung at Hopeland House, Staatsburg, N. Y., the home of his fiancée, Miss Helen Dinsmore Huntington, daughter of Robert P. Huntington, was very little improved last night, though Mr. Astor was said to be resting comfortably.

Speaking over the telephone, Mr. Huntington said that Mr. Astor had experienced a slight setback in the morning, but that he apparently had about recovered last night. Mr. Huntington was asked about Mr. Astor's condition at 9:30 o'clock. He said:

"Mr. Astor seems to be doing very well to-night, and we have sent out bulletins to that effect to The Associated Press, through which we have arranged to keep the newspapers informed twice daily of Mr. Astor's condition. It is true that he had a little setback this morning, but he seems to have recovered from that, and we hope that his condition is improved."

"Is it true that Mr. Astor's illness will cause a change to be made in the plans for the wedding?" Mr. Huntington was asked.

"As yet no changes have been made," replied Mr. Huntington, "but I think unquestionably that the date of the wedding will have to be changed unless Mr. Astor has a very speedy recovery."

Mr. Huntington was asked if the original plans for the wedding would be materially changed in case Mr. Astor's condition would permit of his marriage on April 30, the date that has been fixed. Mr. Huntington said he believed that only a very simple and brief ceremony would be performed in that event. Then he repeated:

"I believe unquestionably that some change in the original plans for the wedding will have to be made. You see, Mr. Astor has been a very sick man, and he will have to be given time to recover."

"Have the physicians attending Mr. Astor any idea as to when his condition will be sufficiently improved to make safe his removal to his own home?" Mr. Huntington was asked.

"I don't know whether Mr. Astor is going to be removed to his own home," he replied. "His home at Ferncliffe is closed, and he has been living aboard his yacht. He probably will remain here until he has recovered."

Mr. Huntington repeated that he had arranged to give The Associated Press two bulletins daily on Mr. Astor's condition, and he hoped by this means that all the newspapers would receive their information. The arrangement had been considered necessary, he said, because there was not a minute during the day that the telephone at Hopeland House was not in use to answer inquiries from reporters for the newspapers, to the great annoyance of the Huntington household.

POSING AS BELMONT REACHES HAVANA

Youth Who Gave Name of August Belmont, Jr., in New Orleans Is Now in Cuba.

SAYS HE IS BUYING HORSES

Has the Appearance of a Jockey, and Is Accompanied by Man He Calls His Valet.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, April 17—A beardless youth about 20 year old, who declares he is August Belmont, Jr., arrived here to-day from New Orleans aboard the steamer Heredia and went to the Hotel Inglaterre, registering from New York. Another youth was with him, whom he called his valet and who registered as Charles Ressie of New Orleans. They took the same room, dined together, hired an automobile and a negro guide, and began taking in the sights of Havana at a rapid rate.

"Yes, I am August Belmont's son, of New York," the youth explained to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent, "and I am here to buy horses."

Asked to explain how he happened to come to such a country as Cuba to buy horses, he explained that he had heard that Cuba's live stock exposition, now being held, contained some magnificent specimens and that he had come to purchase some of them.

It was remarked that the youth calling himself Belmont had about the right build for a jockey, but he denied he was a jockey, saying he weighed 140 pounds. He said he intended to make a jockey of the valet, who weighed 115 pounds.

The young man was introduced to THE TIMES correspondent by Stuart Bellows, traveling traffic agent for the United Fruit Company, but Mr. Bellows told the correspondent he could not vouch for the young man's identity, because they had only been introduced aboard ship.

August Belmont, Jr., at his home in Islip, L. I., was informed early this morning over the telephone that the same youth who had masqueraded under his name several days ago in New Orleans had arrived in Havana, Cuba, where he likewise had assumed the name of August Belmont, Jr., and a style of living which he assumed would befit the millionaire's son he had undertaken to impersonate. Young Mr. Belmont expressed his surprise at this information.

"I haven't the slightest idea who this man is," said Mr. Belmont, "but I have done all that I could to find out."

"Just what have you done to find out the identity of your impersonator?" Mr. Belmont was asked.

"Well, I have made efforts to find out who he is through the proper channels."

"Have you taken any steps to have the youth apprehended?" he was asked.

"I have taken what steps I could by writing to THE TIMES and other newspapers informing them that I was not in New Orleans at the time this man is said to have appeared there under my name. I asked the press to make that correction."

Mr. Belmont was asked if he would take any other steps to have the man arrested in Havana, and he said he had done all that was possible to do. He was not ready to say whether he would cable to the police of Havana to arrest the youth.

Our "Sincere Regret" Expressed To Colombia in New Treaty

For "Anything That May Have Interrupted or Altered Relations of Cordial Friendship"—Text, Kept Secret in Washington, Made Public in Paris.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Saturday, April 18.—The text of the treaty between the United States and Colombia, in settlement of the controversy over Panama, is given in the Temps as follows:

"Article I.—The Government of the United States, desiring to put an end to all disputes and differences with the Republic of Colombia occasioned by events which have brought about the present situation in the Isthmus of Panama, in its name and in the name of the people of the United States, expresses sincere regret for anything that may have interrupted or altered the relations of cordial friendship existing long between the two nations.

"The Government of the Republic of Colombia, in its name and in the name of the Colombian people, accepts that declaration in the full assurance that every obstacle for the re-establishment of complete harmony between the two countries will thus disappear.

"Article II.—Colombia will enjoy freely and in perpetuity the free passage through the canal of its troops, supplies, and warships."

An explanatory clause says that the same article stipulates commercial advantages for Colombian products imported through the Canal Zone, special advantages in Panama railway traffic when service by the canal is interrupted for any cause, and when its use is required for Colombian agents and troops and for war material, and also advantages for traffic in Colombian products, especially coal, oil, and salt.

"Article III.—Payment to Colombia, six months after the exchange of ratifications of the treaty, of the sum of $25,000,000 is stipulated.

"Article IV.—Colombia recognizes Panama as an independent nation with the limits laid down by the Colombian law of June 9, 1855, the line of which on the Pacific Ocean will terminate at a point equidistant between Cocalito and Ardita. The United States undertakes to induce the Government of Panama to send an agent to negotiate with Colombia a treaty of peace and friendship in which shall be introduced an arrangement relative to the pecuniary liabilities of the two countries in conformity with precedent and with the principles of law."

SAY REGRET ISN'T APOLOGY.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Publication of the text of the Colombia treaty confirms the statement in THE NEW YORK TIMES last Thursday that the proposed convention included an expression of regret on the part of the United States. Officials of the Administration have so far shown themselves loath to admit the inclusion of any such clause in the treaty, and the refusal of Secretary Bryan to make the treaty public here last Wednesday, on the ground that publication of a treaty before the Senate received it would be a discourtesy to the Committee on Foreign Relations, postponed confirmation until to-day. Mr. Bryan took that course at the request of members of the Committee on Foreign Relations, he said.

The language of the treaty makes it a little difficult to ascertain precisely what was in the mind of the officials who denied last Thursday that an apology or expression of regret was contained in the treaty. The terms of the treaty do not even admit the construction that regret is an expression simply for a condition of estrangement between the two countries; for the regret is expressed directly for "anything that may have altered" their relations of friendship.

President Wilson himself said that he did not know the precise terms of the treaty, but that he knew it contained no apology. This indicates that Mr. Bryan has succeeded in impressing his peace policy upon the negotiations of the new treaty, and that the expression of regret, strong as it is, is his work.

In expectation of adverse comment on the expression of regret, it was said by a Senator to-night that certain members of the Committee on Foreign Relations had received this afternoon pencilled copies of pertinent clauses of the treaty. The inference was drawn that these Senators would thus have time to make a careful distinction between an apology, which the treaty obviously does not give, and the simple expression of regret for acts the merits of which are not denied or discussed. Last Friday the President made it certain that he did not think anything in the treaty constituted an apology.

"Pure guff," was the way President Wilson answered a question last Friday as to whether the treaty contained an apology. He said he was not, of course, familiar with the details of the treaty negotiations with Colombia, but he did know there was no apology in the document. Afterward the President was asked if the treaty contained anything in the nature of an expression of regret designed to soothe Colombian sensibilities, and to this he responded, in effect, that he had already answered the question.

Battle in the Senate Expected.

The request for the Senate's ratification of the treaty will cause a prolonged battle in the Senate. The Democrats, it is true, as Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, a member of the Committee on Foreign Relations, pointed out to-night, have from the beginning assailed all the steps taken by President Roosevelt leading up to the acquisition of the Canal Zone, and they may not be averse to voicing criticism of a Republican Administration, even in a treaty with a foreign power.

On the other hand, it is expected that Republican Senators will be almost solid in their opposition to ratification. To them the language will mean nothing less than a studied insult of a Republican President before the nations of the world in general and for the satisfaction in particular of Colombia. Many Senators have expressed the view for many years that, while Colombia was wronged by the United States, her attitude toward the sale of the canal right-of-way was little more than a hold-up.

With the exception of Senator La Follette, who hates Col. Roosevelt more than he hates any Democrat, every Progressive Republican and the one Progressive Party Senator look back to President Roosevelt's Administration as the palmy days of their faction. Any reflection on him will be bitterly resented, and the Progressive Republicans are the best filibusters and the longest talkers in the Senate.

Conservative Republicans cannot be expected to show more sympathy than the Progressive faction for this particular rebuke to the Republican Administration. Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the ranking Republican on the Committee of Foreign Relations, is one of Col. Roosevelt's warmest personal friends, and Mr. Lodge is a power among conservative Republicans, particularly on international questions. He will have the whole-hearted support of Senator Root of New York, who, as President Roosevelt's Secretary of State, once negotiated with Colombia an unratified treaty making pecuniary and concessionary reparation.

Mr. Root's treaty, however, expressed no regret and was negotiated, say his friends, entirely as an act of grace. It is hardly conceivable that enough regular Republicans will ignore the leadership of Mr. Lodge and Mr. Root on this question to make easy the securing of the necessary two-thirds vote for ratification.

No Regrets in Root's Treaty.

The allegation of some Democratic Senators that the treaty with Colombia negotiated by Elihu Root when he was Secretary of State contained expressions not greatly different from the expression of regret in the new Colombian treaty is not borne out by a comparison. The preamble of the Root treaty, which was signed on Jan. 9, 1909, is as follows:

"The United States of America and the Republic of Colombia, being equally animated by the desire to remove all obstacles to a good understanding between them, and to facilitate the settlement of the questions heretofore pending between Colombia and Panama by adjusting at the same time the relations of Colombia to the canal which the United States is now constructing across the Isthmus of Panama, to that end have appointed as their Plenipotentiaries," &c.

There are only fifty Democrats in the Senate, or, with a full Senate, fifty-one. Two-thirds of the full Senate's strength is sixty-four votes. These figures show that these Democrats will have to recruit thirteen votes before they can ratify the treaty. It is very difficult to see where these votes can come from.

Says Ratification Will be Difficult.

A prominent Democrat of the Foreign Relations Committee admitted to-night that ratification would present very difficult problems. He seems to think the Democrats will be solid for the treaty, but he admits the probability that the Republicans will be solidly against it. He thinks it possible, however, that if the Senate eliminates the expression of regret to smooth the way for ratification, Colombia may be satisfied with the earnest effort of the American Executive to incorporate that expression in the treaty.

A complication will arise here, however, in the fact that amendments to treaties are decided by majority votes. The vote on eliminating a paragraph would be in the form of an amendment to strike out, and the Democratic majority, of course, could defeat it.

Another Democrat of the committee, who was rather expected to seize on the expression of regret as another illustration of the willingness of the State Department to bow down before foreign Governments, minimized the importance of the expression in the Colombian treaty.

He said he did not think the treaty would add any fuel to the fires of resentment in certain quarters over the so-called surrender of American rights in regard to tolls exemption. He thought the proposed treaty not far different in its material aspects from the treaties negotiated by Mr. Root.

The one warm expression of approval of the treaty to-night came from Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, the only Democrat who has shown himself perfectly fearless in criticising the President when he though criticism justified. Mr. Hitchcock thinks the treaty will encounter more opposition on account of the $25,000,000 indemnity than on account of the expression of regret.

"The mere fact that we are voting reparation in money," said Mr. Hitchcock, "is an admission that we have done something wrong. If we have committed a wrong against a friendly power, I see no reason why we should not say so, fairly and frankly, in a dignified way. There is a mere sentimental objection to such a course, while there may be a real objection to the $25,000,000. A study of the rights lost by Colombia, I think, will show that this sum is very small.

"The language of the treaty falls very far short of an apology, and an apology in this case is not called for. From the very beginning of the Panama incident Democrats have consistently criticised the act of President Roosevelt in such terms as to make the language of this treaty very mild comment. Even some Republicans at the time deplored President Roosevelt's course, though, as the act could not be undone, they supported him in it. I feel that the treaty in this respect is a mild statement of the truth, and, without having

POLK'S INJURY NOT SERIOUS

Police Commissioner Woods Bears Down Assailant Who Wounded the Corporation Counsel.

In the midst of the noon-hour crowd on Park Row an attempt was made on the life of Mayor John Purroy Mitchel yesterday afternoon, just as he was starting in his automobile for luncheon from the east end of City Hall Plaza. The would-be assassin of Mr. Mitchel was a shabbily dressed man of 71 years, who fancied he had a series of grievances against the Mayor for his mode of administering the City Government.

The assassin was felled and overpowered before he could fire again by Police Commissioner Arthur H. Woods, another member of the party, late the Mayor's secretary. Mayor Mitchel himself, leaping up in the automobile, drew a revolver which, mindful of the murderous attack on the late Mayor Gaynor, he had for three months been carrying for purposes of self-defense. But the prompt and vigorous action of the Police Commissioner, assisted by the chauffeur of the car, and by half a dozen strong and ready hands in the quickly gathering throng, put a quietus on the murderous attack and disarmed the perpetrator.

While the would-be murderer's bullet was at first thought to have inflicted a dangerous wound on Corporation Counsel Polk, it was found presently that it had passed into the fleshy part of his chin on the right side, glanced upward a trifle, shattering the jawbone and knocking out two teeth. Mr. Polk, acting with the same coolness that characterized the Mayor and the others, received back his extracted teeth from the chauffeur who had picked them up in the street beside the car a few minutes after the shooting and said he would have them mounted in gold.

Bullet Removed from Jaw.

Last night his father, Dr. William M. Polk, Dean of the Cornell University Medical College and President of the Academy of Medicine, to whom he telephoned a few minutes after the shooting that he was not dangerously injured, visited Mr. Polk at the New Yorok Hospital. He announced that his son was not dangerously hurt, and that it would be only a few days before the Corporation Counsel could leave the hospital. Mrs. Polk remained all night at the hospital.

It was announced at the hospital early this morning that the bullet had been found in Mr. Polk's jaw and had been removed by the surgeons at 8 o'clock in the evening. According to the announcement it had entered the left side of the face near the base of the tongue and after passing under the tongue had found lodgment on the right side of the jaw.

At 1:45 o'clock this morning Miss Atwater, the nurse attending Mr. Polk, issued the following written statement:

> The bullet was removed early last night by Dr. Hartwell. Patient is suffering considerable pain and is very restless.

It was also stated that a few moments before this statement was issued Mrs. Polk retired.

News of the attack on Mayor Mitchel swept through the city, and his narrow escape brought a horde of messages of inquiry and congratulation from friends throughout the city, State, and nation.

At first the attack, made at midday within a stone's throw of the Greeley statue in Park Row, where Socialist, I. W. W., and other radical orators and agitators were holding forth, was ascribed to an anarchist plot. But the police, after a day of thorough-going search and inquiry, pronounced themselves certain that the attempt on the Mayor's life had not been inspired by any organization or other individual.

The assassin, in withstanding an inquisition by Police Commissioner Woods, his deputies, Inspector Faurot, District Attorney Whitman, and two assistants, and Chief Magistrate McAdoo, all afternoon, first gave his name as David Rose, then David Ross, and finally confessed that he was really Michael P. Mahoney, formerly a black-

RICH BOY STUDENT HELD AS MURDERER

VICTIM'S PAPERS CHIEF CLUE

Sequel to Shooting of Chauffeur F. J. Clute of Albany on Highway on Night of April 1, 1913.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 17.—Malcolm Gifford, Jr., 19 years old, son of a wealthy manufacturer of Hudson, N. Y., is under indictment and in jail here charged with having murdered Frank J. Clute, a chauffeur, who was shot to death near Watervliet on the night of April 1, 1913. The murder baffled the local police and county officers, and only the recent discovery of some papers that had belonged to the chauffeur furnished the final clue that led to the arrest and indictment of young Gifford.

An unidentified young man engaged Clute to drive him to Troy on the night of April 1, 1913, and on the way the passenger shot the chauffeur in the back of the head, robbed the body, threw it into a ditch, and fled. The next morning the automobile was found on the highway between Watervliet and Schenectady, and the body of Clute was discovered soon afterward in a ditch near by. Several days later Prof. James Craw of the Watervliet High School found a pair of blood-stained gloves in the field near where Clute's body lay. They bore the trademark of Brooks Brothers, New York, and furnished one of the clues which led to the arrest of young Gifford more than a year after the murder.

The boy was a student at Williston Seminary, Mass. He had been at home spending his Easter vacation and had started back to school when he was arrested at Chatham on Tuesday by Detectives Willard A. Teff, D. A. Mancer, and Robert F. Schnaidle, who had been working on the case for more than a year. The lad was brought to this city and placed in the Third Precinct Police Station until an important witness could be found. The witness came to-day, and was before the Grand Jury for several hours. Gifford was quickly indicted and was taken into court, where he heard the indictment read. The youth seemed terrified when arraigned, and remained silent when called upon to plead guilty or not guilty. District Attorney Harold Alexander entered the plea of not guilty for him. Gifford was then taken back to his cell and his father was notified by telephone of the boy's predicament. The family had known nothing of his arrest.

When the body of Clute was examined experts saw he had been shot with an automatic revolver. The fact that young Gifford had such a weapon and purchased most of his wearing apparel from Brooks Brothers aided the detectives in their search.

It developed that on the night of the murder young Gifford slept in the house of Henry Boardman, a lawyer in Troy, where he had been the guest of Decker Boardman for several days. Young Gifford had been suspended from school, but had not gone home nor told his parents about it. On the night of the murder young Gifford, with Decker Boardman and some other boys, started to a dance at the Troy Club. On the way Gifford borrowed $1.50 from one of his companions, and soon afterward he disappeared. When he arrived at the dance several hours later his friends noticed that he was very nervous and that his clothing was soiled. He also refused to tell where he had been. The next morning, his friends testified, he borrowed a cap and started for home.

While the lad was a guest at the Boardman house, he occupied a room adjoining the bathroom. From the window of the bathroom a recess under the mansard roof could be reached by stretching out one's arm.

Charles Carpenter was engaged about a month ago to shovel the snow off the roof of the Boardman house. While at work he saw some papers in the recess which he took to Mr. Boardman. They proved to be the chauffeur's license of Frank J. Clute, a business card of Clute's father, and some other private papers that had belonged to the chauffeur. These Mr. Boardman handed to District Attorney Alexander, saying

"There's your clue to the Clute murder." He also told about the visit of Gifford at his house. Immediately the detectives began to shadow young Gifford.

It is understood that the prosecution will try to show that robbery was the motive for the crime. Clute had about $50 in his pockets when he was murdered. This was missing when the body was found.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—An elderly Englishman, fashionably dressed, who purchased a draft for $1,000, made payable to Victoriana Huerta, Provisional President of Mexico, at a Washington national bank on Wednesday, told the clerk who attended to him that he had been treated so badly in the United States that he wished to retaliate by helping Huerta's cause. Yesterday a man who said he was connected with the Mexican Embassy called at the bank and exhibited the draft with a request to know if it was genuine. The clerk told him that it was. Evidently the elderly Englishman had made good his threat to help Huerta.

The Englishman told the bank clerk that he had been grossly insulted by customs officers in New York when he arrived there recently with his daughter, and he was thoroughly disgusted with this country. The customs officers, he said, had removed aigrettes from his daughter's hat. This was an insult of the worst kind, he declared. He did not blame the customs officers for carrying out the anti-aigrette law, but he did hold the United States responsible for the insult, and wanted to retaliate by giving assistance to Huerta, who was an enemy of this Government.

Payment for the draft was made with ten $100 bills. The draft was really for £200 and was made on a London bank. Neither the Englishman nor the clerk knew the Mexican President's first name, but a telephone inquiry of the Mexican Embassy brought the desired information. The Englishman was a stranger to the officials and employes of the bank.

He appeared to those who questioned him to be of somewhat unbalanced mind, with many pet and bitter grievances against all sorts of ideas and persons, blaming Mayor Mitchel for his recent advocacy of the so-called Goethals Police bills and for what he considered extravagance in the city administration, culminating in this week's sale of the $65,000,000 bond issue. He was bitter against the Mayor's appointees to office, also, and wrathful against Col. George Goethals for the latter's method of administration in the Panama Canal Zone. His bitterness included in its scope Commissioner Katharine B. Davis of the Department of Correction. He insisted that he had been turned away with insult at the Mayor's office after vain efforts to see Mayor Mitchel, and that he had thereupon decided to do the shooting. He added that he had almost carried out his intention on Wednesday, but that the cold rainy weather prevented him.

Talks of Carnegie.

Among Mahoney's other pet aversions, among the strongest, was that against Andrew Carnegie, whom, after an afternoon-long grueling inquisition at Police Headquarters, he accused of having caused him to lose a fortune of $100,000 which he once possessed. In his pockets was found a Socialist campaign dodger bitterly assailing Mr. Carnegie and a Pittsburgh Councilman, Enoch Rauh, whom the ironmaster had indorsed.

Last night the police traced from the place where Mahoney had last lodged, 225 East Fiftieth Street, a trunk and suitcase filled with his belongings. In these were found numberless sheets of paper, forming a long and incoherent diary through which his movements all the way back to 1888 were traced. The diary showed that he had lived at various times at Pittsburgh, New Orleans, Louisville, Ky.; Covington, Ky.; Newport, Ky.; Shreveport, La.; Turtle Creek, Penn.; Defiance, Ohio; Cincinnati, Ohio; Garrison, Texas, and many other places.

The entries showed, too, that the man cherished many bitter animosities against Andrew Carnegie, the Masonic order, which he had been obliged to quit after quarreling with them; the Odd Fellows, the courts, and law officers. He appeared throughout in a litigious character, and law suits obsessed his mind. Once, it appeared he had lost all but $3,000 of $14,000 he possessed, through being sold out by a Sheriff in Pennsylvania in 1888. Again, as recently as March 12, 1913, he entered a law suit against two men in this city, in the course of which he fell out with his own lawyer and hired another. Several letters to Andrew Carnegie were entered, and it was to Mr. Carnegie that in a statement to the police he ascribed his loss of a former fortune said by him to have amounted to almost $100,000.

Mahoney was uncommunicative about himself and his relatives, but is believed to have relatives in Pittsburgh, and a wife living in Newport, Ky. At various times, it appeared from his diary, he lived under the names of David Rose, David Dean, Michael P. Mahoney, and James Mann.

The trunk contained a few articles of cheap clothing and a revolver of the bulldog type. The revolver was fully loaded, but was so badly rusted that it was out of service. The trunk, an old-fashioned wood and leather affair, apparently had been in Mahoney's possession for many years. In the suitcase, however, were found three books, in which Mahoney had kept his diary for many years.

From the first book Inspector Faurot read this passage:

Among the points contained in the books was the fact that Mahoney had written to Andrew Carnegie on Nov. 17, 1913, but nothing was mentioned about the nature of the letter. Mahoney also made it plain that he blamed the Masons and Odd Fellows for his many troubles and that he was a "crank" on the subject of graft in the Government.

The entries in the diaries were not in order of their dates, and it was necessary for the police to twist them about and work over them for some time in order to get even a fairly connected story. Mahoney, it was shown, had traveled from one city to another and had worked at many jobs, holding such places only for short periods. He almost invariably blamed the Masons for his discharge and once for a heavy money loss. The diaries carried the story to the time when on Nov 26 last, he rented the little room at 103 East Fiftieth Street.

There were a number of newspaper clippings also, some of very old dates. Among the more recent clippings was one from The Evening Journal of Jan. 16, 1913, in which there was an editorial article entitled, "Are You in Favor of Punishing the Big Rascals?" Another clipping from The American told that Miss Katharine B. Davis had found graft in the Tombs. A clipping from The World of Feb. 20 last told that Mayor Mitchel was being backed by men of prominence in his ideas concerning the police, and mentioned the name of Col. Goethals.

There was nothing in the diaries to indicate that Mahoney had been a tool of others.

Mahoney, after the detectives had gone over his books, admitted that he was a Mason, and forty years ago had had some trouble with other Masons.

His Story in Diary.

In telling the rambling story of his life Mahoney gave much prominece in his first diary to an incident he listed under the date 1888. In confused terms he told that he had then owned seven houses at Turtle Creek, Penn., and two lots, valued at $14,000. He had traded the houses for 162 acres of land, he wrote, and in the contract was a clause that the owner of the lots should place a fence about them.

This contract was not carried out, he wrote, and he had brought suit and lost. Then he added: "Presiding Judge Davis and eleven of the jurors were Masons and Odd Fellows." He had refused to pay the costs, he wrote, and the Sheriff had been ordered to sell him out. From the wreck, according to the diary, "but $3,000 was saved."

This incident had apparently had a great effect on his life, for he then said: "I then started out as David Rose."

Then several years were jumped and this entry made: "I am a Mason, also an I. O. O. F. July 17, 1896, hurt on railroad; July, 1899, went to Pittsburgh and worked for the Westinghouse Company for two years as David Rose."

Then Mahoney told of going to the home of his wife in Newport, Ky., in July, 1901. On May 2, 1902, according to the diary he obtained employment with the National Steel Company in Newcastle, Penn. "Discharged June 17. They found me out again," was the next entry. From June 20 to Aug. 5, 1902, he held a job in Graveton, Penn. Then he went to work under name of David Reddy for Jones & Lockland of Second Avenue, Pittsburgh. "Stayed here until Aug. 17," he wrote. "I left there on account of the foreman, for he told me to put three big iron bars in the fire at one time."

In another of the diaries was an entry under July, 1897, which complained that the Masons and Odd Fellows had all gone back on him. Another confused entry tells about "M. Mahoney and family of Clearmont County, Ohio," going to a Kentucky town and getting a job at the K. & C. Railroad shops at Covington, Ky. He remained there four weeks. In 1896 he was in Defiance, Ohio, and in Garrison, Texas. He was discharged from his work at the latter place, he wrote. He had also been in Shreeveport, La., according to the diary, having worked there as a waiter.

The third diary contained the address, "David Rose, 1,715 Penn." This was followed by the entry: "Arrived in Pittsburgh July 23, 1913, from New York and worked four weeks for Edward Halloran." He had then gone "south," he wrote, and Halloran owed him $23. When he got back to Pittsburgh Halloran was dead. Mr. Slater, executor of the estate, he said, had refused to pay the money to him.

On March 12, 1913, the diary stated, Mahoney had retained Attorney Robert C. Moore to bring a suit against John H. Feldscher of Fifty-fifth Street and Eleventh Avenue and David Wright of 424 Columbus Avenue. He had some trouble with the lawyer, who wanted him to file some papers without reading them. On April 25, 1913, he wrote that he had retained Attorney Busch of Room 1,321 at 320 Broadway. He complained that whenever he called at the office he was told by a "lady stenographer" that Mr. Busch was out. Then he told of trying to sell his two lots, which he still retained at Turtle Creek, Penn., through a Mr. Simms. The latter, he said, refused to sell them because Masons lived in the district. Under the date of July, 1913, he told of giving $140 to the Rev. Father Braun of 141 East Forty-third Street. He was in Pittsburgh on Aug. 15, 1913, and the diary shows that he wrote to Father Braun for $50. He was told to come to New York by the priest, he said, but had no money. On Oct. 22, 1913, he said, he received a check of $100 from Father Braun.

A picture of Andrew Carnegie was found in the trunk. An entry in the diary of May 26, 1913, says that he wrote to The American newspaper office at 238 William Street about Carnegie. On Nov. 17, 1913, a short entry read: "Wrote to Andrew Carnegie."

MAYOR ESCAPES; POLK HIT.

Assassin Caught, Is Long Silent, Then Bares Grievances.

The shooting occurred at 1:15 o'clock. Mayor Mitchel, accompanied by Police Commissioner Woods, Corporation Counsel Polk, and George V. Mullan, a former law partner of the Mayor and now a Tax Commissioner, left the Mayor's office at 1:10 o'clock to go for luncheon at the Whitehall Building, 17 Battery Place. They went east across City Hall Plaza to the Park Row side, where, just opposite the World Building, stood the large green automobile of the Police Department, which is set aside for the Mayor's use. It was headed south toward the Post Office. The Police Commissioner's own car, in charge of his chauffeur, drove away at Commissioner Woods's bidding, and the four men prepared to get in the Mayor's car, which was in charge of Second-Grade Detective George G. Neun, the chauffeur.

Mr. Mullan got in first, going to the left-hand side of the rear seat. Mr. Polk got in next, on the same seat, and the Mayor stepped in last, sitting at Mr. Polk's right. Police Commissioner Woods, not wishing to climb past the chauffeur at the steering wheel, walked around the front of the car, and was just about to step in and sit at the chauffeur's left. The street was crowded with the usual noonday throng.

Suddenly Police Commissioner Woods saw, just over his shoulder, a shabbily-dressed man, with scraggy gray beard, lurch up to the street side of the car, draw a revolver from his coat pocket, and level it at the Mayor in the rear seat. In a moment he had leaped upon the assailant, striking his shoulders with both arms and bearing him to the street. But he was not in time. Just before he struck, the revolver was discharged. Then the old man went down, with the Police Commissioner on top of him, pinning the pistol arm to the street.

The shot was fired so close to the occupants of the rear seat that the powder stung the left cheek of Mr. Mullan. The Mayor leaped to his feet. For a moment he thought a tire had blown out. Then he saw the old man, and his hand went to his pocket, where, for the last three months, he had carried a revolver in preparation for just such an attempt as this.

Mr. Polk, who had been leaning forward in his seat to make way for the Mayor, crumpled back and his hand went to his face.

"He got me," he cried. "He shot me in the mouth."

Police Commissioner Woods was grappling with the prostrate man in the street. He could feel the old man's finger writhing desperately in a wild effort to use his weapon again. Neun, the chauffeur, who had leaped from the car almost as soon as his chief, now threw himself on the old man and wrenched the revolver away from him.

In a moment the automobile and the three men in the roadway beside it were the centre of a mob of many hundreds of persons who, hearing the shot and seeing the struggle beside the Mayor's car, at first though Mayor Mitchel had been assassinated. Then they saw the Mayor leaning solicitously over Corporation Counsel Polk and asking whether he was badly hurt. Blood was streaming from Mr. Polk's mouth, but he assured the Mayor that he did not think the wound was dangerous.

The crowd, however, pressed close around the car, and three men, Fred Bickel of 270 Hancock Avenue, Jersey City; Arthur Unger of 1,520 Broadway, and Joseph Saloschin, a court interpreter, of 183 East Ninety-third Street, had thrown themselves upon the Mayor's assailant and helped Commissioner Woods and the chauffeur, Neun, subdue him. He was then hurried through the dense throng that packed City Hall Park to the Traffic Police Station in the basement of the City Hall.

Recognizes the Assassin.

As he was entering there, Lieut. William Kennel, who guards the door leading to the Mayor's office, recognized the would-be assassin.

"I have turned that fellow out of the City Hall several times in the last few months," he said. "I always thought he was a 'nut,' and would not let him get within fifty feet of the Mayor's room.

"The fellow would always insist on seeing the Mayor; so that I was compelled to take him by the arm and gently lead him out of the building. He said he would come again."

The news of the shooting, traveling like a fire through the city, brought Deputy Police Commissioner Rubin, Inspector Faurot, and half a dozen detectives from Police Headquarters to the station in the City Hall in less than ten minutes, almost simultaneously with the arrival of an ambulance from the Hudson Street House of Relief for Corporation Counsel Polk. Mr. Polk was put in the ambulance, and at his request and the Mayor's order was hurried up to the New York Hospital.

Police Commissioner Woods, Mr. Rubin, and Inspector Faurot immediately subjected the assassin to a gruelling questioning. But at the very first question he balked. He refused to tell his name or anything about himself.

"Search and strip him," ordered Commissioner Woods.

As they removed his big No. 16 collar from his thin, shrunken neck they found written in ink on the inside of it, "David Rose," and at the left of this a laundry mark, B33. The prisoner, however, still refused to admit that his name was Rose.

He was an old man—71 years old, he said later—5 feet 6¾ inches in height, but stooped and worn in appearance. His brown eyes were sunken deep under his shaggy gray brows, but there was a bright, gleaming light in one of them Over the left eye stretched a dim cataract. He was of broad frame, but very emaciated, and weighed only 140 pounds. His hair was thin and gray, mouse-colored at the back. He wore a scraggy gray beard and stubble of gray mustache. His fingers were very long and strong, the longest ever recorded by the Bertillon experts at Police Headquarters.

In his pockets the police found two bottles, one of two ounces and one of three. Both contained some liquid, but the druggists' label had been carefully washed off. The bottles contained cough mixture. He had also a pair of cheap steel-rimmed spectacles. While the detectives were examining these, the old man raised his head, and, nodding it in a habitual disjointed fashion, vouchsafed:

"The trouble is that I didn't wear my glasses. I'm near-sighted."

"You've got a stye, haven't you?" asked one detective, pointing to the cataract.

"I reckon I have," replied the prisoner; from which they concluded he might hail from Down East.

"Do you mean you would not have missed the Mayor if you had worn your glasses?" asked Inspector Faurot.

"Now you're trying to get me to talk," answered the old man with a troubled leer. And he closed his colorless lips tight.

"You don't have to say anything," said Faurot.

"And I won't have anything to say," answered the old man, with another sly tightening of his lips.

"Are you a workingman?" asked the Inspector, looking at his thin, chapped hands. The old man began to complain of nausea and asked for a drink of water. When they handed him a glass he drank the water and said:

"I think you fellows are after me, too," sweeping the assembled police with a look.

"Don't you live in a municipal lodging house?" asked Faurot.

"I refuse to answer you."

Police Commissioner Woods here asked the Inspector if he thought the man was connected with some anarchist organization.

"No," replied the Inspector, "I think he's just a 'bug,' one of those letter-writing cranks."

The old man, who had sunk back into his stubborn apathy sat up at this, and shot back:

"Don't you believe I'm a crank sir."

Then he was taken into an inner room and stripped. On the waistband of his underwear the police found once more written in ink the name "D. Rose." In the pockets of his coat they found besides the medicine bottles a broken key ring with two trunk keys, and stamped on the ring the words, "Scientific optician, Austria." He had a leather [illegible] containing about $1.50 in [illegible] a penknife with a horn handle and two blades, a briar pipe, and several foreign coins of "one penny" denomination.

Abusive Letter to Mitchel.

In his pockets were found two letters, one of them in a stamped envelope not yet mailed and addressed upside down to "Mayor Mitchel, City."

Mayor Mitchel himself, reaching the station after Mr. Polk had been removed to the hospital, opened this letter. It was long and incoherent, written in a small and somewhat shaky hand, with bad spelling and no grammar. It was unsigned, and read:

> Mayor Mitchel we want to inform you a little in regard to lawyers for magistrates clerks you have stated this twentieth of february last now you say on 28th of February last that you there ignore it. how is it you tell so many lies for the short time you have been in office. you want secret bills passed in albany for goethals you want him for police commissioner he knows less about police work as mush as a boy of 12 or 14 he also knows lots of ingineering of panama Canal as 12 or 14 year old boy. if some of us had boys of that age who did not know as much as goethals of ingineering and police work we would cut his head off.
>
> Mitchel you never lost some of your old tricks and you never will because its in you this one was to get McKay to resign his commission to let the public know and make them believed that the trick was done in a honest way now we all know how honest it was fishing for Woods or Parkens Mitchel you are slick one you know as well as we do that ether one of those three men know nothing about police work what this Goethals know about police nor the other 2 above Mitchel Why don't you get a man from the force and then you will have a good man its all in at present and lots to come.
>
> What a few you make such a fuss over a Brute and Murderer as he is he and few Rughs done a way with a good man in the Panama Canal and you know if Just as Well as some of us do—some of us had Work for the Brute and we know a little about the Murderer We wonder that you and Wilson don't cut the Brute in 3 pieces and give each piece a Commission for Police ingeneer and governor for Panama then he and his friends would have a good show to graft more he stated in the newspapers in Nov 1912 that he would have the canal compleid in Jany 1914 is it compleait it don't look that way to us when the grafter want 34,000,000 dollars more goethals says he don't know how he is getting so many medals we agree to this because he is not worthy to any he have told the truth once in his life
>
> hamilton wright one of the givers we know him for many years not any good for the general public if goethal was non Mason how long woulda he hold that position in Panama he would not hold it 6 months.
>
> This canal could be Built for half the money if he was a man that would understand his business we all know this man goethals did not know the first thing about it but he was Mason and had the newspapers blowing Wind to the Public and he was Blowing Money to the Papers and the Public did not know anything about the Money so this is the way the taxpayers Money goes so goethal got in with andrew hamilton now goethal is a friend of hamilton he worked on canal same as us know this goethal send out to see how much he could make he made a Pile and then got catch now he can stand trial he and goethal got the Money Put a way here is other one of your appointments Street Commissioner look at our Streets since Feby 13 last he had said it would be clean.
>
> Is it clean not one half now took 30 days since he commence work those are the kind of men you like to have around you you are Pity guy for a Mayor anyhow you want Perkens as Commissioner this is other guy if one of us was in your Place we would be sure to Resign here is other this Deves Woman could you not get a Man for this Position instead of this Daves Woman everybody know what she is and everybody know that you had no right to appoint her except a few of this 1000 men you got around you they know that it will be a Benefit to them. hereafter in 2 ways and you know this now those Secret Bills you got in Albany its nothing but a expence to the taxpayers and you agreed to all this to save the expences instead your ading to it by creating new officers you want extra clerks for your office now we would like for you to stop this and not be advicing by the gang that you have around you now we want you to stop this dirty work.

The letter addressed to "Mayor Armstang" read:

> New York City, April 14.
>
> Armstang, Pittsburgh, Penn.:
>
> Armstang, you have done your part. You — — — — we will do our part soon, and we will see what part it will be.

It was evident from the dirty condition of the envelopes that Mahoney had carried the letters about in his pocket for several days.

Besides the letters there were found in the old man's pockets several clippings from newspapers, torn haphazard, and a torn political dodger. One clipping was from The Evening World of April 3, 1914, containing on one side a fragment of an article on the Senate canal tolls discussion, and on the other a department store advertisement. Another, similarly torn, was from The Evening Journal of April 11, 1914, containing a story headed "Arrest Five Girls as Members of Shoplifters," and another headed "Leaders O K'd Murphy When He Tried to Quit." Another clipping was from The Herald of May 9, 1913, and contained on one side some quotations of Government bonds and on the other a fragment of a story about the recent decision in the Jack Johnson white slave case. There was also a clipping from The Globe's school page, telling of school lunches and a teachers' meeting.

A Pittsburgh Attack.

More enlightening as to the character and antecedents of the prisoner was the political dodger in two fragments. The paper had three columns. Across the top of the first was printed: "Is Enoch Rauh a Friend of the Workingman?" Enoch Rauh is a wealthy neckwear manufacturer of Pittsburgh, who ran for re-election as Councilman there on Nov. 4 last. He was strongly indorsed by Andrew Carnegie, and had as his chief opponent W. Y. English, the Socialist candidate.

The second section of the dodger was headed: "Andrew Carnegie as a Workingman Knows Him," and, like the first, was followed by text attacking the subject of the article. The third division of the dodger was headed, "Andrew Carnegie as Enoch Rauh Paints Him, for Re-election." Below was printed, "Nov. 4th." And beneath this, "Remember Homestead, 1892!" "Remember the twelve-hour day in mills!" "Remember Sunday work!" "Remember Andrew Carnegie as the man responsible for all this and—remember Enoch Rauh makes Andrew Carnegie a hero!"

Mayor Mitchel took a look at the prisoner while he was at the police station, and Inspector Dillon asked the man:

"Wasn't it the Mayor you wanted to kill?"

"I refuse to answer," replied the old man.

Despairing of eliciting any information from him at the station, Police Commissioner Woods ordered the prisoner taken to Police Headquarters. There his Bertillon measurements were taken, and he was again subjected to a searching inquisition for three hours, first in the Bertillon room, and thereafter in the office of Deputy Commissioner Rubin. By dint of much kindly persuasion, instead of rough questioning, Mr. Rubin presently began to succeed somewhat better with the old man. First he induced the prisoner to sign his name. The old man did so in a trembling hand, writing "D. Ross." He would not explain why his clothing was marked "D Rose." Nor would he tell even now where he lived, or if he had any relatives.

"Are you a Scotchman?" asked Mr. Rubin. Ross refused to answer, except that he was 71 years old and had come to this country 60 years ago.

"Where from?" he was asked.

"Well, I'm here," answered the old man, rather petulantly. But his head presently sank forward again in its loose disjointed way, and he listened with mechanical nodding as before.

"Why don't you tell us something about yourself?" asked Deputy Commissioner Rubin.

"I'd rather die," replied the old man.

They offered him a cup of coffee and a ham sandwich. He drank the coffee but shoved away the sandwich. Asked whether he refused the sandwich because he was of the Catholic or Jewish religion, he refused to answer.

Rumor of a Conspiracy.

The old man was then taken upstairs to Police Commissioner Woods's office, where he was confronted by an examining board consisting of the Police Commissioner, Deputy Commissioner Rubin, Chief Magistrate McAdoo, District Attorney Whitman, and Assistant District Attorneys Embree and Du Vivier. A rumor had come to the Mayor's office that the attempt to assassinate the Mayor had been engineered by two men who handed the old man the revolver and pointing to the Mayor had said:

"There he is. Now's your chance."

They wanted to search to the bottom the theory that the attack had been the result of a murder plot of several persons.

For three hours they put the old man on the grill with questions, which, unless they were material and concerned himself, he almost invariably answered with: "I won't say."

Ultimately, however, he explained in a way the grievances that had led him to do the shooting. He said he had gone to see Mayor Mitchel twice, the first time on Monday, to remonstrate with him against what he considered extravagance of administration, and the second time on Wednesday.

"On Monday I was told I'd have to have a ticket before I could see the Mayor," he said. "It's a fine pass when a citizen and a taxpayer has to have a ticket to see the Mayor! It made me mad. I walked home."

"How?" interrupted Deputy Commissioner Rubin.

"Up Central Park West," replied the old man, evidently in evasion. He said he did not go as far as 110th Street.

"I returned on Wednesday," he continued. "I had my gun in my pocket. I had carried it three months. I bought it for $2 in Jersey City, taking the tube to get there and getting off at Grove Street. I always carried a revolver," he added in explanation, "for I often used to carry lots of money.

"On Wednesday I saw the Mayor go out to lunch with his secretary. I had my gun in my pocket, but didn't shoot. It was raining and cold, and I had cooled off too much, I guess.

"Then to-day I came downtown about 10 o'clock. I took a glass of whisky and then a glass of beer on Park Row. I stopped by where they were holding their meeting and speechmaking, a Socialist or I. W. W. meeting, in front of Greeley's statue, but I don't know what they were saying. I then walked over to the railing of City Hall Park, where I stood when the Mayor passed me by five feet. When he popped out, I took a shot at him."

Talks Wildly of Graft.

In very disjointed and incoherent fashion they got at his grievances that had filled him with hatred of the Mayor.

"Graft is worse under Mitchel than it ever was under Gaynor," he said. "They let out a $65,000,000 bond issue this week, while if they were honest men they could run the city easily on $35,000,000. Then Mitchel appoints only high-priced clerks, but the workingman has no chance. Goethals was a fraud. He was responsible for two landslides on the isthmus at the Panama Canal. I know, for I heard it from two friends who were 'canned' by him.

"Then there's the appointment of Woods and the taking off of McKay. McKay was all right and doing the right thing. Woods is a frost compared to him," he added, to the Police Commissioner, who was just in front of him.

"Are you a Scotchman?" they asked.

"The only Scotchman I know is Andrew Carnegie," replied the old man, with a long bitter look of his gleaming eye, "and he did me out of thousands of dollars."

Asked for further details about his experience with Mr. Carnegie, the old man said he was once worth $100,000, but had lost it all in business, ascribing his misfortune to the ironmaster, whom he said he knew because of those troubles years ago. He refused to tell what his business at that time had been or where he had then lived. He said he lived for years in Pittsburgh, had traveled extensively in the South and West, and lived for a while in New Orleans and for ten years in New York. Until eight months ago, he said, he lived in Pittsburgh, and came here on Nov. 26 last. He said he had never been arrested before, but had "had trouble with a cop on the sidewalk in Louisville, Ky., once, about thirty-five years ago" when he lived in Louisville.

He said he was once engaged in business as a real estate speculator here, but would tell nothing further about his business.

"I have money now," he added with quarrelsome pride, "and I never asked anything of any body. I want you to understand that I simply wanted to talk to the Mayor about these excessive expenditures, and maybe to ask for an appointment. They insulted me at the Mayor's office."

Sorry Now He Shot.

Asked whether he was sorry that he had done the shooting, he answered:

"Yes, I'm sorry that I shot at the Mayor and sorry that I hit Mr. Polk also. If I had to do it again I wouldn't do it."

He denied that he was a regular attendant at the meetings of the I. W. W. or other agitators, and Police Commissioner Woods and the other inquisitors were inclined to believe him. They were all rather strongly of the opinion of Kennel, the Mayor's Police Lieutenant, too, that the old man was "something of a bug." The revolver, a 38-calibre weapon, contained five bullets after the one had been fired. He denied that any one besides himself had had part in the plan to shoot the Mayor, and said his tarrying in front of the Greeley statue where the agitators were holding forth in speeches had been merely accidental.

They asked him if his wife was living. He put his hands to his eyes and refused to answer.

After the inquisition in the Commissioner's room, the old man was taken down into the prison pen of Headquarters by Lieut. Michael Collins for arraignment in the Tombs Court this morning, offenders in felony cases being arraigned only before day Magistrates.

In the cell, under the comforting influence of two cans of coffee and two huge sandwiches, the old man toward evening suddenly gave his confidence to Capt. Thomas Tunney of the Second Detective District, and now for the first time gave what he said was his real name.

He said he was Michael P. Mahoney, a blacksmith; that he had hurt his hands years ago and worked thereafter as a carpenter, but that he had not worked in the last year.

From the time of his arrival in this city on Nov. 26 until Wednesday, he said, he had lodged at 203 East Fiftieth Street, the caretaker of which house was a Mrs. Ballard, who lived at 225 East Fiftieth Street. Wednesday night, he said, he slept at Riley's Hotel, at Twenty-third Street and Third Avenue, and Thursday night paid 25 cents to sleep at the Union Hotel at Hester Street and the Bowery, where he registered as "James Mann."

He said he was born in Middleton, in the South of Ireland, and came to this country fifty-two years ago, and had traveled extensively in the South and West. More about his sojournings could be found, he said, if the police looked up his lodging house, and traced his trunk and suitcase to the storage house where he had put them.

He said there were three or four causes for his shooting at Mayor Mitchel—the high taxes and extravagant city expenditures, the recent bond issue, the Goethals Police bills, and other grievances.

"Gallagher, who shot Mayor Gaynor, had the bread taken out of his mouth," he suddenly volunteered. "I was in Pittsburgh at the time."

Tunney asked him whether he wanted to make his statement to the newspaper men, and also whether he wanted a lawyer.

"No," he replied. "I haven't any use for newspaper men or lawyers. The lawyers and Judges did me out of lots of money one time. I'm not a poor man for nothing. I paid taxes ever since I was a young man."

What his property now consisted of, if there was any, he refused to tell.

Immediately upon learning of the old man's confession to Capt. Tunney, Inspector Faurot notified the police of the East Fifty-first Street Station to trace his story from the address in East Fiftieth Street, where he had lodged, and to find the trunks he had mentioned and bring them to Headquarters.

Only One "BROMO QUININE."

MAYOR'S STORY OF ATTACK.

Did Not See Assassin, but Saw Woods Jump to Stop Him.

Mayor Mitchel returned to his office from the New York Hospital shortly before 4 o'clock. The crowd was still massed about the [illegible] plaza, and he was cheered as the automobile drew up to the curb. Another large crowd of friends was waiting at his outer office, and all sincerely congratulated him upon his escape. The Mayor led the way into his office, and to the reporters he said:

"I have just left Frank, and he is doing fine. He'll be back at work in two weeks, and out of the hospital in two days. The bullet passed through two inches of his lower lip and shattered his jaw bone. He also lost two teeth. The surgeon tells me that the piece of bone will live, and that it will not be necessary to have an operation to officially replace the bone."

When asked to tell his version of the shooting, the Mayor said:

"I was just sitting down in the machine and Mr. Polk was following. Frank was leaning forward, or, at least, he told me later that he was, owing to the crowded condition of the seat. The seat is narrow, and there is hardly room for three He thrust his head forward a little as he slid into his seat, and as he did so the shot was fired. I think the man shot for the back of my head I did not see the man who did the shooting, nor did I see the other two fellows, who, I heard, ran away afterward. I am told by a man who claims to have seen them that he heard one of them say: 'All right, go ahead.'"

The Mayor's jaw snapped as he said this, and he added: "I wish to God I could have caught sight of them running away. I would have liked to have had a shot at them."

"Did you know the man who shot at you?" the Mayor was asked.

"Why," he replied, "there are thousands of persons who have written letters of this type. The type of the letter is the same for all of this class. It looked to me like the writing of a plain bug; one of those fellows who has crazy notions about everything. I don't believe there is any way in the world to protect yourself from lunatics and that type of criminal."

The Mayor Ready to Shoot.

"Did you draw a gun?" the Mayor was asked.

"I had one in my pocket, and I took it out. Certainly, I drew a gun, for if there was another shot fired, I intended to be first."

"What did you do with it?"

"Why, I put it back," laughed the Mayor. "I have carried a gun for the last three months. The experience of the last Administration teaches us that there are always a few crazy people in every community, and no one can foretell what they will do. The Mayor is always receiving threatening letters."

"Have you received many such letters lately?" some one inquired.

"I don't know," was the Mayor's reply. "The fact is I don't see them or take the trouble to read them. Even those that come to my house are shipped down here. Erratic tendencies usually manifest themselves at the beginning of an Administration, so I have been on my guard. Now that this is over—I presume that it is over for the rest of the Administration—we can go ahead."

The Mayor was asked why Detective John J. Phelan, who usually attends him on his trips, was not on guard at the time, and he replied he had let him off, and there was not room in the car anyway.

"Woods was going along with us," said the Mayor, "and he took the seat beside the chauffeur, which is usually occupied by Phelan."

Continuing the Mayor said:

"Frank showed splendid nerve and grit from the very first. When I did finally grasp the fact that it was a shot and not a muffler explosion I got to my feet and looked around, and asked if anybody had been hurt. Frank said, 'Yes, he got me. He shot me in the mouth.' I saw Woods move forward before the shot was fired. I immediately thought there was a muffler explosion under the car and that it might catch fire, but the shot stung me in the ear and then I knew different. I realized that it couldn't be an explosion when my ear hurt. Mullan's face was burned by the powder. The shot came from the left side of the car, rather to the rear. I think the chauffeur was on the running board, about to throw the lap robe over us. I've tried to discourage him from doing that, but I haven't succeeded."

Unknown to Mitchel.

The Mayor was asked if the crank was the same one who had been bothering him at his home recently.

"No," replied the Mayor, "it is not the same person. The man who has been to my home I have known for years. He seems to have a religious mania and seems to be harmless."

The Mayor left his office about 5 o'clock to go uptown. He will go this morning to make an inspection of the Ashokan dam and part of the new Catskill water supply. He will be the guest Saturday night and Sunday of J. Waldo Smith, chief engineer of the Board of Water Supply, and will return to the city either on Monday or Tuesday. Before leaving the Mayor said he would be in touch all the time with his office, and that if Mr. Polk took a turn for the worse he would immediately return to the city.

During the afternoon the Mayor received many letters and telegrams congratulating him on his escape. Melville E. Stone, general manager of The Associated Press, sent this message:

> I am profoundly grieved to learn of the atrocious attempt on your life and the sad effect upon Mr. Polk. For yourself accept my heartfelt congratulation and for Polk my sincere sympathy.

William F. Sheehan sent this letter:

> Through the interposition of Providence, the Mayor of New York City has been saved from a madman's bullet. I congratulate you upon your escape and pray that Mr. Polk's injuries may not be serious.

Telegrams were received from Alderman Frederick Trau, Henry A. Gentell, Emmet Clare, Arnold S. Furst, Michael Furst, Timothy Murray, President of the Fordham Alumni; Henry F. A. Wolf, Vice President of the South Bronx Property Owners' Association, and Herbert A. Wheeler. Cards were left by the following: Chief Engineer Alfred Brooks Fry, United States Treasury Service, Port of New York; F. Cunliffe-Owen, Charles N. Chadwick, Commissioner of the Board of Water Supply; Herbert Parsons, Samuel S. Koenig, Lloyd Collis, and Park Commissioner Cabot Ward.

ASSAILANT KEPT APART.

Neighbors and Fellow-Tenants Thought Mahoney Queer.

People in the neighborhood of 203 East Fiftieth Street where Michael P. Mahoney had lived since last November in a little, poorly furnished room on the top floor, characterized him yesterday afternoon as "a queer old man who didn't tell others much about his affairs." No one could give any definite information about him, and even Mrs. L. Ballard, who has charge of the flat and rooming house, could not tell positively where he had lived before he rented the little "skylight" room for $1.50 a week. He told her, she said, that he was a carpenter, but she added that she had never known him to do a day's work. She had heard him say that he had relatives and friends in Pittsburgh, and she believed they sent him money to pay his rent, but as to the identity of these relatives or friends, Mrs. Ballard either could not or would not tell the newspapermen. Both Mrs. Ballard and a maid at the house asserted that Mahoney had never received a letter or message of any kind at his room.

"I think," said Mrs. Ballard, "that he received mail, but where he had it sent I don't know. It never came to the house."

Mahoney lived in one of a row of five-story brick flat houses on the north side of Fiftieth Street, just east of Third Avenue. He came there some time last November, bringing the old-fashioned and much-worn trunk and the dilapidated imitation alligator skin suitcase, which were seized by the police yesterday and removed to headquarters. He didn't talk much about himself except to tell that he had but little money, and that he was a carpenter by trade. He looked to be about 60 years old, and while he was neatly enough dressed they were plainly the clothes of a workingman.

A maid at 203 East Fiftieth Street was the first to identify pictures of Mahoney in the newspaper as the old man who roomed on the top floor. She told a Times reporter that he had acted eccentrically, but that she had thought him harmless.

"He used to come in and out of the house at all hours of the day," she said, "and I don't know when he worked. He never said much to any one. He would say 'Good-bye' and 'Good morning,' but that was about all. Sometimes he wouldn't talk to any one for quite a while, and then he would even shove the money to pay for his room under the door. He always paid promptly, but where he got his money from was a mystery to me, except I heard he got it from Pittsburgh.

"I never saw any one go into the house to see him, and I don't think he had many friends in this neighborhood, at any rate."

The detectives could not obtain any information that Mahoney, in conversation with any of the other roomers at the flathouse, had threatened the life of Mayor Mitchel or any other official. They did hear that he had once mentioned the name of Col. Goethals, and he had also spoken in harsh terms of the Masons and Odd Fellows. But when it came to pinning down the other tenants to any definite statement the detectives failed.

While Detective Frazer was in front of the house at 203 East Fiftieth Street a young man appeared. He was stopped by a newspaper man and told of what had happened. He asserted that he knew all about Mahoney.

"I won't tell you, though," he said. "Send a detective and I'll tell him all I know."

The detective went to the man's room, but after questioning him for half an hour learned nothing of value. The man admitted that his information about Mahoney was indefinite, and that probably no one in the house knew much more.

Several of the policemen of the East Fifty-first Street Station said last night that they had seen Mahoney on the street. It was his custom, they said, to take a walk about 5 o'clock every morning. He frequently asked policemen on post questions, and when they would not answer him, took their numbers and reported them at the station house. It was soon believed that he was a crank, and he was not taken seriously. It was said at the police station that he frequently took the numbers of as many as six policemen on one of his strolls and made reports about them. Patrolman McDonald told of meeting him once.

"How do you like your job?" he asked McDonald.

The policeman did not answer and Mahoney made a report about him to the Lieutenant.

SUFFERED FROM OLD INJURY.

Emanuel A. Busch, whose name, with the address 320 Broadway, was written in the diary of Michael P. Mahoney, is an attorney with offices in the Candler Building, 220 West Forty-second Street, and represents the assassin in a damage suit for $10,000. Mr. Busch filed a suit for Mahoney in the Supreme Court in the Winter of 1912, asking damages from a contractor named Pelt, who employed Mahoney as a bricklayer.

It is set forth in the complaint of Mahoney that a brick, through faulty construction, was dislodged two stories above him and fell on his head, inflicting serious injuries from which he never totally recovered.

Mr. Busch said last night that Mahoney was sent to him through a common friend. He had never seen the man before October, 1912, a short time after the accident. Mahoney altogether went to the offices of Mr. Busch about ten or twelve times, and each visit he made he complained of severe pains in his head from the injury caused by the blow from the brick.

The last time that Mahoney went to the office of his attorney he was distressed because he was out of money. Mahoney also complained that he was unable to get steady employment on account of his affliction, which partially disabled him. His counsel did not know whether he had any relatives in this country or not. He had never heard Mahoney mention any.

Neither did Mr. Busch know whether Mahoney was a member of any labor unions or similar organizations which might have led him to feel a grievance against the Mayor or the Corporation Counsel. He thought the old man was not affiliated with any organization whatsoever.

Father Henry A. Brann, rector of St. Agnes's Church, 141 East Forty-third Street, who was down in the diary as Mahoney's creditor to the extent of $150, could not be seen at the rectory last night because he had retired, and his assistant refused to disturb him. However, the priest's assistant was sure that Father Brann had read the afternoon papers, and had seen the pictures of the man who attempted to assassinate the Mayor. He said nothing then to indicate that the likeness of the old man was familiar to him. Father Brann's assistant said he never had heard the priest mention a loan of $150 to any one who would answer the description of Mahoney.

Robert C. Moore, a lawyer, also mentioned in the diary, with the address 401 Times Building, was not at his home, 325 Central Park West, up to a late hour last night, having telephoned his family that important business would keep him away during the most of the evening. His brother said he had never heard of any client of his brother's named Michael P. Mahoney.

John H. Feldscher, another lawyer, entered with the address Fifty-fifth Street and Eleventh Avenue, has an office at 787 Eleventh Avenue, and his home at 304 West 102d Street. Mr. Feldscher was asked at his home last night if he knew Mahoney, and he said he had never heard of the man before he was informed of the latter's name through The Times. He had seen the pictures of Mahoney in the evening newspapers, but they did not recall any of his clients to his memory. If he had ever met the man he could not remember when or where.

TO PUNISH ASSAILANT.

Whitman Says Grand Jury Will Act at Once.

In speaking last night of the attempt on the life of Mayor Mitchel, District Attorney Whitman said:

"The attack on the Mayor and the incidental shooting of Corporation Counsel Polk was a shocking occurrence, and it shows the danger to which public officials are subjected. The Mayor was properly guarded and will be even more so in the future, but no matter what safeguard surround a public official he cannot be protected against cranks and others at all times. An opportunity is sure to arrive where an evil-minded person has a chance to do the official bodily harm.

"The assailant will be arraigned in the Tombs Police Court before Magistrate Sims to-morrow morning. There will be no examination, as it will not be necessary. He will be committed to the Tombs on a charge of attempted homicide to await the action of the Grand Jury. That body will convene on Monday, and it is probable that an indictment will be found that day, or on the following day at the latest."

REMEMBERED IN PITTSBURGH.

Mahoney's Landlady Says He Was Queer at All Times.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, April 17.—Inquiry at 1,019 Vickroy Street, one of the addresses at which David Rose or Michael P. Mahoney was supposed to have stayed when in this city, revealed the fact that a man answering to the first name had rooms with Mrs. Martin E. Carney, who resided at that address two years ago. Mrs. Carney lives now at 1,618 Colwell Street, and after learning of the case said that in her opinion the man who attempted the assassination was the one who roomed with her.

"Two years ago when I kept the rooming house at 1,019 Vickroy Street David Rose stayed with me," she said. "He was treated for the year he stayed with us almost as a member of the family, but at all times showed a disposition to keep to himself. He told my husband and myself several times that he had been employed at the Westinghouse plant in East Pittsburgh. At other times he did carpenter work, but was never employed regularly. He left, and the next we heard from him was in a letter from New York City signed David Rose.

"Last Fall he came to our home again. He acted very queer and I was really afraid to let him stay. He remained about two weeks. His manner was flighty. A letter from New York came to the house the day before Rose left. It bore the name Michael P. Mahoney. Rose received and opened the missive and when questioned by Mr. Carney, Mahoney said that he was 'going under that name now.' The man never had any friends or relatives that I know of. He was a queer person at all times."

WIFE DEFENDS MAHONEY.

He Has Had Trouble Enough to Make Him Insane.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, Ky., April 17.—"I am not altogether surprised at my husband's action," said Mrs. Michael P. Mahoney, wife of Michael P. Mahoney, who attempted to kill Mayor Mitchel, when she was told of the attack to-night. Mahoney's wife has lived in this city for the last twenty years, at 116 East Front Street. With her lives her five children.

Unable to obtain employment in this part of the country, Mahoney left here nearly twenty years ago and has only been in Newport once since. That was five years ago. No member of his family has heard from him for the last two years, when he sent several letters from Pittsburgh.

"I never knew that Michael had lost his mind, but if he has I know that he has had enough trouble to cause him to do so," Mrs. Mahoney asserted. "Twenty-nine years ago we were married in Columbus, Ohio, where Michael was in the contracting business. He has a brother there now, John Mamoney, who is connected with the Police Department. Michael was in fairly good circumstances, but his money was tied up in some big contracts, and when he attempted to realize on his work he could not do so. He attempted to retrieve what he had lost by borrowing more, but he only went heavier into debt.

"He traded his business there for a farm in Clermont County, Ohio, and we all went there to live. Then a dispute arose over a fence that the former owner was to build on the place. There was considerable litigation and to satisfy the demands of the claims the farm was sold on a foreclosure. After that we moved to Belevue, Ky., and have lived in Kentucky ever since. My husband is a mechanical blacksmith by trade. He has worked wherever he could get employment, but has been beaten out of his money by employers everywhere. I last heard from him in Pittsburgh, two years ago."

REPUBLICAN CLUB SYMPATHY.

Olcott Dinner Guests Send Messages to Mayor and Mr. Polk.

Just as a dinner to ex-Congressman J. Van Vechten Olcott, the retiring President of the Republican Club of the City of New York, which was given in his honor last night by 250 of his associates at the clubhouse, 54 West Fortieth Street, was drawing to a close, ex-Congressman William S. Bennet, the toastmaster, rapped on the table for order. Mr. Bennet then, speaking gravely, said:

"In our city to-day there came near being a most shocking tragedy. Thankfully we recognize that this tragedy was averted. Will you men assembled here to-night not authorize me to send a message of sympathy to Mayor Mitchel, congratulating both him and the city on his narrow escape, and also authorize the sending of a message to Corporation Counsel Polk, who did suffer. I ask you to express your sentiments by a rising vote."

There was a scraping of chairs as every man in the room made haste to rise from his seat. The vote was unanimous, and Mr. Bennet then had the messages sent to the homes of Mayor Mitchel and Mr. Polk.

LIKE ATTACK ON GAYNOR.

Late Mayor Long Suffered from Assassin's Bullet.

Mayor William J. Gaynor was shot at by another crank. The predecessor of Mayor Mitchel was about to sail on a holiday trip to Europe on Aug. 8, 1910, and was standing on the deck of the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, saying good-bye to his friends, when John J. Gallagher, a discharged employe of the Dock Department, came up behind him and fired point-blank at him.

His shot entered the right side of Mayor Gaynor's neck and lodged in his throat. Robert Adamson, the present Fire Commissioner, who was then the Mayor's secretary, saw Gallagher shoot, and struck up his arm as he fired a second time. Then Commissioner Edwards hurled himself upon him and pinned him to the deck, but not before he had fired a third shot, which did no harm beyond grazing the Street Cleaning Commissioner's arm.

Mayor Gaynor was taken at once to St. Mary's Hospital in Hoboken and was there for several weeks before he was able to go to his home at St. James, L. I. For a few days considerable fear was felt for his life, but he was soon out of danger. The doctors, however, never felt able to remove the bullet from his throat and it remained there until he died on his voyage to Europe in search of health and strength for the last campaign. It was a continual source of worry to him, and frequently brought on severe fits of coughing, which his friends believed helped to wear him out under the strain of his arduous duties.

Gallagher was imprisoned in New Jersey, and after several months was brought to trial for shooting Commissioner Edwards. He was found guilty and sentenced to twelve years' imprisonment. Doubts were aroused as to his sanity, and he was soon removed to an asylum. There he died about two years after his attempt on the life of Mayor Gaynor, of paresis.

TEXT FOR MALONE.

Shot at Mayor Shows Disorder in Politics, He Says.

Dudley Field Malone, Collector of the Port, in speaking to one hundred members of the Brooklyn Bar Association last night at their rooms, 158 Montague Street, Brooklyn, took the attempted assassination of Mayor Mitchel as the basis for an attack on the newspapers which, he said, had been misrepresenting Mr. Mitchel and President Wilson. Mr. Malone said:

"The attempted assassination to-day was the outgrowth of a disordered mind and not of any Socialistic or Anarchistic programme. If there was not so much lurid exploitation of public men in the public press, then demented men would not come forward to strike down public officials whose desire is to serve the community even though their judgment differs from that of others.

"If certain editors in this country who have been reviling the President do not pause, stop, look and listen, they may be held to a very grave responsibility. After election a President is an American President and should be backed by the entire country.

"I say to you that the man who through property motives dares to send out through the columns of his newspapers such lurid misrepresentations of fact as he has been guilty of, who dares to call the President of the United States a traitor to his country, will have in his heart and on his head the responsibility for any harm that may befall the President."

O'Gorman on the Attack.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17. — Senator O'Gorman said this afternoon: "I am shocked at the news of the attack upon the life of Mayor Mitchel. The people of the City of New York are to be felicitated on his escape. I regret that Mr. Polk was wounded, but I sincerely hope that his injury is not serious. The assailant appears to be demented, and the act is that of a crazy man."

Gov. Glynn Inquires for Polk.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 17.—Gov. Glynn expressed regret at the occurrence in which Corporation Counsel Polk was injured. He inquired feelingly about the injured man's condition, but would make no comment on the affair.

NO PLOT INVOLVED, THE MAYOR ASSERTS

Mitchel Tells Press Club There Is No Reason to Fear Nihilism in This Country.

GRATEFUL FOR HIS ESCAPE

But Mayor Says It Is Hard That Others Must Share Hazards Which He Meets Willingly.

Mayor Mitchel was deluged with congratulations upon his escape from the bullet fired at him in City Hall Park yesterday at the dinner given in his honor at the New York Press Club last night. In introducing the Mayor, Toastmaster Edward Percy Howard said:

"Let us thank God the Mayor is with us to-night."

The guests, including ex-Gov. Sulzer, jumped to their feet and gave the Mayor a hearty cheer.

"I assure you that I, too, am very grateful that I am with you to-night," the Mayor said. "Both for the reason that has been alluded to by the toastmaster and also because I am always grateful for the privilege of meeting good friends on an occasion like this, and if I had never felt it before surely I would feel to-night that here I am among friends.

"I am only sorry that on this occasion your friend and my friend, John Hennessy, a member of this Press Club for so long, could not be with us, and I know that if he, to whom in no little measure I owe a debt for the success in the recent campaign were with us, it would fill the occasion to-night completely.

"The experience of this afternoon is, of course, one to impress itself on any man's mind. I said, in answer to a question put to me by one of the representatives of the press at the City Hall, that I had been almost expecting some such thing; not because I had any reason to expect it, not because there is any reason why such a thing should happen in a civilized community ordered by laws, as is ours, but because I know that life in a democracy, where there is progress, where new things are being established, is more or less of a battle, and in a battle almost anything is likely to happen And in a community as great as is New York, as complex as is New York, as cosmopolitan as is New York, there are always a few unfortunate, disordered minds that find expression for their illogical thought in such acts as that of this afternoon.

"Of course I am gratified for my own escape, but may I say that I do most devoutly thank God to-night for the escape of my good friend, that splendid fellow, one of the very best whom I have known, Frank Polk, and for the assurance that I had from his surgeon when I left the hospital late this evening that the wound, while it would prove painful and annoying and would incapacitate him for perhaps a couple of weeks, would not prove dangerous, and in all probability would not even prove disfiguring.

"It was suggested, I know, when this thing happened, and, in fact, there seems to be some basis for believing that it was the act of several who were in concert, and some people asked me if I thought that it was the result of any concerted plan by any group in the community. Now, I believe—I am very glad to be able to believe, and believe confidently—that we have not come to the point in this city or in this country, and that we never will where things of that kind are the result of concerted action by any group. We have not plots, we have not nihilism in this country. When such a thing as that does happen it is the product of the disordered brain of some unfortunate individual, as it was this afternoon. The man who does not think straight warps the facts that he partly gathers from the daily press in recording the action of government.

"I say I am happy to believe that we have not come to that point in this community, and it is for us who are charged with the duty of conducting the Government, to see that we so order it that we shall not come to that point; to see that the people of the city have the opportunity for the free expression of their own ideas, to use the language of Mayor Gaynor, that they are not 'bottled up,' that they have ample opportunity to express themselves, so that they keep within bounds of the law, and that they do no violence against persons or against property. I believe that, together with honest government on the part of public officials, is the best guarantee that we never will come to a time where we have to fear that such accidents are the result of any concerted action on the part of any group in the community."

"When I was elected to this office, I knew that with the responsibilities and duties of the office went some hazards. No man who had observed the affair of four years ago, when Mayor Gaynor was assaulted with as little cause and in a manner somewhat similar to that of this afternoon, could fail to realize that such things were possible in this city, and I am quite willing to assume with the responsibilities and the honors of the office such hazards as there may be.

"But I must say that it does seem unfair that any one else should have to take the consequences of the hazards that properly belong to me. When I stood up in the car to-day and looked about me—for I did not know at first what it was that had happened—and realized that there had been a shot and asked if any one was hurt, and Frank Polk answered that he had been shot, I said to him; 'Where did he hit you?' and he said; 'In the mouth.' I looked down and saw the blood flowing over his chin, and I had the fear that he had been shot in the same place as the late Mayor Gaynor. When I found, on examining his face, that the bullet had passed through the lip and had come out, I tell you it lifted a load from my mind that has made me feel very happy all the rest of to-day."

DISOWNED BY ANARCHISTS.

They Have Nothing Against Mitchel, Says Berkman.

According to Alexander Berkman, the Anarchist who once shot and seriously wounded Henry C. Frick, the man who shot at Mayor Mitchel yesterday afternoon could not have been an Anarchist.

"The Anarchists have no particular feeling against Mayor Mitchel, and do not consider they have any feud with him," Berkman said yesterday. "If the man who shot at the Mayor had attempted to assassinate ex-Police Commissioner McKay, it might have been said that it was because of the animosity against him caused by the recent clubbing of the Anarchists at Union Square by the police. Anarchists do not resort to assassination for fun, and the only time when it might occur would be when an individual Anarchist in a time of great political or revolutionary excitement might select a much-hated man for a mark."

GERMANY RIDICULES TAMPICO SALUTE

Regards It as the Climax of Wilson's "Absurd and Inconsistent" Policy.

SNEERING PRESS COMMENTS

"Notoriously Inadequate Military Unpreparedness" Held to Explain Our Attitude.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 17.—Germany finds only words of irony and ridicule in the exchange of courtesies with which the Tampico incident seems likely to end. The opinion is expressed that Huerta's extortion of a salute from the squadron which was to have bombarded his coast caps the climax of "the absurd and inconsistent" policy which President Wilson and Secretary Bryan have pursued in Mexico. The least hostile, but not the least significant, observation appears in the columns of the Government-inspired Lokal Anzeiger, which remarks:

"In the interest of American commerce, which has suffered grievously for months under the constant uncertainty of conditions in Mexico, the American Government should once for all pull itself together and adopt a more consistent foreign policy."

The Zeitung am Mittag says:

"No matter how the thing is explained, it cannot be denied that in this special case Huerta has proved himself the more clever politician. America has made itself ridiculous; let it console itself with the reflection that things might have been worse. Huerta might have demanded that the American squadron fire the first salute. That would not have been very agreeable for Admiral Badger, but it would have been quite consistent with the Mexican policy Washington has hitherto pursued."

The Neueste Nachrichten says:

"President Wilson obviously places more value on some tangible triumph of his prestige, no matter how insignificant, then on a real reckoning with Mexico. He is now busily building golden bridges for Huerta's retreat. President Wilson's Senatorial critics must not forget that the President hardly cares to assume the responsibility for war with America's notoriously inadequate military preparedness."

The Vossische Zeitung says:

"Hitherto the German synonym for a fiasco has been 'ein Nürnberger Schuetzenfest'; henceforth we shall speak of 'a Tampico salute.' President Wilson's readiness to reply to the salute of the bloodstained Huerta whom he has hitherto refused to recognize can easily be construed to mean that he has decided to abandon this attitude."

The Deutsche Tages-Zeitung says:

"We hope the report is true that Germany and France urged the United States to settle the Tampico incident amicably, and that at the same time they called the Washington Government's attention to the urgent desirability of utilizing the comedy of Tampico as a curtain-raiser for recognizing the Huerta Administration."

SEES DILEMMA FOR WILSON.

London Chronicle Thinks Salute Means Recognition.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Saturday, April 18.—The Daily Chronicle, in an editorial on Mexico, says:

"Neither party in this matter—though Gen. Huerta is of little account—can blame Europe if it finds it difficult to take the point at issue, as defined by Wilson and Huerta, entirely seriously. It reminds one of the situation created by the meeting of Anglo-Saxon and Latin in the ordinary intercourse of social life. The Latin lifts his hat; the Anglo-Saxon worries himself with the question: Ought he to do likewise, or would to do it be affected, an unnecessary truckling to the overceremoniousness of an impulsive race?

"In President Wilson's case the dilemma is more severe, because he asked for the Latin's hat to be lifted. If he lifts his own in return he has 'recognized' a man (and a Government) with whom he has no acquaintance, and desires to have none. If he does not, he is in danger of seeming to refuse to accept the apology which he himself asked for.

"We recognize Huerta as the de facto ruler of Mexico; the United States Government has so far refused to support their recognition. Now that it has agreed to accept Huerta's salute it must appear to recognize his position. It is that difficulty, and not any mere point of diplomatic ceremoniousness, which has caused the situation, so far not resolved, on the question of the salute."

THINKS INTERVENTION SURE.

London Spectator Says Huerta Is Merely Postponing the Inevitable.

LONDON, April 17.—In an article dealing with the Mexican situation, The Spectator says:

"It has come to this, that intervention, which has been delayed during a series of hideous murders and vast destruction of foreign property * * * is now being threatened in order to exact a mere formal obeisance to the American flag. It would be impossible to imagine a more complete Nemesis attending an idealistic and pacificist policy. All this is the direct result of the extraordinary delusion, which has never been harbored by any one but the pacificist, that you can dictate a moral code to an independent country and avowedly leave all thought of force out of the question."

The Spectator adds that, although the crisis may be relieved by President Huerta saluting the American flag, it is convinced that President Wilson's policy inevitably will lead to intervention, and the sooner the better.

"An even worse prospect," The Spectator says in concluding, "would be that President Wilson should revert to his policy of 'watchful waiting,' and that anarchy and murder and the annihilation of property should continue—to be followed, perhaps, by the massacre of foreigners—and that all the powers interested in Mexico should at last be reluctantly compelled to raise the most dangerous question of the Monroe doctrine and the responsibilities and rights of the United States in Latin America."

HUERTA PLANNED WAR DECLARATION

This proposal was rejected by direction of President Wilson, who expressed his determination to carry out the programmes planned for the Atlantic Fleet if the salute of reparation was not forthcoming under conditions satisfactory to this Government.

The Mexican Government's stipulation that the two salutes should be fired simultaneously dispelled much of the optimism that prevailed in Administration circles during most of yesterday. At that time the President and several members of the Cabinet were almost confident that the Tampico incident would be adjusted without resort to force. But Huerta's virtual defiance greatly increased the chance of hostile action, and while Secretary Bryan and some others of the President's confidants continued to express hopefulness, it was generally thought that the situation was more dangerous than it had been at any time before.

The Succession of Events.

The chronology of the last thirty-six or forty-eight hours with respect to the negotiations concerning the Tampico affair begins late Wednesday night or early yesterday morning, when the State Department received from Mr. O'Shaughnessy a cipher telegram in which he outlined a conversation he had held with President Huerta.

In that conversation Gen. Huerta expressed his willingness to fire the required salute to the American flag in reparation for the Tampico incident if this Government insisted upon it, but he maintained that Mexico had made all necessary amends through apologizing, and he expressed the opinion that the Wilson Administration was seeking to take advantage of his embarrassing position.

This dispatch, upon which the Administration based its belief yesterday that the Tampico incident would be adjusted diplomatically, was followed by another message from Mr. O'Shaughnessy, sent in behalf of the Mexican Government, asking whether the salute of reparation would be returned.

In his reply to these messages, Secretary Bryan gave assurance that the salute would be returned as promised by Rear Admiral Henry T. Mayo, commanding the squadron at Tampico, in his ultimatum to the commandant of the Federal troops at that place after the indignity put upon the Dolphin's men.

Nothing is given out officially to show whether one or two messages then came from Mr. O'Shaughnessy, telling of the insistence of the Mexican Government that the salute of reparation and the courtesy salute in acknowledgement of it should be fired simultaneously. The understanding is, however, that the proposal for a simultaneous salute, after having been rejected once by this Government, was repeated in a positive way.

Secretary Bryan, following a Cabinet meeting to-day, sent to Mr. O'Shaughnessy instructions to notify the Mexican Government that the United States refused to accept the idea of a simultaneous salute, but that as demanded by Admiral Mayo a salute of twenty-one guns would be insisted upon, the manner of returning the salute to be left to the American Admiral.

Definite Rejection of Huerta Plea.

This communication from Mr. Bryan is described as an "ultimatum." It is not an ultimatum in the sense that it fixes a time limit within which the Mexican Government must comply with this country's demand for a salute, but it is a definite rejection of Mexico's insistence on the simultaneous salute, and in the present temper of President Wilson it means that the drastic plan of action which has been tentatively outlined for the navy will be carried out unless Huerta modifies his position.

According to one report, Huerta is told in this message that no further argument about details for the salute will be tolerated, and that the only answer that will be accepted from him is an unconditional acceptance of Rear Admiral Mayo's original conditions. Twenty-one guns must be fired or serious consequences will follow.

In connection with the insistence by this Government that the terms of the original ultimatum presented by Admiral Mayo to Gen. Zaragoza must be complied with, official publication was made to-night of the text of the American naval officer's demands upon the Spanish commander at Tampico.

The purpose of the Administration in making public this document was to silence the criticisms that it had given way to a demand from Huerta that the salute of reparation be returned by the United States.

Admiral Mayo later extended the time period within which the salute should be given for another twenty-four hours, or until 6 o'clock Saturday evening. In the meantime an official report of the incident had reached Washington and Admiral Mayo was instructed to waive the time limit pending diplomatic negotiations which were being conducted in Mexico City.

Feared Rioting in Tampico.

While that is the official version for the delay in enforcing the demand, it became known this evening that the Administration was not anxious to rush matters, as there was danger of an uprising in Tampico over the incident, which might be directed against both the representatives of the Mexican Government and Americans in the city.

It was because of the fear that if the salute was fired ashore it would cause rioting, Admiral Mayo's demand that the United States flag be hoisted in a prominent position on shore and saluted there, was amended so as to permit the ceremony to take place on a vessel afloat.

This is one of the details to be arranged if the Mexican Government accedes to the demand of the United States that a salute for reparation for the Tampico incident shall be fired. It was explained at the Navy Department today that the requirements of the situation might be met by hoisting the American flag on the Dolphin and having it saluted by a Mexican ship near by.

The Navy Department has information that the Mexican Federal gunboat Progresso has returned to Tampico, and it is supposed here that she will carry out Huerta's part in the saluting programme if the Tampico incident is finally settled as this Government requires.

To make it plain that the United States Government in returning the salute would not be recognizing President Huerta, but only the Mexican Nation, this official statement was prepared and given out to-day by Rear Admiral Fiske, Aid for Operations in the Navy Department, following the request of Secretary Daniels:

The Aid for Operations:
To the Secretary of the Navy:
Subject—Article 1,194, Navy Regulations:

This article reads: "No salute shall be fired in honor of any nation, or of any official of any nation, not formally recognized by the Government of the United States."

This regulation is interpreted as a prohibition against firing a salute in honor of any Government which has recently come into being, or in honor of an official of such Government, if it has not been formally recognized by our Government. Any such salute would be considered as a recognition of that Government, and in order to escape from the consequences of such apparent recognition it would become necessary for our Government formally to disavow it.

In 1893 Rear Admiral Stanton, United States Navy, made the mistake of saluting the flag of Rear Admiral Mello, who was then in revolt against the Brazilian Government. The Brazilian Government complained to our Government, which promptly disavowed the salute and relieved Admiral Stanton from command.

Paragraph 1,194 is not interpreted as prohibiting the firing of a salute in honor of any nation of which the Government has merely passed from the hands of certain individuals to the hands of other individuals, even though our Government may not have recognized the new individuals.

For instance, our ships in entering Mexican ports have saluted the ports, and the salutes have been returned. This salute is considered merely as in honor of the sovereignty of the Republic of Mexico, and not in honor of any individuals who may have gotten control of the machinery of the Government. The salutes are national salutes, and not personal salutes.

B. A. FISKE.

Secretary Daniels said to-day that the General Board of the navy, to whom he referred the question, was unanimous in the view that a salute, fired in reparation for an injury, was always returned. His aids agreed with this view. Subsequently he asked his aids if regulation 1,194 forbade returning a salute, fired by a Government that had not been recognized by the United States, and all of them had advised him that salutes were invariably returned and were construed, where recognition had not been accorded, as fired in honor of the nation and people and not of any Government.

Still Prepared to Seize Ports.

No doubt remains in the minds of those best informed as to the situation that if the salute in reparation is not forthcoming the seizure of Vera Cruz and Tampico and a blockade of both coasts of Mexico will be ordered in accordance with the plan outlined by the President to members of the Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs and the House Committee on Foreign Relations who called on him Wednesday.

If in the opinion of Rear Admiral Badger, commanding the Atlantic Fleet, it is necessary to adopt measures of force right away, the President will go before the Congress with a request that the two houses sanction his plan to obtain reparation for the indignity offered the American flag and uniform at Tampico.

No orders have been issued to Admiral Badger by wireless to delay the progress of the fleet in its voyage to Tampico. High officials of the Navy Department said to-day that Admiral Badger's orders would not be modified in any way while the present situation existed. Admiral Badger, it was made known, had received instructions merely to proceed to Tampico.

Mr. Daniels announced also that the third division of the Atlantic fleet, which for some time had been getting ready for service in Mexican waters, would sail on April 26 or 27 and probably would relieve the ships of the second division.

Although the Administration had a temporary fit of the blues over the insistence by Huerta that a simultaneous salute should be fired, nevertheless an optimistic feeling was shown, based on the theory that Huerta was merely bluffing, and that ultimately he would accede to the demands of the United States. It is maintained by some officials that Huerta has little to gain and much to lose by engaging in hostilities with the United States. But it is realized that an apparent defiance of this Government may be helpful to him temporarily, and out of this grows the opinion that he is simply using the Tampico incident for domestic consumption.

Bluffing to Rouse Mexico?

Several reasons were advanced to-day to demonstrate that Huerta would not be disposed to clash with this Government. In the first place, it was pointed out that if Mexican ports were closed by blockade most of Huerta's revenues would be cut off. In addition, it was said, he would be unable to receive the rest of a considerable loan which he is understood to have obtained. Again, it is contended that the blockade would prevent the Federal forces from receiving arms and ammunition through the port of Vera Cruz.

But Huerta, it is realized, may be able to utilize his defiance of the United States as a means of exciting the patriotic fervor of the Mexican people and of bringing them to the support of the Huerta administration.

The recent course of this Government is said to have made the Constitutionalists suspicious of the alleged disinterested intentions of this Government toward Mexico, and it is reported that Huerta has already sent two envoys to see Gen. Carranza and Gen. Villa.

Despite all these possibilities, however, there is a strong belief here that Huerta will back down rather than take the chances of American intervention or being cut from supplies through a blockade that would not be equivalent to an act of war.

That the incident was not regarded in official circles as closed was indicated by the change in plans, which both the President and Secretary Bryan made when the messages came, showing Huerta's disposition to argue about details. The President will not go to White Sulphur Springs, West Va., until to-morrow night, and Secretary Bryan will not go to Florida until the whole question is adjusted.

The unofficial declaration from Señor Portillo y Rojas, Huerta's Minister for Foreign Affairs, that the return salute would be regarded as a tacit recognition of the Huerta Government received no attention from Administration officials, who pointed out that no such construction of the salute had been suggested by the Huerta Government in its formal communications with the United States.

"Recognition is not extended by inadvertence, but by intent," said a high Administration official to-night.

Secretary Tumulty said that had the Huerta Government interjected into the negotiations a desire that the salute be regarded as recognition, it would not have been considered for a minute.

SENATORS ANGRY AT HUERTA.

All Back President in Refusing to Yield on Salute.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Senators of both parties were angered to-day by the news that Gen. Huerta was still quibbling over the salute of apology. There was not a Senator who did not seem to approve President Wilson's determination not to recede from the original demand of Rear Admiral Mayo. The Senators take it for granted that the United States will return the Mexican salute, but feel that it must be as an act of grace and not as a stipulation wrested from the American Government by the de facto Mexican authorities.

"There will be not one sign of weakening from the demand of the United States," said Senator Shively of Indiana, Acting Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations. "As I understand it, in our first demand Admiral Mayo said that the Mexican salute would be returned. That is well enough, and I think we should return it under the ordinary rules of courtesy; but Gen. Huerta will gain nothing by insisting that the salute be returned gun for gun. There seems to be no fixed rule about these things, but we will not have the terms of the apology we insist upon dictated by Gen. Huerta."

Mr. Shively scouted the suggestion that something more serious than etiquette was involved in the difference over the salute. The suggestion has been made that, under cover of negotiations regarding the salute, the United States was trying to gain concessions in other directions or Huerta was seeking a promise of better treatment at the hands of the United States. As far as Mr. Shively knew, the sending of the fleet and everything connected with it had to do solely with the salute.

"If our demand for the salute had come originally from Washington," said Senator Hughes of New Jersey, "this situation might seem a little forced, but the truth of the matter is that our Admiral down there was being abused. He demanded what he considered fair reparation and everything that has happened since has arisen logically from our desire to support a servant of the Government. I certainly hope that we will recede in no particular from the original demand."

One prominent Senator said that Huerta's offer to apologize under conditions stipulated was about as complete reparation as a private citizen's offer to apologize for insults on condition that the insulted party bought a drink.

Mr. Sutherland of Utah, one of the prominent Republican lawyers on the Foreign Affairs Committee, warmly supported the President in his refusal to accept. Gen. Huerta's dictation as to how the return salute should be fired.

"What I think ought to be done," said Mr. Sutherland, "is to demand unconditionally that Gen. Huerta make the amende honorable by firing a salute without any stipulation as to our course thereafter. Of course, just as in the case of a personal dispute, the apology in due form would be courteously acknowledged by a similar salute. The question of apology is simply a question of reparation, which should be granted unhesitatingly by a nation as by a person admitting fault. When Gen. Huerta demands a return to his apology he does not really apologize."

"I cannot conceive," said Senator Fall of New Mexico, "that the Tampico incident was the only occasion for which the Administration decided to send the fleet to Mexico. There must be something beyond that. I have an idea that the President is convinced that the crisis might arise at any moment and that it would be advisable to have the fleet there to preserve order. This I do not know, but I prefer to suspend judgment for a few days at least to see whether this is not the case."

"Before this incident closes," said Senator Lodge of Massachusetts scornfully, "the United States will be expected to salute first."

There are some who think that the United States should have refused absolutely to consider the request for a return salute; that the flat demand should be "salute the colors!" and that this Government should then consider acknowleding the apology.

"Let Huerta salute," said Senator Chilton, "then we will make our mind about returning the salute."

Senator Borah insists that to salute the Mexican flag cannot be construed as anything else but recognition of Huerta's Government.

Representative Murdock, Progressive leader in the House, disapproves of returning a salute. "If we return a salute to those bandits," said he, "we might as well fire a few guns to the memory of Robin Hood, Raisuli or Jesse James."

TAKE IT AS RECOGNITION.

Huerta's Foreign Minister Says So of Our Return Salute.

MEXICA CITY, April 17.—José Lopez Portillo y Rojas, Mexican Foreign Minister, said at noon to-day that he believed the controversy between the United States and Mexico would be settled before night.

He asserted that the arrangement of the incident would result from negotiations between himself, President Huerta, and Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American Charge d'Affaires.

Señor Portilla y Rojas declined to say what was the basis for his belief in a speedy settlement, but stated that his Government would regard the return salute by the United States in response to the Mexican salute of the American flag as a tacit recognition of the Huerta administration.

THE TACOMA SAILS.

Cruiser Takes Aboard Eighty Apprentice Seamen at Newport.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., April 17.—The cruiser Tacoma sailed this morning for Tampico to join the Atlantic fleet, taking eighty apprentice seamen from the Naval Training Station here. Commander Nathan C. Twining was in fine fettle, as were the other officers and crew.

The vessel encountered rough weather on her trip from Boston, but the one injury was to the whistle, which was in constant use in the fog.

The ship will proceed to Tampico at full speed. She is in fine condition, having recently come out of dry dock at the Portsmouth Navy Yard.

MORE MARINES AT TAMPICO.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VERA CRUZ, April 17.—The American Consulate was advised to-day that the transport Hancock had arrived at Tampico with 950 marines, and that part of the fleet was on this side of Key West.

Excitement still prevails here among all classes as to the outcome of the Tampico incident. The publication here this afternoon of the news that President Huerta was willing to fire a salute if it was returned has caused much satisfaction, most Mexicans now realizing that they have a most clever ruler.

No considerable number of refugees has arrived here yet.

VERA CRUZ, April 17.—The first reference to the situation between the United States and Mexico growing out of the arrest of bluejackets from the gunboat Dolphin at Tampico, was published this afternoon by La Opinion. The newspaper devoted three columns to the story, which was under a Washington date.

According to the version of La Opinion, President Huerta offered to salute the United States flag if he were assured a reciprocal salute. Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American Chargé at Mexico City, transmitted Huerta's proposal to Washington and President Wilson agreed to it, according to La Opinion.

FLEET SAILING ON.

Badger Gets No Order to Halt—Infantry Drill on Flagships.

ON BOARD THE U. S. S. ARKANSAS AT SEA, By Wireless via St. Augustine, Fla., April 17.—Rear Admiral Charles J. Badger, commander of the Atlantic Fleet, received no orders from Washington to-day and the battleship squadron continued to press forward toward the coast of Mexico. Again to-day there was infantry drill and automatic gun practice on board the Arkansas.

Wireless reports received to-day on board the flagship indicated that the battleships Louisiana and Michigan were catching up with the main squadron at the rate of two knots an hour, and would join it off Tampico.

VALLEJO, Cal., April 17.—Orders to provision all available warships and prepare a battalion of marines for service on the Pacific Coast of Mexico were revived to-day, a few hours after they had been rescinded by a previous telegram from Washington.

A BLOCKADE WARRANTED.

Prof. Stowell Says Such a Course Would Be Amply Justified.

The United States has ample justification for blockading the Mexican ports and landing troops, according to Prof. E. C. Stowell, lecturer on international law at Columbia University and the temporary successor of John Bassett Moore, late counselor of the Department of State. Such action would not necessarily constitute war with Mexico. In discussing the situation, Prof. Stowell expressed the view that the trouble with Mexico was by no means at an end. He said, in part:

"The United States is justified in having recourse to any force necessary to secure respect for international rights and dignity. The blockade of Mexican ports or the landing of troops need not necessarily constitute war with Mexico. War is a situation which results from armed conflict between two independent communities. If the United States does not intend to make war, it depends upon Mexico whether she will allow the United States to use the force to protect our rights."

Concerning the plan of blockading or seizing Tampico or Vera Cruz, Prof. Stowell said:

"The United States might seize Mexican ports by way of reprisal and hold them until Huerta made redress. This would not constitute war unless Congress should make a declaration of war or Huerta should resist by force and make it a natural war."

Prof. Stowell was Secretary of the Second Peace Conference at The Hague in 1907, and Secretary of the American delegation at the Naval Conference at London in 1908. He is the author of several treaties on international law, among them being "Consular Cases and Opinions," published in 1909.

De Esteva Says Naval Salute Would Be for the Mexican People.

Manuel de Esteva, the newly appointed Mexican Consul General to New York, arrived yesterday from Vera Cruz on the Ward Line steamer Morro Castle, accompanied by his wife, who was Miss Calla Whitman of Philadelphia.

In a talk with the reporters at the pier the Consul General said that he had left Mexico City two weeks ago, when everything was apparently quiet. He felt confident that there would not be any conflict between the United States and Mexico.

When asked about the question of saluting the flag Consul General de Esteva replied:

"In my opinion, for the American ships to return the salute fired by the Mexican artillery to the flag of the United States would not be considered to mean that President Huerta's Government had been recognized by President Wilson's Administration. Saluting a flag is a compliment to the people of the country at large and not to the individual Government in power."

BRYAN IS HOPEFUL.

So He Says, Alluding to Mexico, Then Tells Story About Himself.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17. — Secretary Bryan smiled sadly this afternoon when surrounded by a group of newspaper men. He told them that all he could say about the Mexican situation was that he was hopeful.

"Is your hope, like your visit to Florida, deferred from day to day?" asked one of those in the room.

Mr. Bryan smiled a little less sadly.

"Well, you know, Pope says that hope springs eternal in the human breast," he remarked.

Mr. Bryan actually laughed out loud. For a moment his anxiety over the Tampico incident was forgotten. The questions recalled an experience of his young manhood, when he was not quite married, but wanted to be.

"Getting on the subject of proverbs," said the Secretary of State, "reminds me of the time I went to see my prospective father-in-law on a very important mission. I was all prepared for what I had to say and thought I would make a good impression by quoting the Bible. So I said in the line of my argument, quoting Solomon, that 'He that getteth a wife getteth a good thing.' But my prospective father-in-law was ready with a quotation from St. Paul: 'He that marryeth doth well, but he that marryeth not doeth better.' I told him then I thought Solomon was a better judge, as he had a thousand wives and Paul had never married."

As subsequent events proved this interview ended in a very satisfactory way for the future Secretary of State.

JUDGE'S CHARGE HITS VIVISECTION

No One Has Right to Inflict Pain on Dogs for Research, He Tells Jury.

DEFENSE ATTORNEY HISSED

Male Demonstrator Arrested, Three Women Ejected—University Upholds Accused Surgeons.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 17.—County Judge Bregy, in turning over to-day to the jury the case of Dr. Joshua E. Sweet, the University of Pennsylvania surgeon charged with cruelty to dogs following surgical experiments upon them, declared that "no one has a right to inflict pain or torture on a dog for the purpose of obtaining scientific information,' 'thus opening the way, in the opinion of many of the scientists and surgeons present at the trial, for the prosecution of all scientific men in Pennsylvania who experiment upon animals.

Attorneys for the prosecution—the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals—interpreted the charge as a declaration that vivisection was illegal in this State, and they declared that warrants would be issued immediately for physicians conducting experiments on animals.

The court's reference to vivisection came as a surprise to both sides, because the indictment against Dr. Sweet meant only alleged cruel treatment after operations and because testimony as to why these operations had been performed and other subjects pertaining to vivisection had been ruled out of the evidence on the trial of the case.

Law as Interpreted by the Court.

"To indicate a view on the part of these physicians that these operations upon dogs were made for scientific purposes to obtain information for the alleviation of human suffering, I charge you that the law of Pennsylvania does not allow pain and suffering, torment or torture to be inflicted upon dogs for any purpose except for the relief of the suffering of the dog itself. They have no right to torture the dogs or violate the law, as I have read it to you, for the purpose of obtaining scientific information.

"The law says that any person who is guilty of wanton and cruel torture of an animal shall be guilty of a crime. The law does not say they shall not be guilty if they do it for a scientific purpose. Scientific purpose does not excuse cruelty."

Physicians and surgeons of world repute and attorneys for the defense expressed the opinion that Judge Bregy's ruling would be carried to the United States Supreme Court, as the ultimate decision will be of the utmost importance to the world of science.

The defense to-day marshaled many distinguished witnesses. Dr. W. W. Keen, who yesterday was elected President of the International Surgical Congress, took the stand. So did Dr. Edward F. Martin, Professor of Surgery at the University of Pennsylvania; Dr. Allen J. Smith, the pathologist, a brother of Provost Edgar Fahs Smith of the university, and himself under a cruelty indictment; Dr. Charles H. Frazier, Professor of Clinical Surgery; Dr. Alfred Reginald Allen, the neurologist associated several years with the late Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, and a host of others.

As Attorney Murdoch Kendrick was summing up for the defense there was an outburst of hissing. Three women and one young man were haled before the Judge and identified, some by physicians, others by members of the jury panel, as among those who had hissed. The young man was arrested and the three women were put out of the room. The women were recognized as agents of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Dr. A. R. Allen testified that the experiment wherein a dog's back had been broken by dropping weights on it proved to him the first known remedy to relieve paralysis and prevent the almost certain death following injury to the spinal column.

Dr. W. W. Keen said he had been practicing in Philadelphia since 1862. He declared that the operations described would not hurt the dogs. Sawdust, he considered, was proper gedding for the vivisected animals and ordinary table scraps the best food for them.

Dr. E. F. Martin testified that the fod the university's dogs got was practically the same food he fed his own dogs. "It's the best food for dogs," he said. The ether given to the dogs "didn't hurt as much as barking your shin or pulling out a toenail."

Major Operations Least Painful.

"When," contiued the doctor, "a man gets up at night and stumbles against a chair he hurts himself more than when he has both legs cut off by a freight train. It is invariably true that major operations are less painful than minor ones. The proper healing for a dog is licking the wound. The dog knows what's best for it. As to eating table scraps or anything else, a dog has more sense than a human being. He eats what he wants and needs nourishment."

The defense called to the stand a woman physician, Dr. Ruth Webster Lathrop, professor of physiology at the Woman's Medical College, and Miss Madeline E. Smith, who for eleven years has been Superintendent of the university hospital. Miss Smith explained the impossibility of bandages getting in the scraps from the nurses' tables, the food which is fed to the dogs, and testified that fermentation was out of the question, as the kennel keeper took the scraps from the hospital kitchen not more than an hour and a half after meals.

The testimony of all the witnesses was that the dogs had not suffered either during or after the operations to any extent.

The jury retired at 2:40 and when no verdict has been reached at 5 o'clock the Court announced adjournment until Monday, when a sealed verdict will be rendered.

Dr. J. William White, President Emeritus of Surgery at the University of Pennsylvania, who was in court when the Judge's charge was delivered, would not comment on the court's interpretation of the law. After the case went to the jury the University of Pennsylvania authorities made public a report of the special committee of the Board of Trustees and a resolution adopted by the full board relative to the teaching work involving animal experimentation. The committee reported that the charges against the members of the Medical Faculty "were, as far as could be ascertained, absolutely without foundation."

The committee in its report further said: "Among medical men the practically unanimous opinion appears to be that all the great discoveries which have revolutionized medicine and surgery during the last fifty years have resulted directly from experiments on living animals ,and it could not have been attained in any other way. There can be no doubt that this work should be continued and encouraged in every possible way."

The Trustees adopted resolutions approving the report, and also approving the continuance of the methods of investigation in the medical department of the institution.

BOSTON, April 17.—It became known to-day that Mrs. Margaret Deland, the novelist, was operated upon for appendicitis at a private hospital in Brookline five days ago.

She rallied well after the shock of the operation and has recovered steadily. It is expected that she will leave the hospital within a week.

'SINCERE REGRET' IN COLOMBIA TREATY

counted noses, I hope that it will be ratified."

Senators said that they did not know when the treaty would reach the Senate.

An arrangement had been made by the Governments of the United States and Colombia that the text of the treaty should be made public simultaneously in Washington and Bogota on Wednesday, April 15; that is, publicity was to have been given to it in the morning newspapers of that day. On Tuesday, Senator Shively, acting Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, had a talk with Secretary Bryan, and afterward Mr. Bryan announced that the treaty would not be made public here.

Mr. Bryan said to-day that he did not know whether the treaty had been published in Bogota. The official draft had been mailed at Bogota, he said, but had not, of course, reached Washington. When it came, he said, it would be sent to the Senate.

In view of the publicity given to the treaty through the Temps, the Senate Committee probably will not withhold it from the public after its delivery to the Senate. Whether there will be a prior removal of the seal of secrecy could not be ascertained to-night. It is realized here that the State Department and the members of the committee may see the necessity of giving publicity to the document now that it has been disclosed in part.

The Temps version was probably a translation from the Spanish into French, and in a further translation into English may have suffered somewhat with respect to phraseology. The treaty was drafted in both English and Spanish, and one of the English drafts will be transmitted to the Senate.

At the Colombian Legation to-night it was said that the full text of the treaty had not been received there from Bogota.

CANAL READY FOR WARSHIPS

The Whole Navy Could Pass Through on Three Days' Notice.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, April 17.—A prominent canal official, when asked to-day to describe the present condition of the canal as to passage of warships through the Culebra slide district, said:

"Even the largest vessel of the navy could be passed on three days' notice to the dredging force. Vessels of ordinary draught may pass the channel now, and the dredges at work to-day can open up an absolutely adequate passage and keep an open waterway, so that the whole navy, if needed, could cross to the Pacific side."

Work on the fortifications and terminals is being rushed to the limit, more than 30,000 men being still on the payrolls.

'POD' ENTERS BERLIN IN HIS NIGHTSHIRT

Popular General's Ludicrous Adventure on a Sleeping Car.

LOSES VALET AND CLOTHES

But He Sends for an Ambulance and Goes to His Hotel Wrapped in a Blanket.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 17.—Gen. von Podbielski, who can dispute with the Kaiser, the Crown Prince, Prince Henry of Prussia, and Admiral von Tirpitz the distinction of being the most popular man in Germany, is the hero of an amusing sleeping-car episode.

The General, who is President of the German Olympic Games Council and is popularly known as "Pod," was journeying by night from Danzig to Berlin to attend the meeting of the council. He always travels with a faithful man servant, Heinrich. When the General uses a sleeping car it is Heinrich's business to put his septuagenarian master to bed, pack his clothes in a suitcase, and take the latter to his own compartment, in order that "Pod," whose waist line measures fifty-two inches, may not be unnecessarily crowded in his compartment.

When the General awoke on the morning in question, three-quarters of an hour from Berlin, no Heinrich was ready to dress him. He discovered that the carriage in which the valet was traveling had been detached in the course of the night, and with Heinrich was well on its way to the Russian frontier, 200 miles away.

A sleeping-car attendant attempted to relieve "Pod's" predicament by searching for a pasesnger of the General's dimensions who might be able to accommodate him with a "landing outfit," as he had lost everything except his nightshirt; but nobody with a waist line approximating fifty-two inches could be found.

The General himself saved the situation by telegraphing to the Friedrich-Strasse Station in Berlin to have a Red Cross ambulance await him. Into this he clambered on his arrival, wrapped in a blanket. From an adjacent hotel to which the "invalid" repaired he promptly telephoned to tailor, haberdasher, bootmaker, and hatter, and within an hour was equipped with a faultless outfit. In this he appeared punctually at the meeting of the Olympic Council, to which he related his experience with great gusto.

BAN "ROCKEFELLER FILM."

Berlin Police Forbid the Display of White Slave Pictures.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 17.—The police of Berlin have forbidden the public display of the American moving picture play described as "the Rockefeller film," which deals with the white slave traffic.

The Berlin motion picture men protested that the film enjoyed great popularity in the United States, where they said it was employed in the campaign against white slavery.

AUSTRIA WILL EXHIBIT.

San Francisco Appropriation of $200,000 Announced Yesterday.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, April 17.—The Austrian Chamber of Commerce to-day publicly announced that the Austro-Hungarian Government had decided to participate in the San Francisco Exposition. The appropriation will be $200,000.

The number of prospective exhibitors is already more than 400, representing the most important Austrian manufacturers.

NOBLEMAN HELD AS THIEF.

Arrested in Paris with Wife and Four Other Alleged Members of Band.

PARIS, April 17.—Count Maximilien von Montgelas, a Bavarian nobleman, and four persons who were with him were arrested in broad daylight to-day, after a hot chase on the boulevards, and charged with attempting to steal jewels valued at $120,000 from a jeweler's salesman. The Countess von Montgelas, who is the divorced wife of an Austrian officer, also was arrested after a search of her apartment, where a large quantity of property which the police say was stolen was found.

All those taken into custody with the Count and Countess are foreigners, and the police declare they formed one of the most redoubtable bands of cosmopolitan thieves and that the British and German Governments have issued warrants for the arrest of their leader, the Count, who is wanted on a number of charges.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

LIMA, April 17.—A deadlock has occurred between the political parties in Peru in connection with the election to choose a successor to the exiled President Billinghurst. The followers of Roberto E. Leguia, former First Vice President, to-day rejected the proposals advanced by the Pierola party as a solution of the difficulties. Commerce is suffering considerably owing to the uncertain condition of affairs.

CARACAS, April 17.—Special plenipotentiaries chosen by the Legislatures of the various States will meet here on Sunday to elect a Provisional President to head the new Provisional Government. The new President will remain in power until Congress elects a Constitutional Executive.

GERMAN JEW-BAITER DEAD.

Once Celebrated, Ahlwardt Lived to See His Propaganda Neglected.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 17.—Hermann Ahlwardt, once celebrated as a German Jew-baiter, is dead at the age of 67, from the effects of a street accident in Leipsic last week.

Ahlwardt, who once attempted to make a barn-storming anti-Semitic lecture tour of the United States, died a disappointed man, as animosity toward the Jews, which he devoted most of his life to fanning into a political force, has become less instead of greater since the days of his crusade. When Jew-baiting began to wane in popularity, Ahlwardt turned his hate to the Junker-Agrarians and Jesuits; but, although he harangued the entire country and other parts of Europe, he never made much impression.

He was elected to the Reichstag in 1892, after having spent five months in prison for slandering the famous firm of Ludwig Loewe & Co., manufacturers of the Mauser rifle. The Loewes, who are among the pioneers of German industry, were accused by Ahlwardt of selling inferior rifles to the German Army at the behest of the Alliance Israélite.

The anti-Semitic party as a political organization has dwindled almost into non-existence and utter powerlessness, though anti-Jewish prejudice as a social factor is of course still widely prevalent in Germany.

WESLEY DESCENDANT JAILED

Baker's Help, Who Lived a Dissolute Life, Charged with Forgery.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 17.—A descendant of Charles Wesley, the celebrated hymn writer and brother of John Wesley, appeared in the prisoner's dock at Clerkenwell Police Court to-day. He was Lawrence Wesley, aged 46, described as a baker's "roundsman," and was charged with stealing, forging, and uttering a check for £3 14s., ($18.10,) the property of Rosa Burgess.

The prisoner had already served a sentence for theft lately, and had lived a dissolute life. The Magistrate committed him for trial.

It was stated in court that the prisoner was the grandson of Samuel Sebastian Wesley, a celebrated composer, who was the grandson of Charles Wesley. He would thus be the great-great-grandnephew of John Wesley.

"HOLY GRAIL" SHATTERED.

Sacred and Ancient Relic in Genoa Cathedral Destroyed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Saturday, April 18—The Rome correspondent of The Daily News says that the so-called "holy basin" kept in the cathedral in Genoa, which is considered the oldest and most historically important relic in the world, has been accidentally broken.

The basin, which is an octagonal vase cut out of a precious stone akin to the emerald, is supposed to be the famous Holy Grail, which was venerated by the Knights Templar. It was brought to Genoa in 1101 by William Embriaco among the spoils of the conquest of Caesarea, and since that time has been held in the highest veneration.

The details of the accident are withheld, but it is known that the vase was broken in fragments beyond the possibility of repair.

MILITANTS WRECK THEATRE.

GREAT YARMOUTH, England, April 17.—The theatre on the great recreation pier here was destroyed to-day by a fire caused by the explosion of a bomb left under a seat by a militant suffragette.

At 4 o'clock this morning a violent explosion woke the inhabitants, and a few moments later the theatre at the end of the peir burst into flames. It was recently rebuilt at a cost of $100,000.

The usual suffrage literature was found strewn along the pier and on the beach, and it was assumed that suffragettes had attended last night's performance in the theatre and when they left placed a bomb with a slow fuse attached under one of the seats.

WAS INSANE, AS HE SAID.

Late Dr. W. T. Kirby's Contention Proved by Examination of His Brain

CHICAGO, April 17.—A tumor at the base of the brain of Dr. William T. Kirby, former private banker, who died here yesterday, was found to-day by physicians conducting an autopsy. Dr. Kirby had requested that his brain be examined to prove his contention that he was insane.

Physicians who conducted the autopsy said the late physician-banker was right when he declared he was insane during the period that closed his career as a banker.

BRITISH EMPLOYES SHARE FORD PROFITS

American Manufacturer Announces the Transplanting of His Plan.

HE SETS $250,000 ASIDE

From This Sum Wages of $15 a Week Will Be Paid to Men 22 Years Old and Upward.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 17.—It was officially announced to-day that the Ford Motor Company had decided to extend its profit-sharing scheme to employes in Manchester and London and that $250,000 had been set aside for the benefit of employes during the current year.

Working hours will be reduced from fifty to forty-eight per week in the works and offices at Old Trafford and in the showrooms in London. The earnings of all male employes 22 years of age and upward will be 30 cents an hour, equal to $15 a week, provided their mode of life is deemed satisfactory.

An official notice issued to the workers says:

"As and when employes are passed as eligible the payment of participation in the profits will be added to their wages and paid weekly."

Employes below the age of 22 who are the sole support of their families will be included with their elder fellow-workers in the full benefits of profit sharing.

DUKE TO PLAY AUCTIONEER.

Marlborough Will Sell Part of His Own Estates on May 6.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 17.—The Duke of Marlborough proposes to act as his own auctioneer on May 6, when some of the property on his Oxfordshire estate will be offered for sale.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 17.—The antarctic expedition of J. Foster Stackhouse will not sail in August, as has been announced. It is hoped, however, that arrangements may be completed for the departure of the Discovery either in November or early next year.

Chinese Bandit Lost 2,000 Men.

PEKING, April 17.—"White Wolf," the notorious brigand, lost 2,000 of his followers, killed or wounded, in yesterday's battle with the regular troops at Li Chuan-hsien, according to the official report. The crushing defeat of the brigands occurred after they had captured and looted the town of San Yuan-hsien.

Liner Majestic Sold for Junk.

LIVERPOOL, April 17.—The White Star Line, in view of the fact that the 50,000-ton Britannic will soon be placed in commission, to-day sold the Majestic to be broken up. The price said to have been paid for the old liner is $125,000.

Slight Earthquake in Martinique.

FORT DE FRANCE, Martinique, April 17.—An earthquake occurred here at 7:30 o'clock this morning. No serious damage was caused.

ACQUIT DEISO OF MURDER.

Chauffeur Who Caused Two Deaths Freed by Jury.

After a trial lasting five days Anthony Deiso, a chauffeur, who was charged with murder in the first degree as a result of the running down by an automobile of Emily V. Roode, an infant, and Robert Scott, a middle-aged man, at 225th Street and White Plains Avenue, on July 30, was acquitted last night by a jury in the Criminal Term of the Supreme Court. The infant was killed instantly, and Scott died in the hospital the next day.

The prosecution offered testimony that Deiso had been racing down the avenue just before his car ran on to the sidewalk. The chauffer's defense was that his stearing gear got out of order.

FOR EAST SIDE HOME.

The Mayor and Mrs. John Purroy Mitchel head the list of patrons and patronesses for a benefit for the East Side Home and Day Nursery which will be given in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf on Monday. The object of the benefit is to raise $10,000 for the enlargement of the home and for increased equipment. The home is at 326 East 121st Street, and now has accommodations for only eighty children.

On the programme for the benefit, which will begin at 11 A. M., are Miss Miriam Naftel, 6 years old, and Everett Hodson, 7 years old, of the Henderson School of Oratory and Dramatic Arts, who will appear in a dance. Modern dances, including one called the "Torpedo Waltz of Madrid," will be demonstrated, and in the evening prizes will be given at a costume ball.

Among the patronesses are Mrs. James Speyer, Mrs. J. S. Doyle, and Mrs. Marian Chamberlain Robinson. J. Lynch Pendergast, J. S. Doyle, and Almuth C. Vandiver are patrons. The Mayor will open the affair with a short address.

CHARGES BLACKMAIL PLOT.

Mrs. Duke's Lawyer Argues for Reopening of Pence Divorce.

Argument on the application of Mrs. Lillian N. Duke, divorced wife of James B. Duke, millionaire tobacco merchant, to reopen the divorce action of Mrs. Katherine Pence, who got an interlocutory decree from her husband, ex-Congressman Lafayette Pence, was heard yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Scudder in Brooklyn. Decision was reserved. Justice Scudder gave counsel until Tuesday to file briefs.

Mrs. Duke wants the Pence divorce case tried again, so that she can defend herself as the unnamed co-respondent in the action. Benjamin F. Spellman, her counsel, told the court that Mrs. Duke did not know she was a defendant in the suit until the day of the trial. He charged also that his client was the victim of a blackmailing plot.

RABBI OPPOSES EXECUTIONS

Sing Sing Chaplain Advocates Movement to Abolish Capital Punishment

The Jewish chaplain of Sing Sing Prison, the Rev. Dr. Jacob Goldstein, who ministered to three of the gunmen put to death there on Monday, preached against capital punishment in his sermon last night to the congregation in the Beth-Sholem Synagogue at Bensonhurst, of which he is the rabbi. At the conclusion of the services the congregation, which filled the synagogue, arose and approved his suggestion for the organization of the New York Society for the Abolition of Capital Punishment.

"I am absolutely certain from my experience with the gunmen that at least one of them put to death was innocent of the crime for which he was executed," said Dr. Goldstein in his sermon.

"Capital executions, in the first place, do not always punish," he said, "because mistakes may be made and not discovered until too late; and, second, society, which does not provide proper care for the young, has no right to kill; it is against civilization.

"The gunmen were not as bad as they were represented. 'Whitey Lewis,' who wanted to make a speech at the death chair, appeared to be more concerned about what people would think of him and his companions after they were gone than he was of facing death."

The lack of sufficient playgrounds and rational enjoyment for children who are forced to seek life in the city streets and mingle with evil companions, said the rabbi, were often the cause of crime and the making of gunmen. He intends to call a mass meeting of his congregation and others interested to form the society and elect officers within a few days.

SEEK GUNMEN'S WITNESS.

Kalmanson Is Missing from Haunts Here and in Buffalo.

Dispatches from Buffalo last night said that the police of that city were searching for Samuel Kalmanson, one of the witnesses who testified for the gunmen at the hearing on their application for a new trial, held before Justice Goff, on April 11.

Superintendent of Police Regan of Buffalo was asked by District Attorney Whitman to keep track of Kalmanson. Kalmanson testified that he saw Harry Vallon standing on the running-board of the Rosenthal murder car, and that he saw him threaten the chauffeur.

Kalmanson wrote from Buffalo about two months ago to Joseph A. Shay, then attorney for ex-Lieut. Charles Becker, that he had something of importance to tell. Mr. Shay referred his letter to Charles C. F. Wahle, attorney for the gunmen, and Mr. Wahle got in touch with Kalmanson. The witness was put under heavy fire by District Attorney Whitman at the hearing, and since that time has been missing. Mr. Whitman's men have been unable to find him at his old haunts in this city. Mr. Whitman believes that agents of Becker talked to Kalmanson and shaped his testimony. He wants to find him and examine him, as he did Karl Dresner, the tailor's cutter, who has confessed to perjury in the gunmens' last legal fight.

Dresner appeared before District Attorney Whitman yesterday for his third questioning. He fixed the amount of money which he received at $12, but refused to say who gave it to him. Mr. Groehl will talk with him again to-day.

Laborer Then Threatened to Murder His Victim's Sister, but Her Pleas Led Him to Spare Her.

Special to The New York Times.

HUNTINGTON, L. I., April 17.—Weak from insufficient food and suffering from exposure, Joseph F. Fowler, the young farmhand who killed his employer, Frank P. Sammis, early Wednesday morning with an axe while the farmer was sleeping in his home, between here and Greenlawn, was arrested this afternoon in Kings Park, L. I., a village forty miles from this place. He had attempted to steal a two-pound steak from a butcher shop and was arrested first for the theft. He was identified as the murderer later.

Fowler asked the butcher for the steak, and, after the butcher had cut and wrapped it, he grabbed it from the counter and ran out of the front door. The butcher ran after him, calling "Stop Thief!" Frank Cusick and John Pattiky, two young laborers of Kings Park, were passing the shop, and started in pursuit of Fowler when they heard the butcher's cry. Fowler had a start of 200 feet or more, but he was so weak from hunger that he staggered as he ran. He got to the edge of the woods, about a quarter of a mile from the butcher shop, when Cusick and Pattiky caught him. He fell to the earth at their first touch, being too exhausted to resist them.

No one in the crowd that followed Fowler after his arrest recognized him, and he was arraigned before Justice of the Peace John S. Kelly in Kings Park for petty larceny. Justice Kelly had read a description of Fowler, though, and suspected that the prisoner was the murderer. He telephoned to Justice of the Peace Allison E. Lowndes of this place, who went to Kings Park at once in an automobile, taking with him Otto Schmidt, a hotel keeper of Greenlawn, who knew Fowler well. As soon as Schmidt saw the prisoner he identified him as the murderer.

Fowler refused to talk. He would neither admit nor deny his identity. He engaged Charles E. Partridge of Northport as his counsel. He was locked up in the jail here and will be arraigned for examination at 4 o'clock to-morrow afternoon before Justice of the Peace Lowndes. The dead farmer's sisters, Miss Nellie Sammis and Mrs. Mary Smith, who were in the house when Sammis was murdered, will appear as witnesses. They will go from their brother's funeral, which will be at 2 o'clock, to the hearing.

Ever since Fowler committed his brutal murder posses of farmers have been looking for him. It was thought that he was hiding in the woods, but none of his pursuers supposed that he had got so far away as Kings Park. He must have walked the distance, because every train and conveyance has been watched closely.

Fowler had intended to kill Miss Sammis after murdering her brother. He appeared at her door with the bloody axe in his hand and told her of his crime, saying that he would kill her next. She pleaded with him, recalling her kindness to him, and he changed his mind and left the house.

The motive for the crime has not been established, but it was said last night that Fowler told a friend several days before the murder that he had a grudge against Sammis and expected to "get even."

JOINS TOBACCO INSURGENTS

Reynolds Company Comes Out for an "Open Market."

The R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, which ranks next in size to the American, P. Lorillard, and Liggett & Myers among the entities resulting from the disintegration of the old Tobacco Trust, followed the lead of the others yesterday by declaring an "open market." This means that it will no longer recognize the Metropolitan Tobacco Company as its sole distributing agent in this city.

The alleged monopoly given to the Metropolitan Tobacco Company by the refusal of the four companies named, as well as other fragments of the old trust, which has been under attack by the Department of Justice, is thus pretty thoroughly broken up, although the independent manufacturers and jobbers maintain that it still occupies an illegal position because of its size and intrenched power.

BIDS FOR MUSEUM WINGS.

P. F. Kenny & Co. Offer to Build Them for $624,095.

Bids for the construction of the two wings of the Metropolitan Museum of Art for the housing of the Morgan and Altman collections have been opened by the Board of Park Commissioners. The lowest bid, $624,095, for the two wings, was that of P. F. Kenny & Co. of 33 Old Broadway. The highest bid was $755,000.

The Commissioners did not award the contract, but sent the lowest bid to the Controller, who probably will award the contract to Kenny & Co.

The two wings must be completed in 500 days from the time of awarding the contract. The wings are to have two stories and basements. The largest wing will measure 204 feet in length and 148 feet in width. The other will be 138 feet long and 107 feet wide.

MAY INVOLVE POLICE IN MOTOR THEFTS

District Attorney Whitman Following Trail Leading to Captains and Detectives.

ANOTHER ARREST MADE

Insurance Men Implicated in "Reward" Frauds—Six Indictments Against Gargare.

With Grand Juries here and in Lakewood, N. J., grinding out indictments against men who have been engaged in the business of stealing and selling automobiles, the situation here took a turn yesterday where it became probable that police officials, including half a dozen precinct Captains, would become involved.

It became known at the District Attorney's office that the police record, so far as it involved the catching of automobile thieves, was highly unsatisfactory to Mr. Whitman.

Mr. Whitman transmitted to Police Commissioner Woods statistics showing almost a total failure on the part of the police to obtain results until Deputy Commissioner Rubin took hold of the situation and began to work in co-operation with Assistant District Attorney Deuel, who was assigned to the case by Mr. Whitman.

With the statistics it was said that Mr. Whitman transmitted the names of detectives, policemen, and Police Captains whose records in connection with automobile stealing he thought would bear investigating. Some of the detectives named on the list are believed to be implicated in widespread plans to obtain rewards for recovering stolen cars by processes that left the thieves perfectly free to go out and steal more cars.

In the same scheme insurance adjusters became involved. The adjusters "tipped" the thieves, it is charged, as to the names of persons taking out insurance on high-priced automobiles. It would then be the part of the thieves to steal the cars, after which the insurance adjusters would notify the insurance companies that they had anonymous notes telling them how the cars could be recovered by paying up to $1,000 in rewards.

Trade in Stolen Motors.

The names of Police Captains were included on the District Attorney's list for the reason that in their precincts regular depots were permitted to become firmly established at which a trade in stolen automobiles was carried on. At one of these depots Frederick F. Goodman, now out on $7,500 bail awaiting trial as an alleged automobile thief, was charged with carrying on a general metal engraving business, with a full equipment of metal dies and engraving tools for altering numbers of stolen automobiles, so that when restored to service they could not be identified. It is said that Goodman was the head of a large gang to whom word was carried of danger after orders were sent out for the arrest of its members.

The attempt to arrest this gang was made as a result of a dare to the District Attorney from insurance companies, it was learned yesterday, and the point made by the insurance companies in making the dare was that they knew the police were in collusion with the crooks and would make a fizzle of any arrest order sent out.

Mr. Whitman let it be known that it was decidedly a fizzle, and the policemen sent to make the arrest reported that "all the birds but one had flown the coop." Before the arrest was attempted insurance men had taken Mr. Deuel to the Goodman establishment and had shown him large piles of loose materials, consisting of tires, spare wheels, and accessories. The police report of the raid upon the place failed to show, however, that anything had been discovered there to indicate the arrested man's guilt. It was only when the Assistant District Attorney and insurance officials insisted on visiting the place in person that the police discovered the large supply of accessories. They represented the accumulation of years of activity in theft of automobiles, according to the insurance people, who said they had known of the existence of the place for a long time, but had despaired of ever getting the police to act against it.

Not an Arrest Last Year.

In the statement sent to Commissioner Woods Mr. Whitman called his attention to the fact that in October last year thirty-one cars were reported stolen, whereas since the first of the year practically none had been stolen. Compared with the record of twelve arrests made this year and no new cars stolen Mr. Whitman called attention to the fact that of 258 cars stolen last year only 70 were recovered and not a single arrest was made.

Another Arrest Made.

Another arrest was reported last night. Patrick Lupo, a hackman, was taken in and held on a short affidavit. Mr. Deuel made it clear in telling about the arrest of Lupo that the evidence, while enough to cause him to be held on a charge of stealing an automobile, was by no means conclusive. Lupo, Mr. Deuel explained, was not one of the leaders in the gang it is hoped to break up, but appeared merely to have served as a go-between in the sale of a car. This automobile, which was stolen on Jan. 13, was recovered Thursday night, and was restored to its owner yesterday.

In tracing its history after being stolen it was found that it had been sold for a ridiculously low price to a Brooklyn resident, who sent it to a repair shop to be overhauled following a collision. In the repair shop it came under the observation of Detective Hughes, and the arrest of Lupo followed. He will be arraigned in the West Side Police Court this morning.

"Chauffeurs with criminal instincts seem to be at the centre of the automobile stealing gang," said Mr. Deuel last night. "We believe that Fred F. Goodman alone handled over 100 cars, while half as many have been traced to his agent in Brooklyn, Joseph Mackle, who is now in the Tombs awaiting trial. Sporting devotees who were winning 'to take a chance' were the principal type of buyers. Of course, it would be hard for a man who paid $800 for a $5,000 automobile to convince himself that he was buying from entirely trustworthy persons."

In Brooklyn the case of a well-known race track man was before the Kings County Grand Jury. It was charged that he received a stolen automobile, and restored it to service after paying to have the wheels repainted and a new license number provided for it.

Tea Dance for Darrach Home.

A tea dance was given yesterday afternoon at Delmonico's for the benefit of the Darrach Home for Crippled Children, at 118 West 104th Street. There was general dancing. Mrs. B. E. Martin is the President of the home. The patronesses included Mrs. Charles E. Warren, Mrs. Charles H. Marshall, Mrs. E. M. Munsill, Mrs. Alfred Morris, Mrs. S. W. Geissenhainer, Mrs. Henry Stats, Mrs. S. B. Skelding, Mrs. W. L. Bauer, and Mrs. Martin.

Men's and Young Men's Spring Suits, $19.75

The range of fabrics includes:—

Shepherd Checks, Tartan Plaids,
Pencil-Stripe Worsteds,
Blue Serges and Unfinished Worsteds, and many other of the newest weaves.

Narrow shoulders, semi-form fitting. The Collar has the soft English roll, with narrow silk-bound edge.

Young Men's Smartly Tailored Suits, $14.75

The styles most wanted are the English sack models, with soft roll fronts, 2 and 3 button, patch pockets with cuffs on sleeves.

Youths' Suits with Long Trousers, $12.75
Ages 14 to 20.

In fancy mixed cassimeres, cheviots and blue serges, in nobby patterns and colors.

The coats have the English cut. In the assortment will be found Norfolk coats and trousers.

Just as much care has been taken in tailoring these garments as in the higher priced suits.

Men's High Grade SUITS which were $18.50 and $19.75, now $16.75

Small lots remaining after last week's great sale. Fancy mixed worsteds, cheviots, gray tones in checks and plaids, cassimeres, blue-and-white pin stripes; smart English and conservative models in sizes to fit every man; style and quality of the best.
Fifth Floor, Broadway.

New Flexible DERBIES and SOFT HATS for Men & Young Men

The Macy Men's Hat Department has not in the past been all that our fondest hopes could picture. The fact of the matter is, it has lagged behind, in the store's march of progress.

We have another story to tell now, for the Hat Department has been spruced up wonderfully this Spring. It has been stocked with all kinds of up-to-the-minute Hats and Caps, and the end is not yet. Before long we shall be in a position to boast of this department.

One thing the men of New York can be assured of—They will find at Macy's the best Hats made, and at "Lowest-in-the-City" prices.
Main Floor—35th Street.

Flexible Derbies, Spring Models, $1.98

These hats readily conform to the shape of the head. We have three of the newest blocks from which to make a selection.

The felt is of the best quality and is fast black.

Finer Derbies up to $4.96 for the famous "Delion," imported from France. They are the highest type of Derby made.

Soft Hats, Mushroom Shapes, $1.98

We have finer grades of the same style hats at $2.97.

R. H. Macy & Co. are the sole New York representatives of the famous "Delion" French Silk Hats. The tapered, flat brim silk "tapper" is worn this spring by all careful dressers.

A British-American Agreement Among These

Men's Spring Overcoats At $23.50

For $35, $40 and $45 Grades

All united by the common bond of pleasing the smartly-dressed men of New York.

But because they should now be carrying out their mission, these cool Spring days, instead of merely having good intentions, we mark those remaining in our stock at a price which shows savings of anywhere from $12.50 to $22.50.

The English Coats, in their rough-and-ready weaves and cut, suggest themselves as pleasing companions for country motoring trips.

The American Coats have a dignified air that comports well with their own idea of their high position in overcoat society.

FIRE TAKES 11 LIVES; STARTED IN RUBBISH

GROSS NEGLIGENCE CHARGED

Blaze's Origin in Rooming House's Basement—Thrilling Rescues by Police and Firemen.

Fire Marshal John P. Prial will begin an exhaustive investigation this morning to determine who, if any one, should be held criminally responsible for the fire early yesterday morning in the five-story theatrical rooming house at 741 Eighth Avenue, near Forty-seventh Street—an account of which was printed in the late editions of THE TIMES yesterday—when eleven persons rooming in the house lost their lives and a score or more were injured, four of them seriously.

That the fire was due to the gross negligence of some one was first suggested by Fire Chief Kenlon when he traced the origin of the blaze to a pile of excelsior and other inflammable rubbish which had been left in the basement of the rooming house at the bottom of the stairwell. The first effort of the Fire Marshal will be to determine who was responsible for this rubbish being where it was.

Among those subpoenaed to appear as material witnesses in Mr. Prial's office at 10 o'clock this morning are Edward Emkes and his wife, the proprietors of the rooming house, and George Wilson and his wife, the colored janitors of the building. The manager and other employes of the Woolworth Five and Ten Cent Store, on the ground floor of the building, will also be questioned.

Late yesterday afternoon Fire Marshal Prial said that he could make no statement forecasting the result of his investigation. The only point cleared up was that nothing had been discovered to justify a suspicion that the fire was of incendiary origin. Coroner Timothy Healy prepared to begin an investigation of his own, but abandoned it when he learned that the Fire Marshal would go into the matter thoroughly to-day. Mr. and Mrs. Emkes and Wilson were to have been the first witnesses before the Coroner.

Four Women and a Child Died.

Of the dead six were men, four women and one 4-year-old girl. All were either burned or suffocated, except one man, who jumped from a fifth story window. The bodies of three men remained unidentified last night, two of them burned beyond recognition. Their identity can be only guessed at after Emkes has made up the list of missing from the register of the forty or fifty persons who roomed in his house.

THE DEAD.

DAVIS, MRS. GEORGE C., 35 years old, an actress known as "Patsy Mafera." Died of suffocation and burns in the Polyclinic Hospital four hours after being removed from the burning building. She was the wife of a vaudeville actor.

DAVIS, MURIEL, her daughter, 4 years old. Found suffocated by her mother's side.

WALLACE, CHARLES O., 46 years old, an actor, formerly of Providence, R. I. Was ill in his room on the fifth floor and was suffocated in bed.

WALLACE, MRS. MARY, his wife, 32 years old, an actress, formerly of Wilmington, Del. Suffocated.

Unidentified man, about 35 years old, 5 feet 10 inches in height, weighing 175 pounds. Killed by jumping from fifth story window to areaway behind building.

Two unidentified men so badly burned that no description of them is possible.

INJURED, IN HOSPITAL.

BAKER, HARRY, 25 years old, burns about the face and body.

Many others were treated for various injuries by the ambulance surgeons at the fire, and Edward McNally, 24 years old, went to the Polyclinic Hospital with a badly burned hand, but was able to go to the home of friends after treatment. It was said at the hospital last night that all four were resting comfortably and would recover unless complications set in.

Saved from 50-Foot Fall.

Capt. Thomas W. Smith of Engine Company 2, whose left knee was badly wrenched while he was rescuing Louis Boylan, one of the roomers in the house, was reported doing well last night. Capt. Smith was in a rear room of the house at 301 West Forty-sixth Street when he saw Boylan opposite him in a fifth floor window of the burning building. There was an air shaft five feet wide between the two men, across which Capt. Smith stretched a ladder. He had crawled out on the ladder and had just caught Boylan's hand when the ladder broke and both men swung down, being saved from a 50-foot fall only by the firemen who were holding Capt. Smith's left leg. The firemen succeeded in drawing both men into the room they were in, but Capt. Smith's knee was wrenched by the jerk when the ladder broke.

There were many other thrilling rescues by both firemen and policemen. Many persons were brought down the front of the building on ladders put up by the firemen. Others escaped by fire escapes in the rear of the building.

The bodies of all the dead except those of Mrs. Davis, Muriel Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace, and one of the unidentified men were found in the halls. The persons were evidently attempting to get to the roof of the building when the flames and smoke overtook them. Starting as it did at the foot of the stairs the fire went up the stairwell as it would a flue, so that escape by the stairs was impossible. Almost all those who were in the building were in bed when the fire started. Those who escaped did so in their night clothes.

All the eleven bodies were held at the Morgue last night by order of Coroner's Physician Ray, who refused to release any bodies to undertakers and friends of the dead. Several applications for bodies were made, but Dr. Ray said that he would let no body go until its identification was positive and some relative appeared to take charge of it.

CARRIES BODY 17 MILES.

Engineer Didn't Know He'd Killed a Man Until Train Was Stopped.

The body of Louis Merchensano, 58 years old, a prosperous farmer of 54 Malcolm Street, Garfield, N. J., was carried seventeen miles last night on the cowcatcher of a Wells Fargo express train of the Erie Railroad before the engineer of the train knew that he had struck one one.

Merchensano attempted to drive a one-horse wagon across the Erie tracks at the Somerset Street crossing, near Garfield. Just as the wagon was squarely on the track the westbound express struck it. The horse was thrown fifty feet and killed. The wagon, loaded with farm implements which Merchensano had purchased in Passaic, N. J., was demolished.

As the train was speeding through Hawthorne, N. J., a man standing on the station platform saw the body on the cowcatcher. He told the ticket agent in Hawthorne, who telegraphed to the agent at Waldwick, N. J., to stop the train. The engineer was overcome when he saw the man's body on the cowcatcher of his engine. He said that he had not known that the engine had struck anything. According to persons in Garfield, the alarm bell that is supposed to ring when a train is approaching the Somerset Street crossing was out of order last night and did not warn Merchensano of his danger when he drove upon the tracks. There is no gate and no gateman at the crossing.

PASTORS' MINIMUM WAGE.

New England Methodists Would Place It at $850 a Year.

MALDEN, Mass., April 17.—A minimum wage for ministers was suggested to-day by a committee in a report to the Layman's Association connected with the New England Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The committee recommended that pastors in small towns should receive at the lowest $850 a year in cash, with a parsonage and at least one acre of land. In the larger towns and cities no minister should receive less than $1,000 in cash and a parsonage, in the opinion of the committee. The report will be presented to the conference to-morrow by the Rev. Charles W. Brackett of Boston.

William P. H. Bryant of Melrose was elected President of the association. Other officers chosen included Dr. W. F. Andrews, Springfield, and Lester V. Bailey, Worcester, Vice Presidents, and F. D. Howard, Chicopee Falls, Auditor.

TRINITY DECLINES BREAD LINE GIFT

Church Officials Think That Gescheidt's $150,000 Should Go to Various Institutions.

DONOR AFTER LASTING FAME

Wanted Name in Raised Letters on Bread Loaves—There May Be a Will Contest.

Trinity Parish has declined to accept a bequest of $150,000 to establish a "bread line" to perpetuate the name of Henry M. Gescheidt, an attorney, who died at his home in Flatbush on Jan. 12. Gescheidt willed one-half of his estate to the Trinity Corporation on condition that the fund be invested and the income used to maintain free distribution of bread to the poor and needy of the city under the name of the "Gescheidt Bread Line." Every loaf of bread was to bear his name in raised letters. The fund will now go to several hospitals and to the Five Points House of Industry, unless, as was intimated yesterday, relatives start a contest.

The rector and Vestry of Trinity Church, who have had the bequest under consideration for several weeks, announced yesterday that the Gescheidt gift was declined. The officers of Trinity Corporation said they had refused the gift because they believed the money would do more good if it was given to the institutions as was provided in the will in case Trinity declined the bequest. This statement was given to the public on behalf of the church authorities:

> The rector and Vestry of Trinity Church appreciate the confidence on the part of the public which a bequest of this character expresses, but after careful consideration they have decided that, in this particular case, the community will be more truly benefited and the purpose of the donor more truly carried out if the gift is declined, thereby permitting the legacy to revert to various institutions.

The Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, the rector, and members of the Vestry were anxious to have it understood that their decision in this case was not to be regarded as an indication of a fixed policy.

It is said that the action of Dr. Manning and the Vestry was influenced in a certain degree by the views of charitable workers. Without exception these persons agreed that the gift would be of more benefit to the city as a whole if it reverted to the institutions named in the will.

Long before his death Mr. Gescheidt, who was a communicant of Trinity Parish until he moved to Brooklyn and made his home at 239 Lincoln Road, Flatbush, had confided to friends that the only immortality of which the individual could be sure consisted in the perpetuation of his name through a bequest to posterity. In some such way only, he said, could one reasonably expect to be remembered, and he decided that a "bread line" would be a practical memorial.

The will, which it is believed was drawn by himself, contains a request that its exact wording be published for six successive weeks in four different newspapers as advertising matter. Nine years ago he had erected on a family plot which he had previously purchased in Greenwood Cemetery a life-size bronze figure of himself. Four marble columns rise on either side of this monument, on the sides of which are carved the compass and the square and other Masonic symbols. Beneath are two granite inclosed vaults. His body rests in the vault on the right.

To his wife, Mrs. Katherine Peck Gescheidt, he left only one-twelfth of his estate, or $25,000. Gescheidt had an office at 309 Broadway, and had practiced law here for forty years. He had visited every State in the United States, and had traveled through England, Germany, France, Ireland, Scotland, Holland, Switzerland, and Italy.

For twenty years he was a member of Tammany Hall and the Tammany Society or Columbian Order, and for a great many years he was actively interested in the public schools.

POLICEMAN, THUG'S VICTIM.

Reibe, Blackjacked in Hell's Kitchen, Saved an Old Man.

Twilight was settling down in Hell's Kitchen at 6 o'clock last evening when a neatly dressed old man hobbled along Forty-first Street toward the Weehawken ferry. A young thug noticed the old man's prosperous appearance, darted out of a doorway, and menaced him with a blackjack.

Policeman Edward Reibe of the St. Nicholas Avenue Precinct, who was off duty in plain clothes, was standing at Forty-first Street and Tenth Avenue. He saw the old man stagger back as the blackjack whistled close to his ears. Reibe leaped across the street and commanded the thug to stop.

The thug turned and crashed his blackjack on to Reibe's head. The policeman sank stunned to the sidewalk, while blood flowed from his mouth, nose and ears, and an ugly gash in his scalp. The old man screamed, and the thug ran south on Tenth Avenue. At Fortieth Street he passed another policeman in plain clothes, C. F. Browne of the West Thirty-seventh Street Station. Browne raced after him to Thirty-ninth Street, where the thug turned west and ran into a tenement at 532.

Browne bounded up the stairs after him and caught him trying to hide in a closet. The thug wielded his blackjack viciously, but quarters were too close for effective action. Browne knocked him unconscious with the butt of his revolver, carried him outdoors to revive him, and then walked him over to the police station.

Reibe regained consciousness and, not knowing that his assailant had been captured, staggered over to the police station to complain. Dr. Williamson of New York Hospital treated both Reibe and his assailant. Reibe fainted after the surgeon left, and fellow-policemen assisted him to his home, 436 West Forty-second Street.

The thug said he was Thomas Moran, 21 years old, a driver of 660 Tenth Avenue. The charge against him is felonious assault.

$250 BEQUEST FOR CIGARS.

Mrs. Vincent's Will Directs Oliver W. Norton to Buy Only the Best.

CHICAGO, April 17.—Oliver W. Norton, a wealthy manufacturer, was notified to-day that he had inherited $250 to be used in buying cigars.

The money was willed to him by Mrs. Elizabeth C. Vincent, who died recently at her home in Cincinnati. The will, which was filed in Cincinnati yesterday, contained this clause: "To Oliver W. Norton, to be expended for the best cigars he can buy, I give and bequeath $250."

GOV. GLYNN VETOES THE PAROLE BILL

Says District Attorneys Told Him It Would Paralyze Enforcement of Criminal Law.

LEAVES IT TO CONVENTION

Stivers's Palisades Park Measure Also Disapproved by the Executive—Tenement Veto Applauded.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 17.—Gov. Glynn to-day vetoed the so-called Parole bill, which was said to have been put forward in the interest of ex-Senator Stephen J. Stilwell, ex-President W. J. Cummings of the Carnegie Trust Company and J. J. Sullivan of the Union Bank of Brooklyn. The bill would have made it possible to parole first term prisoners convicted of certain felonies after they had served one year. In a memorandum given out with his veto Gov. Glynn said:

"The District Attorneys of the State opposed the provisions of the principal Parole bill and the District Attorneys of New York, Erie and Kings certified to me, at the public hearing on the bill, that its enactment into law would have the effect of paralyzing the enforcement of the criminal law throughout the State.

"The Constitution now vests in the Governor the sole power of reprieve, commutation and pardon, while the jurisdiction of the Legislature is confined solely to the question of parole. While I am in sympathy with the extension of the parole system, a Constitutional Convention will be held in the year 1915, and I think the wisest course is to refer the whole subject to that convention."

Gov. Glynn received a letter to-day from John J. Murphy, Tenement House Commissioner of Manhattan, thanking him for his veto of the McGrath bill making violations subject to a civil penality of not more than $50.

"Had such a measure become a law it would have seriously affected the power of this department to do the work with which it is charged," Mr. Murphy wrote.

Assemblyman Gillett's bill to extend the secured debts law to bonds secured by mortgage covering property partly within and partly without the State was vetoed by the Governor. Mr. Glynn thought such a law would result in heavy losses to the State.

The bills approved by the Governor included the appropriation of $15,000 for a game farm on Long Island, $100,000 appropriation for remodeling the State House into a Court of Appeals, permitting a town adjoining a first class city to acquire land for a public park or playground.

The conferring of additional powers upon the Commissioners of the Palisades Interstate Park did not coincide with Gov. Glynn's views, and he vetoed Senator Stivers's bill which had that object in view. This commission now has under its control the Harriman and other private gifts amounting to $5,250,000. Under the Stivers bill the commission would have been permitted to invest these funds. This power, the Governor believed, should remain in the State Controller's jurisdiction.

The Best New Books---And Many of Them About Half Price in Today's

Sale of Slightly Marred Books

BECAUSE THE LOESER STORE is a clearing house for a number of the leading publishers, we are occasionally able to invite our customers to a feast of good literature at most extraordinarily low prices.

Scribners, the Century Company, Fleming H. Revell Company, George H. Doran & Co. and other leading publishers have sold to us a large number of Books—including their most recent publications—that in some small way are damaged, perhaps the cover scratched, perhaps a leaf torn, perhaps a trifle soiled.

These Books you can buy here today for a fraction of the prices you would have to pay for perfect copies.

It is a notable collection—the largest and best of the sort we ever had.

Of course there is but a single copy of many titles—but there is a quantity of some others. For instance, we are fortunate to have 22 copies of "T. Tembarom" that we can sell at 75c. each; likewise a number of copies of "The Heart of the Hills," "White Linen Nurse," "Westways," "John Barleycorn," "Daddy Long Legs," "Murder in Any Degree," "Tante," "Romance of Billy-goat Hill"—a great many others of equal popularity and for equally great reduction. There is an immense variety of good Fiction published at $1 to $1.40 and marked at 35c. to 75c.

Also Included Are New Books Concerning

Art
Architecture
Biography
History
Psychology
Religion
General Literature
Travel and Exploration
Science
Court Memoirs
Sociology
Bibles
Sport
Nature Books
Essays Education
Poetry
Juvenile Books

To print a full list would take the greater part of this page—and would disappoint many, for we have but a single copy of many titles.

Among the Books on travel are such popular titles as Franck's "Vagabond Journey Around the World" and "The Zone Policeman," Wharton's "Italian Villas," Muir's "The Yosemite," Hichens' "Spell of Egypt," Pennell's "French Cathedrals," Sully's "Italian Travels," etc.

All of these Books are marked at half the published prices.

Other Books Included in the Sale Are:

"Strangling Persia," by Shuster.
"The Man Who Likes Mexico," by Gillpatrick.
"Travels at Forty," by Dreiser.
"The Changing Chinese," by Ross.
"Sea Beach at Ebb Tide," by Arnold.
"Fabre, Poet of Science," by Legros.
"By-paths of Collecting," by Robie.
Bound volumes of "St. Nicholas."
"Mother Goose," with Rackham illustrations.
Poems of Henry van Dyke, of Robert Louis Stevenson and of Eugene Field.

So the list might be continued, but your only way of realizing the remarkable character of the values will be to see the Books.

NEW YORKERS PLEAD FOR TOLLS REPEAL

WILSON RIGHT, SAYS OLNEY

Ex-Secretary of State and Other Bay State Citizens Commend President—Goethals to be Called.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—The Senate Committee on Inter-Oceanic Canals heard arguments to-day in favor of repealing the tolls exemption clause of the Panama Canal act from Welding Ring, a member of the Executive Committee of the New York Chamber of Commerce; Howard C. Smith of New York, a dealer in commercial paper; Eugene H. Outerbridge, a manufacturing importer and exporter, representing the New York Chamber of Commerce, and George L. Fox. At the same time Senator Simmons of North Carolina presented a telegram to President Wilson signed by former Secretary of State Richard Olney, William A. Gaston, and other citizens of Massachusetts, which read:

"The undersigned citizens of Massachusetts beg to congratulate you upon the stand taken in your last message relating to the repeal of the exemption from the tolls of the Panama Canal act, and assure you of our hearty support in the terms laid down in that message. We believe the course indicated to be essential to the best traditions of the American people, and we trust that your support by the Senate in acting upon the bill will be emphatic."

"When Senator Root introduced his bill to repeal the exemption clause of the Panama Canal act," said Mr. Ring, "the Chamber of Commerce of New York, representing all business interests in the city, appointed a committee to study the Root measure. That committee framed and reported a resolution supporting the bill.

"The Chamber of Commerce took up the matter and debated it for three days, going into every phase of it, especially our treaty obligations with England. Among those who spoke was Joseph H. Choate, who had helped frame the treaty. After three days discussion the resolution offered by the committee was voted upon and adopted by a vote of 333 to 7.

"Although this organization has a membership of about 1,500, the 340 present were representative. Great interest had been shown in all the meetings. Lewis Nixon of New York was among those who spoke against the Root bill. The vote as cast by the 340 members present, I think, indicates the feeling of New York business men and of business men in New York and other States."

"Upon what did the Chamber of Commerce based its action?" asked Senator Bristow of Kansas.

"The general impression was," answered Mr. Ring, "that the exemption clause was in violation of the treaty. We saw no reason why coastwise shipping should be treated differently from any other. We thought that the tolls exemption would be absorbed by the coastwise shipping interests and the shippers would not profit."

Senator O'Gorman told Mr. Ring that the Merchants' Association of New York had three or four times as many members as the Chamber of Commerce and had indorsed the tolls exemption for American ships.

"I look upon the treaty," said Mr. Outerbridge, "in the light of a contract. And it must be observed as scrupulously. We cannot be charged with pleading the cause of the English, because they will receive no benefit whether the coastwise tolls are exempted or not. I do not believe in subsidies. We cannot create an American merchant marine in that way. But if we desire to grant a subsidy let us do it correctly and lay the issue before the American people.

"Marine rates are not fixed as railroad rates. Steamship companies will charge what the traffic will bear. I am absolutely convinced that the proposed tolls exemption will never be figured in the making of freight tariffs."

The owners of such coastwise lines as the Mallory Line, Old Dominion, Clyde Line, and Munsen Line were members of the New York Chamber of Commerce, said Mr. Outerbridge.

"That is the case," said Mr. Outerbridge.

"Not all of them," answered Mr. Outerbridge. "I can't determine what the effect of the canal will be on ocean tonnage, but I am fearful of what the effect will be on transcontinental railroads. Next to agriculture, the railroads have the greatest purchasing power in this country, and if the roads have to curtail their expenditures the effect upon business is noticeable at once. The trouble with the business condition of the country to-day is the fact that the railroads cannot spend money as they have heretofore."

Col. George Goethals has been summoned before the committee to testify on the economic feature of tolls exemption. He is expected to favor repeal.

The Colonel was asked to come at the request of Senator Simmons, but may not reach here before April 24, the day set for the closing of the hearings. In that event Senator Simmons will not ask for an extension of the hearings, but will either request that Col. Goethals's testimony be incorporated in the record or presented on the floor of the Senate.

AID NEEDLESS—GOETHALS.

Holds That Coast Trade Doesn't Require Protection.

PANAMA, April 17.—Col. Goethals, Governor of the Panama Canal Zone, has been requested to testify before a Senate Committee in Washington on the Panama tolls question. Col. Goethals replied that he would prefer not to leave the Isthmus at present, as his absence might interfere with important changes in the reorganizing of the canal government. He added, however, that he would leave for Washington next Wednesday if the committee insisted that he should appear before it.

"I have always maintained," said Col. Goethals to-day, "that the Government should obtain revenue from every ship using the canal, and that it is not the coastwise trade that needs protection."

Col. Goethals said that he had cabled the Senate Committee that he could only give it information based on the figures of Prof. Emory Richard Johnson, a former member of the Isthmian Canal Commission, and regarding the cost of operation and maintenance of the canal.

NEW DANISH TREATY SIGNED

Bryan Confines It to Investigation in Deference to Senators.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Secretary Bryan and Minister Brun signed another peace commission treaty between the United States and Denmark to-day in place of the one which contained the compulsory arbitration feature. The new treaty relates only to the settlement of issues by investigation.

Secretary Bryan stated that he had abandoned the original treaty now pending before the Senate, even though it had been ratified by the Danish Parliament, in deference to the objection manifested by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to combining in one treaty the two subjects, investigation and arbitration.

To-day's treaty consequently is the first part of the original treaty, and provides simply for investigation into all questions in dispute between the two countries by a commission which will have one year's time for the consideration of the subject.

Secretary Bryan stated that another convention would be drawn at once providing for the settlement by arbitration of questions between the United States and Denmark which would not yield to diplomatic adjustment. This treaty, however, will be on the lines of existing arbitration treaties, with the usual exclusion of questions of honor, territorial integrity, and internal questions as well as those concerning third powers.

NAVY LEAGUE DIRECTORS.

John Lind Among Those Selected at Annual Assembly.

At the annual assembly of the Navy League of the United States, held in this city yesterday, these new members were added to the Board of Directors: John Lind, St. Paul; Col. E. M. House, Austin, Texas; David Ives Bushnell, St. Louis; Frank J. Symmes, San Francisco; Frank A. Scott, Cleveland, and John Callan O'Laughlin, Washington.

These Directors were selected, it was explained, because of their interest in naval affairs and to represent the West and South.

BILLARD WITNESSES DECIDE TO TESTIFY

Also Agree to Produce Books and Papers Demanded by Interstate Commission.

INDICTMENTS MAY BE HELD

John L. Billard Says B. & M. Stock Purchase Was Made for Himself with His Own Money.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—All the recalcitrant witnesses in the Interstate Commerce Commission's inquiry into the financial operations of the Billard Company with the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad have agreed to testify fully concerning the facts in their possession and to produce the books and papers of the Billard Company.

Chief Counsel Joseph W. Folk of the commission received to-day from Homer S. Cummings, attorney for two of the witnesses, Hemmingway and Morehouse, a telegram saying that his clients would respond to questions. Another telegram from Henry Stoddard, representing Whipple and Field, gave assurance that his clients not only would testify concerning the matters to which a week ago they refused to answer, but also would produce books and other documents of the Billard Company desired by the commission.

Confronted by indictment and criminal prosecution for their refusal to respond to "lawful questions" of the commission, the witnesses concluded not to press their contention that the questions asked constituted an invasion of their personal rights.

It is known that the Federal Grand Jury yesterday voted indictments against the four witnesses named. In view of the acquiescence of the men in the demand of the commission for the information the indictments may not be returned to the court. Meanwhile, the indictments probably will be held in suspension.

It is expected that the next hearing will be on April 29. At that time opportunity will be afforded to the witnesses to comply with the agreements entered into with Mr. Folk by their counsel.

John L. Billard, promoter of the Billard Company, through Mr. Cummings, to-day assured the commission that the published statement that he had said the commission in instituting criminal proceedings against the witnesses was "bluffing" was "incorrect," and that he never had said anything that could fairly be construed into such a statement.

BILLARD TALKS OF DEAL.

Purchase of B. & M. Stock Investment of His Own, He Says.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 17.—John L. Baillard of Meriden, Conn., in an interview published in The Hartford Times, avers that his purchase six years ago of 6,000 shares of Boston and Maine Railroad stock for about $13,000,000, was a purely personal investment, as straight and clean as the buying of Meriden real estate would be and made largely for sentimental reasons, because the first stock he ever bought with his earnings as a young man was in the old Hartford & New Haven Railroad.

"The New Haven Road," Mr. Billard is quoted as saying, "was ordered by the courts to get rid of their holdings in the Boston & Maine in thirty days time, and I was given an opportunity to buy it. It was a controlling interest. Perhaps if I had to do it over I might not do it, or perhaps rather if I had to stop and think it over as carefully as I might be expected to, I would not take the great responsibility. But there was sentiment urging me and I did it.

"I bought it with my own money, money that I secured on my own responsibility, and I assumed all the responsibility. The loss would have been mine and the gain, too, and I carried that stock in my own name with no conditions or strings, and I tell you the responsibility was great, and it was a strain for fourteen months. I had confidence in the stock. I knew that $155 had been paid into every share and I felt that it was a stock of substance, and I bought at the market and I sold at the market, and were there loss it would have been mine, and were there gain it would be mine. I recall now how ex-Gov. Draper laughed at me when I told them I would sell at the market.

"'You don't want much,' he said. But it was my stock; I had bought it; I had raised the money to buy it; if it went down I must meet the loss; if it went up then I would have the gain. I could not see it a bit different than buying a piece of real estate on Colony Street over there and holding it fourteen months and then selling it for a good offer. That is the entire picture of the transaction, huge though it is.

"Of course this was six years ago, and the ways of business are somewhat different now than what they were then. But it was an hoest transaction, and there was nothing to it that was contrary to any laws in any State, or that was immoral, or an injury to the public welfare or to the former owners of the stock. That I know.

"My, but that was a happy day when I sold my stock and paid off my notes. I tell you there was a strain. You know the stock began to drop after I had bought it. It would not take much of a loss to scale off a million dollars or two millions, and I repeat that it was a straight, clear-cut transaction. It is on the records what I bought the stock for, and what I sold it for, and there is nothing to conceal. There was no attempt to thwart the courts or the Legislature, and the facts of the big transaction speak for themselves."

M. G. BULKELEY SKEPTICAL.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 17.—Former Gov. Morgan G. Bulkeley, President of the Aetna Life Insurance Company, which recently let go its 5,000 shares of New Haven stock, smiled broadly to-night when he heard of the interview given out at Meriden by John L. Billard.

"That's a good deal like one of those Arabian nights tales," mused the ex-Governor. "Billard says it was his own money. Well, if it was, I'm afraid he has lost it."

MELLEN HASN'T HEARD.

Willing to Head Railroad Men's Federation, but Has No News.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 17.—Charles S. Mellen, ex-President of the New Haven Railroad, said to-night that he had heard nothing definite relative to the report that he had been suggested as head of the National Federation of Railway Employes.

"I don't know what is going on in the matter," he added, "and am inclined to think that my name was proposed by some overenthusiastic friend of mine. It seems too good to be true that, after holding the positions I have held for twenty years, I should be acceptable to the great mass of members of the Federation.

"I feel very warmly toward the railroad men, and if they have such confidence in me and loyalty as to wish me to take the position, I should consider it the highest of compliments and would be inclined to make every effort to gratify them."

The Letter
reproduced here came unsought the other day from one of the greatest German American scholars—a man who holds one of the important professorships at Harvard University, and who has been exchange professor at the University of Berlin—Hugo Munsterberg, Ph. D., M. D., LL.D., Litt.D.

Such a letter from such a man means that The German Classics should be in your library.

Cambridge, Massachusetts,
April 4, 1914.

Dear Mr. Rines:—

I have gone carefully through the first nine volumes of the German Classics, and am anxious to express to you a satisfaction which surpasses by far my best expectations. Some of the translations are masterpieces. I should give the laurel to Hagedorn's rendering of the "Prince of Homburg." Throughout the newer translations made for the German Classics seemed to me superior to many of the standard versions.

But my greater surprise was at the additional features, the introductions and the pictures. Both types of supplements in such luxurious works are too frequently perfunctory and worthless. But here some of the introductions are models of concise characterization, and others open most interesting, wide perspectives. Every stray reader will enjoy them, and even the scholar can learn from them. Moreover the illustrations, far from being the conventional, superfluous interpretations of the text, are really artistic renderings of the various periods of German literature. If I think of those pictures which begin with the fourth volume, they ought to be valued as a beautiful history of modern German painting, which the reader hardly expects to find between the pages of a literary work.

But however delightful the translations, the introductions and the illustrations may be, the unique glory of the work lies in the upbuilding of the whole. Professor Francke has truly proved himself a masterbuilder, with a perfect sense of proportion and harmony, with wonderful sympathy and fairness. If the second half of the work equals the first, it will stand before us like a mighty Gothic cathedral, with an overwhelming richness of beautiful detail and yet a noble unity, the beautiful expression of one ideal thought.

Very truly yours,
Hugo Münsterberg.

HARPERS BOOKS

Social Forces In England and America
By H. G. Wells

"Here," says Wells himself, "is a fairly complete view of all of my opinions. It is practically all my miscellaneous writings for the last four or five years, edited and drawn together with an effective whole." He discusses divorce, motherhood, schoolmasters and doctors; the political disease of our times; speculates upon the future of the American people; considers a possible setback to our civilization, which he finds menaced by panics and war.

Modern Dancing
By Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Castle

This book on the newest decent dances of to-day—brought out under the auspices of several New York social leaders—and written by the one recognized authority on dancing—makes it possible for every reader to know what the latest accepted dances are and to learn how to dance them. The new dances, such as the Castle Walk, the Hesitation Waltz, the Tango, are described step by step, and more than one hundred illustrations from photographs and moving pictures reveal the slightest change in the position of the feet. Above all, it is a practical book—practical as well as authoritative.

Our Mr. Wrenn
By Sinclair Lewis

"Yes, decidedly, Sinclair Lewis' 'Our Mr. Wrenn' is a little like Locke, and a little like Wells, and a little like a dozen different authors, and yet like nothing that has ever been written. For, like all true books, it is a great deal like itself—life seen in a new way, and as we shouldn't have been able to see it ourselves."—Pittsburgh Dispatch. "There is simplicity, a grateful lack of straining for effect, in this story of the seeking of a little New York clerk for the world of adventure and romance."—N. Y. Evening Post.

Storm
By Wilbur Daniel Steele

"A virile romance. It's poetic, too, along with its Viking-like power. The wild singing of wind and sea, as well as of wind-jamming and sea-defying men, sounds all through it—also the gentleness and helplessness of women and little children. You'll enjoy the beauty and the strength of it. And it tells a ripping story from start to finish."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Under Handicap
By Jackson Gregory

A romance of reclamation—the reclamation of an American desert by irrigation, and the reclamation of a rich idler (handicapped by his father's name and wealth) to strong, self-reliant manhood. The virile outdoor atmosphere will be a tonic to the reader of the average novel.

GILLEN IN DEFENSE CRITICISES M'KAY

Ex-Inspector Says He Had a Refusal of Detectives He Asked For.

HIS MEN WERE KNOWN

Anti-Vice Societies and Deputy Newburger Didn't Always Give Aid He Asked for, He Says.

Former Inspector James H. Gillen, charged with failing to suppress disorderly resorts, testified at the resumption of his trial at Police Headquarters yesterday that he had asked for the co-operation of several anti-vice committees and of ex-Third Deputy Police Commissioner Newburger without always receiving the assistance he desired. He was appointed to the Third Inspection District on March 1, 1913, by Commissioner Waldo, and he said 121 arrests had been made for violations of the tenement house law, and 110 disorderly houses had been suppressed while he was in charge.

Gillen said he had received 2,000 complaints of all kinds, each of which had been investigated and reported on. He said Commissioner Waldo instructed him to put a stop to the custom of having policemen take women to hotels in order to procure evidence against the hotels. This he had done, and he had prohibited the use of police matrons to obtain such evidence. It was by Waldo's order, Gillen said, that as soon as a disorderly resort was suppressed and its owner convicted the name of the establishment was stricken from the monthly report of places under suspicion.

He said he had appealed to Commissioner McKay to transfer to his district several detectives who were skilled in collecting evidence against disorderly resorts. His request was ignored notwithstanding the fact that after six months his own detectives became known throughout the district and thus worked under a great disadvantage.

Walter G. Hook of Yonkers, Secretary of the Committee of Fourteen, said Gillen had always been prompt to act on any complaint against a disorderly house or hotel, but he knew that Gillen had met with difficulty in closing some of the places because the proprietors had "stool pigeons" employed solely to become familiar with the Inspector's men, who then would not be admitted to those hotels.

Mr. Hook said that usually he visited Gillen's district with members of the Committee of Fourteen from three to four times a month, and had found that street soliciting had greatly decreased. He said Gillen had done good work in closing disorderly resorts, and, among other places, four saloons in the district. He said he had conferred with Gillen two weeks before the Inspector was deposed, when they planned to rid the district of several disorderly hotels. Mr. Hook had to go to Albany in the meanwhile, and when he returned charges had been filed against the Inspector.

Asked about the condition of Tekulsky's Café, Sixth Avenue and Twenty-fourth Street, Mr. Hook said that at one time conditions there were bad, but that Tekulsky, the manager, had remedied them, and had satisfied the Committee of Fourteen that the place was run in an orderly manner. Questioned about the Hotel Mumm, he said the Committee of Fourteen never had been able to gather any evidence against the place.

Mary Sheridan, who said she was a police matron for fifteen years, and did detective work for Inspector Gillen for two months, testified that she had visited Tekulsky's Café many times, but never had seen anything there which could be regarded as a violation of the law.

Bruce Ellison, counsel for Gillen, offered as evidence the number of arrests made in the Third Inspection District during Gillen's incumbency. The hearing was adjourned until 10 o'clock Monday morning.

DR. GEORGE W. HILL DEAD.

Dr. George William Hill, an astronomer and scientist, died Thursday night in his home at West Nyack, N. J., where he had lived alone for some time. His body was found by his brother, John Henry Hill, an artist.

Dr. Hill was born in New York City seventy-six years ago. He was graduated from Rutgers College in 1859, and in 1872 was honored by the college with the degree of Ph.D. The University of Cambridge conferred the degree of Sc.D. upon him in 1892, and Columbia University that of LL.D. in 1904. Princeton gave him the same degree two years later.

These honors were put upon Dr. Hill for his notable work as a scientist. He conducted many astronomical experiments for this and other Governments, among his achievements being an improvement of the mariners' compass.

He studied the lunar theory for many years, the result of his researches winning for him, in 1887, the gold medal of the Royal Astronomical Society of London. In 1898 he won the Damoiscan prize of the Paris Academy of Sciences.

In 1861 he became an assistant editor of the Nautical Almanac and later he succeeded to the editorship of the publication, which position he resigned in 1898 to become a lecturer on celestial mechanics in Columbia University. He held this position until 1901.

SCHAEFER PROPERTY SOLD.

Bringing $1,500,000, It Is Acquired by a Public Organization Unrevealed

Negotiations practically were closed yesterday, subject to the consent of the Supreme Court, for the purchase of the block front on the east side of Park Avenue, between Fiftieth and Fifty-first Streets, now occupied by the F. & M. Schaefer brewery. The consideration is said to be in the neighborhood of $1,500,000.

The Schaefer brewery has been established on the Park Avenue site for sixty-four years. From 1842 until its removal to Park Avenue the brewery was situated at Nineteenth Street and Broadway, on the site of the former Sloane carpet store. In 1850 the firm began buying lots on Park Avenue, some of which were purchased for $1,000 each.

The brokers in the transaction, which became public yesterday, the Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company, as well as the owner of the property, Rudolph J. Schaefer, who bought out the interests of the Frederick Schaefer family two years ago, declined to reveal the identity of the buyer. It is understood, however, that the property will be acquired by some semi-philanthropic interests and that a community building for club and other public uses will eventually be constructed.

There were various reports current yesterday concerning the identity of the purchaser, including rumors that the Academy of Medicine and the National Academy of Design had acquired the property. The brokers denied that the Academy of Medicine was the purchaser, and John W. Alexander, President of the National Academy of Design, said last night that he knew nothing about the matter.

Inasmuch as application will be made to the court within the next thirty days by the prospective buyers for permission to purchase the property, the indication seems clear that a public institution is interested in the transaction. A building planned on lines entirely different from anything now in that part of Park Avenue very likely will be constructed.

The property has a frontage of 200.10 feet on Park Avenue, 225 feet on Fiftieth Street and 250 feet on Fifty-first Street. A five-story brewery building and seven old structures, once dwellings, now are on the property.

It is the most important transaction on Park Avenue since the purchase in 1910 by the Potter-Mordecai syndicate of the old Steinway factory plot, now covered by the big Montana apartment, on the east side of the avenue, between Fifty-second and Fifty-third Streets.

In addition to the block front, which virtually is under contract for sale, the Schaefer concern own the northeast corner of Park Avenue and Fifty-first Street, directly opposite a plot extending 100.5 feet on the avenue and 179.1 feet on Fifty-first Street.

For the new brewery site a large plot on the East River front has been acquired and work soon will begin there on the new buildings.

WASHINGTON LETTER, $325.

The sale of autographs, owned by William Nelson of Paterson, N. J., Charles E. Goodspeed of Boston, and others, was concluded by the Anderson Auction Company yesterday. The session realized $3,774, making the grand total for the two days' sale $13,110.50.

F. A. Thompson paid the highest price of the day, $325, for a fine holograph letter written by George Washington in Philadelphia on May 31, 1787, to Gen. Henry Knox. In it Washington announces his election as President of the Constitutional Convention.

George Lowell paid $250 for another fine Washington holograph letter dated Mount Vernon, Sept. 22, 1789, and addressed to Laurence Lewis, Washington's nephew, who married Martha Washington's granddaughter, Nellie Parke Custis. It was written only a few months before Washington's death.

C. Gerhardt & Co. gave $150 for a letter signed but not written by Washington, dated "Hdqrs., Robinson's House, Sept. 27, 1780," and written shortly after the discovery of Benedict Arnold's treason.

P. F. Madigan obtained for $315 a two-page quarto letter by Edgar Allan Poe, dated New York, Jan. 13, 1849, and addressed to John R. Thompson, editor of The Southern Literary Messenger of Richmond, Va. The letter, which is signed with the author's full name, was written the year of his death. In it he proposes to contribute to The Messenger five pages a month at $2 a page. A letter signed but not written by Napoleon Bonaparte, and dated Paris, April 13, 1798, went for $41. A letter of Lord Nelson, signed "Nelson & Bronte," and dated May 20, 1803, brought $52.50. A letter written by Lady Hamilton sold for $10.

A document signed by President Franklin Pierce, Washington, Feb. 11, 1856, giving instructions to the commanding United States officer in Kansas, brought $36. A letter of the Marquise de Pompadour, written in the Château de Bellevue, July 5, 1760, realized $80. A time-stained letter of Gen. Israel Putnam, Jan. 6, 1777, brought $32.

Walter R. Benjamin paid $45 for a four-page quarto letter of Mary W. Shelley, wife of the poet, Percy B. Shelley. A letter of Gen. Walter Stewart of the Revolutionary Army brought $33. A letter of "Mad Anthony" Wayne, Ticonderoga, Feb. 4, 1777, to Gen. Philip Schuyler, went for $40, and another letter from him to Gen. Washington brought $45. A holograph letter of William Whipple, Signer of the Declaration of Independence, sold for $65. A collection of letters written to Emil Zola, approving his course in the case of Capt. Albert Dreyfus, brought $25.

THINK FRANK'S PLEA WILL WIN NEW TRIAL

Atlanta Lawyers Criticise Judge Roan and Many Believe the Verdict Will Be Annulled.

SAYS COURT WAS WARNED

Assistant Solicitor Asserts He Told Judge to Get Frank's Personal Waiver on His Presence in Court.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 17.—The action of the attorneys for Leo M. Frank in asking that the verdict be annulled on the ground that Frank was not in the court room when it was rendered, is causing much discussion among lawyers, many of whom express the opinion that the motion will be sustained in the courts. Solicitor General Dorsey is not of this opinion.

"Under the facts," said the Solicitor, "the motion amounts to nothing."

Frank A. Hopper, who assisted the Solicitor in the prosecution of Frank, had this to say about the motion of the defense to-day:

"As to the incident of the defendant's absence at the time the verdict was received, I will say that in a conference with Judge Roan during the trial, I told him I thought it best that the defendant should agree personally to waive his presence. I doubted that his counsel's consent would be sufficient. The Judge told me he agreed with me, and that the defendant's personal waiver had been or would be obtained. I supposed, of course, that it had been obtained, and was surprised to see a denial of this in the extraordinary motion filed yesterday. The Solicitor and myself were attempting to guard this point, and for that reason I mentioned the matter to Judge Roan."

Many lawyers are inclined to censure Judge Roan for his failure either to have Frank present or to obtain his personal waiver.

The answers of Dr. Harris propounded by the defense before a Commissioner to-day regarding the hair found on the lathe in the factory where Mary Phagan was murdered were regarded as favorable to the State. After having compared under a microscope the specimens taken from the lathe and specimens taken from the head of Mary Phagan, when the body was exhumed, Dr. Harris said:

"The specimens resemble each other so much that it was impossible for me to say definitely that it was not the hair of Mary Phagan. On the other hand, there appeared to be a slight difference in shade and shape, but no difference in texture. Color is determined by the naked eye, and there was not enough hair given to me by the Solicitor's assistant to make an accurate estimate of color. I have recently examined hairs from the heads of several persons. I find that hairs taken from the head of the same person differ as much in shape as the hair given to me by the Solicitor's assistants and the hair of Mary Phagan."

At this point in his examination Dr. Harris plucked two hairs from the head of Commissioner D. O. Smith and pointed out a difference in their shape and color.

"I told the Solicitor it was my impression that the two specimens were different," said Dr. Harris, "but I was careful to say there was no certainty in the opinion. I think this conversation occurred in my office soon after the examination. Mr. Dorsey appeared to attach no importance to the examination nor did I. I told him that the specimens were slightly different in shape and possibly in color.

"I did not specifically say the specimens were not the same."

In the extraordinary motion the defense alleges that Dr. Harris offered to let Dr. R. T. Dorsey, brother of the Solicitor, compare the specimens to determine whether his opinion was correct.

Dr. Harris said to-day that a few days before the trial he discussed his work in the case with the Solicitor, Dr. Dorsey, and others.

"I recall that I talked to Dr. Dorsey about my work in a general way, and I may have told Dr. Dorsey that he could examine the specimen if he so desired," he said.

Dr. Harris said there probably were a dozen hairs submitted to him, although he did not count them. He took about ten hairs from the head of Mary Phagan.

Dr. Harris recently made an exhaustive study of hair, and he probably will be a witness for the State when it attempts to combat the defense's theory that the hair on the lathe was not Mary Phagan's.

Detective William J. Burns has not returned to Atlanta, but the men at the local office of his agency say he is expected at any time.

Leo M. Frank passed his thirtieth birthday in his cell in the tower to-day. He received several letters and congratulatory telegrams from friends from various part of the country, and some from persons whom he did not know. He received several gifts as well. Throughout the day his friends were calling at the tower to see him.

Frank's air of confidence has never left him. To-day he seemed in better health and spirits than usual. He would not discuss for publication the new moves in his case.

$140,200,000 NAVY BILL UP.

"War Materials Trust" to Blame for Unrest, Bartholdt Tells House.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Consideration of the annual Naval Appropriation bill carrying $140,200,000, and providing for the Administration's two-battleship building programme began in the House late to-day.

The measure's appearance on the floor was the signal for a number of set speeches. Representative Bartholdt of Missouri made a plea for international peace. He attacked what he called the "war materials trust" as responsible for international agitation."

KAPPER HURRIES GRAFT CASE

Hint That Private Roads Got Some of State Highway Gravel.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., April 17.—Supreme Court Justice Kapper, who has been hastening the trial of graft indictments growing out of the construction of the Coram-Patchogue Road by holding night sessions of the court, announced to-night that he feared the case would not be finished before Tuesday. He will hold sessions to-morrow.

Justice Kapper said he would submit only one question to the jury and that was, whether the road contained the amount of Peekskill gravel called for in the contract.

District Attorney Greene hinted yesterday when examining witnesses for the defense that he believed some of the 12,700 tons of gravel consigned to the contractors, as they asserted, went into private roads.

When Eugene K. Smith, an Islip civil engineer and witness for the defense, was on the stand, Mr. Greene made much of Smith's admissions that he had dug into the road to test it at points suggested by Engineer Robartes, one of the defendants. He hinted that Robartes knew where there were some good spots in the road.

Prof. Charles E. Morrison of Columbia, another expert witness for the defense, acknowledged that he had never built a road himself. Prof. Morrison said he inspected the road several months after its construction and found it a good road, remaining close to contract requirements even after months of wear. Other engineering witnesses gave similar testimony.

ADMIRAL BOWLES RESIGNS.

QUINCY, Mass., April 17.—Francis T. Bowles, formerly a Rear Admiral in the navy, resigned the Presidency of the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation at the annual meeting of the Directors here to-day. Admiral Bowles retained his membership in the Board of Directors, all of the board being re-elected. His resignation becomes effective July 1.

Admiral Bowles, who was chief naval constructor, resigned from the Government service to assume the Presidency of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, as it was then known, May 2, 1903.

Last July the control of the company was obtained by Charles M. Schwab, and the name was changed to the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation.

What This Story Holds For You

A new insight into the workings of life—a striking portrayal of the very soul of a girl. A plain country girl, sensitive, self-conscious, unpopular and dull, who enters into a marriage formality to gain freedom, who marries a man with no use in his life for a woman.

Miss Leeson shows you how pride and scruples bar the doors of happiness to this husband and wife. She has laid bare the hidden craving in the heart of each for the better things of life. She commands your sympathy and your admiration for the man and woman whose understanding of each other waited for the tragic hand of Fate to disclose.

She has provided you with a source of pleasure which comes too seldom to be overlooked—one which you will hold dear as a part of your household to which you can always turn for inspiration and enjoyment. Do not neglect to read this new book.

A novel thoroughly modern in tone and tense in actuality. The story of two strong personalities clashing with each other in defense of their antagonistic ideals. The woman's soul has been suddenly awakened to altruistic activities. She becomes an active worker among the forces for social betterment.

The man is an individualist. To him success means the overcoming of his weaker brethren,—the expansion of his power at no matter what cost to others.

FINES PAID SALARIES IN HUMANE SOCIETY

PONY TRACK OWNER ANGRY

Testifies That Kelly Took Away Four Good Horses and Gave In Return Three Lame Ones and a Goat.

The preliminary hearings on the petition of William A. Mallet, who has asked for the revocation of the charter of the Humane Society of New York, of which he is a life member, were resumed yesterday afternoon by Deputy Attorney General William A. McQuaid in his offices at 299 Broadway. Mr. Mallet was represented by Willoughby B. Dobbs, and President Belais of the Humane Society was represented by Morris J. Hirsch and Herbert J. Limburg.

Charles L. Fuller, who said he was formerly a locomotive engineer on the New York Central Railroad and a motorman on the Elevated Railroad, was recently an agent for the Humane Society. Fuller said his superior officer was Albert Kelly. When he went to work, he testified, Kelly told him that he would get $60 the first month and $75 the second month if he made good.

Fuller was asked to explain what he meant by "making good," and at first he said he "really couldn't answer that question." Then he was asked:

"Did Mr. Kelly ever tell you that you weren't making enough arrests and that the fines were not sufficient to pay for your salary?"

Well, Kelly said, 'You've got to pick up if you want to make good.' He spoke to me two or three times," said Fuller.

John Kodet of 470 East Seventy-fourth Street, said he had been a buyer and seller of horses for three years, and had had many dealings with Albert Kelly, as a result of which he was induced to go to the office of President Belais, at 120 Fulton Street, on Thursday a week ago, and tell the head of the Humane Society about some of the transactions of the society's agent.

The witness then repeated for entry on the record what he said he had told President Belais about Kelly. Kodet said he opened a pony track at Clason Point in 1912. It was not long before Agent Kelly appeared and condemned some of the horses. He testified that Kelly proposed to become his partner and that he rejected Kelly's offer, even though the agent suggested that many advantages were to be gained because of Kelly's connection with the Humane Society. Kodel testified that Kelly was constantly at his place, and obtained loans of money. Kelly, according to the witness, took away from him four perfectly good horses in all and brought back three lame horses and a billy-goat. He said that Kelly's injury was the more grievous because the lame horses, taken away from a downtown truckman, were 1,700 pound animals, whereas for Kodet's purposes only ponies could be used. The draft horses had to be disposed of.

"And who got Kelly's goat?" was asked.

"I don't know," replied the witness, "but I think it was a man named Horton."

Kodet said that after making substantially that statement to President Belais he was asked to come around again and make an affidavit containing his charges. Kodet said he insisted on making the affidavit then and there, but Belais told him it would be so long the typewriter couldn't write it.

Max Steuerhoff, once a foreman for Kodet, testified that Agent Kelly and he frequently used to walk around together, and that he pointed out to the agent cases warranting action on his part. Invariably, he said, Kelly would reply: "Well, I'll let him go."

When he asked Kelly why he did not "get on the job instead of shooting craps with the workmen about Kodet's place," the witness said Kelly usually would reply that he already had made his day's wages in fines.

Mr. Mallet, who said he was President of the Mallet Construction and Supply Company, 117 Westchester Square, Westchester, testified that he became a life member of the Humane Society in 1911, when he signed his check to the society for $100.

"How many times were your men arrested before you became a member of the society?" his counsel asked him.

"I should say about fifteen or twenty."

He was then asked how many times his drivers had been "molested" after he joined the society, and counsel for the defendant objected to the word "molested." The question was amended, and Mr. Mallet said that his drivers were not interfered with until he went as a delegate to the Bull Moose Convention in Chicago in August, 1912. When the agents of the Humane Society began to arrest his drivers again he decided finally to make a test case. He appealed from a fine of $10 that was imposed by a City Magistrate, and his appeal resulted in the repayment to him of the amount of the fine.

Mr. Mallet said he had complained to President Belais about Agent Kelly's actions. The witness said he had pointed out lame horses to Kelly, and that Kelly, so far as he could learn, never took any action. He said nothing was ever done by President Belais as a result of his complaints.

Another witness who said he had complained to President Belais about Agent Kelly was Morse M. Frankel, Director of the Horse Owners' Protective Association. Frankel said he had made two or three complaints, informing Belais that about thirty complaints about Kelly had been made to him by drivers.

The examination of witnesses will be resumed on Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

OXONIANS AT CAMBRIDGE.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 17.—The runners of Oxford University who are to compete in the four-mile relay race at the University of Pennsylvania next week practiced on the Stadium track to-day, jogging around the cinder path on which the world's amateur record of 4 minutes 15 2-5 seconds was made by John Paul Jones. They made no attempt at speed. Norman S. Taber ran the longest distance, a mile and a half, the others stopping after they had covered a mile. The track was heavy from recent rains.

The visitors were received with warm hospitality by undergraduates and officials of Harvard. They had luncheon at the 'Varsity Club, and during the afternoon watched the competition in the annual Spring interclass track games. The juniors won, with the seniors second. Performances generally were poor. The Oxonians returned to Providence to-night.

News for the Golfers.

The services of William Kilgour, the professional golfer in charge of the Pelham Bay course, have been obtained by the projectors of the new public eighteen-hole links in Van Cortlandt Park. Kilgour and A. C. Johnson Jr., of the Golfers' Committee went over the course yesterday, and as a result three alterations will be made from the original plan. The first tee will be moved back about a hundred yards, immediately adjoining the sixteenth tee on the present links, and will call for a drive across a ravine. The tenth tee will be moved sufficiently to make the hole a three-shot affair, and both the first and the tenth will be 500 yards long. On the thirteenth hole the tee will be moved back far enough to make the player show his nerve and golf to reach the green 180 yards away.

The Seniors' tournament, held every year at Apawamis, will be decided on Sept. 16 and 17 instead of June 23 and 24, as was announced some time ago.

The Sleepy Hollow Country Club has decided to hold an invitation tournament this season, most likely the second week in October, as September is filled and the Nassau invitation tournament comes the first week in October.

VICTORY FOR DR. DE LUXE.

Defeats Many Champions in French Bulldog Specialty Show.

A complete upset in calculation marked the first day's judging in the two-day specialty show of the French Bulldog Club of America at the Hotel Astor yesterday. A newcomer in the show ring, Dr. De Luxe, owned by Mrs. Mabel J. Riddell of this city, swept through the classes for dogs, defeating some of the best French canines in this country. Among them was Charles N. Denault's Denault's Gamin, which was placed as the best dog in the show last year by James Mortimer. In the present event the dog was beaten by three others in his own class, getting only fourth place. Dr. De Luxe was the winner against last year's titleholder and also won in the winners' class. There was a general impression that the dog will be held as the best in this year's show when that event is judged this morning.

Mrs. Riddell pruchased the dog in Boston only three weeks ago, and, while the price she paid is not known, it is asserted that the breeder of the dog, James T. Schaffner, not long ago refused $2,500 for the animal. Dr. De Luxe is three year old, but has been shown only twice at events near Boston. He embodies all the features of the ideal French bull, except, perhaps, a slight narrowness in the under jaw.

Mme. Verona Jarbeau's champion, La Belle Cora, was first in the winners' class for bitches, but the award did not meet with popular favor, a number of experts claiming that the reserve, John E. Haslam's Melisande, was stronger in several particulars.

The Gamin's Riquet Cup for winners, offered in 1912, and to be won outright yesterday, was won by Mrs. Fred Edward's champion, Parsque, which defeated Vincent M. Turley's champion, Fenway Frenchman. Both of these dogs, however, were beaten by Dr. De Luxe. The summaries:

TWO-DAY AUTO TOUR

Up Through Connecticut and Then Down Along Hudson River.

At a meeting at the Manhattan Automobile Club yesterday of the Touring Committee of the Motor Dealers' Contest Association further plans for the proposed two-day business tour in this State and Connecticut were outlined. The tour, which is to be in the nature of a traveling automobile show, now seems to be assured, as it will be run provided fifteen cars are entered. The route on the first day—the start being on Thursday at 8 o'clock—will be New York, Stamford, Norwalk, Bridgeport, New Haven, Meriden, and Hartford. Stops will be made at each of the above places, and the night stop will be at Hartford. On the second day, after leaving the Connecticut capital, Waterbury, Danbury, Poughkeepsie, Peekskill, and Tarrytown will be visited in the same way. It is the theory of the association that much interest will be stimulated by the tour, as it will enable models to be shown in the various cities visited, which are usually carried only by the metropolitan dealers.

NOTES OF THE ATHLETES.

It was reported yesterday that W. J. Cartmell, the former University of Pennsylvania sprinter, who is now engaged in training a Southern college, would be offered the position as trainer of the Pennsylvania football team. While at the University of Pennsylvania Cartmell spent most of his spare time with the late Mike Murphy around the training quarters, and he picked up much valuable information in regard to handling football players.

Dan J. Ahearne, who holds the hop, step and jump record, formerly a member of the Irish-American Athletic Club, but now representing the Illinois Athletic Club of Chicago, has been in New York for the past week. Ahearne came here principally to try and induce Pat Ryan to go to Chicago and join the Illinois Athletic Club. Ryan, however, who is holding a good position here, refused to consider making a change at the present time.

Con Leahy, the high jumper who when competing represented the New York Athletic Club, but has been out of competition for the past two years, intends taking up athletics again. Leahy will very likely compete for the Milrose Athletic Club.

One of the important matters to be taken up by the International Athletic Federation that meets at Lyons, France, in June, will be that of track measurements. In this country the curb is placed 18 inches inside the actual measurement. In England and other countries only 12 inches' allowance is made. F. W. Rubien, the designer of most of the American tracks, is in favor of the 12-inch rule, and he is going to take the matter up with J. E. Sullivan before the American committee sails. Rubien says if a uniform rule should be adopted the American tracks will have to be lengthened about three feet, and that change could easily be made by moving out one end of the track, and it would not be necessary to change all the curbing around the track.

New York City.

Dear Sir:

In reply to your recent inquiry, WILSON Whiskey was first distilled in 1823, but it was not until 1911 that we invented the Non-Refillable Bottle.

You are perfectly correct. We use the Non-Refillable Bottle in order to guarantee our patrons against substitution and adulteration.

It is only in this bottle that you can be sure of getting WILSON - REAL WILSON - THAT'S ALL!

Very truly yours,
THE WILSON DISTILLING COMPANY.

The Arms of Shakespeare.

Shakespeare Week

The 350th anniversary of Shakespeare's birth will be celebrated next Thursday throughout the world.

A number of men and women prominent in literature or in affairs have furnished The New York Times with the passages from Shakespeare which in their view stand out most eminently for literary beauty, the width of their outlook on life, their value as guides in daily life, or as rules of conduct, or for others of the manifold qualities which make his work the greatest in the world's literary treasury. One of these is quoted here, as printed in the Magazine Section to-morrow:

William A. Brady.

William A. Brady, the manager, reminds us of an interesting fact in connection with his chosen selection, which fact is also mentioned by Mrs. Barr in her contribution:

New York, April 10, 1914.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Responding to your request for my favorite passage in Shakespeare, I send you herewith the speech of Queen Constance, in "King John," following the loss of Prince Arthur, thus:

> Grief fills the room up of my absent child,
> Lies in his bed, walks up and down with me;
> Puts on his pretty looks, repeats his words,
> Remembers me of all his gracious parts,
> Stuffs out his vacant garments with his form;
> Then have I reason to be fond of grief.
> Fare you well: had you such a loss as I
> I could give better comfort than you do.—
> I will not keep this form upon my head,
> When there is such disorder in my wit.
> Oh, Lord! my boy, my Arthur, my fair son!
> My life! my joy, my food, my all the world,
> My widow-comfort, and my sorrow's cure!

Aside from the rare poetic beauty of this mother's cry of anguish, the passage takes on further interest from the following foot-note published in the acting edition of the play:

"It has been not inaptly suggested that the pathetic expressions of the grief of Constance for the loss of Arthur are probably indebted for much of their characteristic truth to the calamity which Shakespeare had himself sustained by the death of his only son, who had attained the age of twelve, and died the year this play was produced."

WILLIAM A. BRADY.

The correspondence which will be printed complete to-morrow is intensely interesting. Margaret Anglin gives eight words spoken by Viola in "Twelfth Night" as her favorite quotation. William Jennings Bryan gives a brief selection, which is a complete sermon. Otis Skinner takes his from "Henry VIII." William Faversham quotes from Mark Antony, George W. Cable from the "Merchant of Venice," John Burroughs from "Hamlet," Edwin Markham from "The Tempest," Amelia E. Barr from "Macbeth," Dr. Parkhurst quotes from "Hamlet," and a score of other well-known people, each with a favorite and a philosophy to back it up. Readers of The New York Times can hardly afford to miss this symposium, which is only one of several Shakespeare features to be published to-morrow.

TO-MORROW

THE MEXICAN WAY.

The peculiar Mexican personal equation must at all times be taken into account in our reckoning with Huerta. It would be unnatural for a Mexican to do to-day or to-morrow whatever might possibly be put off until next week. In the case of an official Mexican summoned to do a disagreeable thing this is doubly true. Postponement is to be expected as certain. This is doubtless the explanation of the less favorable tenor of the earlier dispatches received in Washington yesterday. When these earlier dispatches indicating Huerta's willingness to salute the flag were received, it is quite probable that too little allowance was made for Mexican peculiarities. What was construed in the State Department and in the White House as an assurance of Huerta's willingness to make amends would have been more accurately interpreted as the beginning, not the end, of the negotiation.

Huerta's demand, if it was a demand, that his saluting guns be answered gun for gun by one of our ships was manifestly out of place in a serious negotiation. But if we take the other view, if we put ourselves in the place of Huerta, we shall see that it was perfectly appropriate, congruous, and relevant to his purpose, simply a device for gaining time, not because any advantage will accrue when time has been gained, but because immediate compliance with any sort of request is a temperamental impossibility with a Mexican. Very properly the conditions imposed by Huerta were rejected by our Government. It may reasonably be expected that the Mexican policy of delay will be continued by the making of other requests or demands no more acceptable. At any rate, this new phase of what Washington was perhaps too sanguine in considering a practically closed incident might have been foreseen from the beginning, knowing with whom we had to deal.

Huerta's reported submission to his Congress of another sort of policy, a hostile defiance of the United States, is in all probability a manifestation of this same procrastinating spirit. It would be easy to consume time while he was saying to Congress "I would" and Congress were replying "we dare not," and the discussion might run on with no limit save one imposed by us. We have imposed such a limit—it is approximately the day of the arrival of our Hampton Roads fleet on the Mexican Coast. We shall then, of course, insist upon the firing of the salute within a definitely fixed time, and in all likelihood Huerta, with the consequences of further delay plainly in his view, will comply with our terms.

It is well to bear in mind that we must not only take account of the Mexican temperament, but that in negotiations with President Huerta we have to do with a man whose habits are such that we are not at all times sure that his decisions and utterances proceed from a calm and reasonable mind. That increases our difficulty. But, after all, there may be some method in his apparently wholly foolish policy of putting off the inevitable. If President Huerta can delay his final answer until the arrival of the fleet off Tampico, he has just that much time in which to take account of his own situation and lay his plans for the future. If the northern rebels gain more victories and their ultimate triumph becomes practically certain, it might be an object of policy with Huerta to provoke an American occupation of Mexican ports by issuing a declaration of war, all this being a cover for his own escape from the country with whatever means of subsistence and comfort he could lay his hands on. He would then leave the United States with the Mexican problem still unsolved, Carranza and Villa being substituted for Huerta as the element of doubt and perplexity. This is speculative, however, for the difficulties waiting upon him who would attempt to read the mind of Huerta are obvious.

There is no occasion for any new or unusual disturbance of the national mind over the latest aspects of our relations with Mexico. Huerta might declare war against us, but it is a little puzzling to see how he could begin war, and, of course, such a step would be a confession of total irresponsibility and desperation. We may still look with reasonable confidence for a salute to our flag from his guns. But for the comfort of those who are either too sanguine or too much given to pangs of disappointment it is well to point out that there is no pleasant and agreeable way of getting along with so bad a neighbor as Mexico has become during her time of internal trouble.

THE ATTACK ON THE MAYOR.

The attempted assassination of Mayor Mitchel yesterday, and the infliction upon Corporation Counsel Polk of an injury of which he will bear the mark through life, was an incident of no political significance whatever and bears no possible relation to the widespread discontent of which we hear so much. The would-be assassin was, like the assailant of Mayor Gaynor, an aged man of unsound mind. In this case there was not a shadow of a grievance against the intended victim. The letters found on the old man's person are utterly incoherent and reveal no rational cause of animosity. There is no indication that he had any accomplice or had acquainted any person with his plan to kill the Mayor. On the contrary, it is not likely that he had formed any plan to kill, but acted under the insane impulse of the moment.

The assailant, it is ascertained, got his pistol in Jersey City. However strictly enforced, the New York law against selling deadly weapons or carrying them without a permit will be futile until the neighboring States of New Jersey and Connecticut adopt similar restrictive measures. At present the gunmen and other murderously inclined persons have no trouble whatever in supplying themselves with arms. It seems that no public officer can be safe, or for that matter nobody who is conspicuous in public life, while the trade in death-dealing instruments is thus carried on.

The assault on the Mayor has severely shocked the community. Deep sympathy will be felt for his friend and associate who suffered in his stead. Denunciation of the would-be assassin is uncalled for. That he should have been at large, in his insane mood, is probably an accident for which nobody is fairly to be blamed, but that he should have been armed for murder is disgraceful. The attack on Mayor Gaynor, in the first year of his term, was a warning which has not yet been heeded.

THE NEW YORK BANKING LAW.

The Governor's signature of the Banking bill prepared by his Commission was never doubtful after his emergency message, but it comes most opportunely as a supplement to the Federal Banking act. Under the Chairmanship of Mr. Hepburn, with the assistance of Mr. Charles L. Bernheimer on the private bank portion, the entire banking law of the State has been revised. Supt. Van Tuyl's ideas regarding savings banks also are enacted, so that every man who has a dollar in any sort of bank in this State may face the future with greater confidence than ever before that the State has done what it could to safeguard his interests. There is no prospect of any immediate repetition of the regrettable incidents in connection with private banks, and the savings bank surplus question is not likely soon to be heard of again. Of most immediate interest, however, are the portions which place the banks of the State in position either to join the new Federal reserve system or to compete with it, as conditions may make desirable. If the bill had not become law the State banks would have been equally at a disadvantage in either "a fight or a frolic." As the matter stands, in that other naval phrase, they do not know what is before them, but they are prepared for it.

At the moment the Federal reserve system is under fire, so that it is an open question whether some national banks will prefer to join the State system or some State banks to join the Federal. The enacting of this law will enable the passage to be made in either direction, and it might well be that the character of the individual bank's business might be decisive in the choice. The conditions regarding reserves are similar in figures, with the important difference that there is no central reserve reservoir in the State system. But if the Federal system serves its purpose the Federal reservoir will provide for the needs of banks in or out of the system. In one respect the new law places the State banks in a position of superiority. They can use the system of acceptances in domestic trade, whereas the Federal banks are limited to it in the foreign trade. Inasmuch as the State trust companies and banks, although fewer than the national banks in number, exceed them in deposits by $700,000,000, it is sure that the Federal system will have stout rivalry. Such conditions insure mutual respect, and promise co-operation rather than hostility.

The "credit unions" provided in the bill are a novelty, designed to enable farmers of the State to obtain loans upon personal credit, or upon real estate values, upon terms made favorable by the assumption of joint liability of all members for the solvency of such of them as become borrowers from the common funds. Membership is obtained by the sale of shares, somewhat in the manner familiar to members of building loan societies, and the proceeds are loaned without security for small amounts and with security for large amounts. A land bank for provision of long loans also is contemplated.

These are the leading features of this important new departure for the State's financial institutions, but there is one provision of new procedure of universal interest. Heretofore the Bank Department has had supervision only of those financial concerns which subjected themselves to its notice by organizing under the law. Hereafter the Superintendent can conduct independent investigations into any violations of the banking law by any corporations or individuals, and the business corporations law will cease to be a harbor of refuge for those disliking the notice of the Banking Department. There is nothing in this, or in any part of the law, which will annoy those whose conduct is what it should be, but the business of "banking" in New York State hereafter will have a new meaning.

PROSPERITY BY FORCED DRAUGHT.

Representative Lobeck practices what Secretary Redfield preaches, and it would be interesting to know what the Secretary thinks of his sermon when he hears it from another. It will be remembered that the Secretary declared that it was every man's duty to his country to promote its prosperity even under discouraging conditions, and that if any man presumed to be unfortunate under the New Freedom the Secretary would learn and tell the reason why. Representative Lobeck envies this function which the Secretary proposed for himself, and therefore moved in the House an investigation into the report that the independent steel manufacturers are consulting regarding the reduction of wages uniformly.

It is well understood that those benevolent and fraternal organizations, the unions, may combine for raising wages uniformly, but it is not to be endured that organizations for profit shall combine either to fix prices or to reduce wages. It seemed all right that wages should go up until it appeared that the cost of living rose with them. Now it seems that the reduction of wages is in the same relation to the fall in the cost of living. It is all very mysterious, and an investigation is necessary.

The investigation which would be most useful would be neither by the Secretary nor by the Representative, but by each individual into his personal affairs. If all men would earn a little more, or save a little more, their united efforts would do more to put the country on easy street than all the laws and investigations by all the Legislatures combined.

LIGHT FROM MR. CHOATE.

One of the traits, mental and moral, that have made Mr. Choate so distinguished as a lawyer is his gift for clear, summary, accurate, and impressive statement of a complex and intricate subject. This is admirably shown in his letter to Mr. White, in which he gives the net result of the long negotiations concerning the canal treaty in which he had been engaged. It is so simple, comprehensive, straightforward, and convincing that we reproduce it from our Washington dispatches. Referring to the extensive correspondence in which he, as the representative of the Government of the United States, had been engaged, he says:

> To my mind they establish beyond question the intent of the parties engaged in the negotiations, that the treaty should mean exactly what it says, and excludes the possibility of any exemption of any kind of vessels of the United States. Equality between Great Britain and the United States is the constant theme, and especially in my last letter of Oct. 2, 1901, where I speak of Lord Lansdowne's part in the matter, and say: "He has "shown an earnest desire to bring to "an amicable settlement, honorable "alike to both parties, this long and "important controversy between two "nations. In substance he abrogates "the Clayton-Bulwer Treaty, gives "us an American canal, ours to build "as and where we like, to own, control, and govern, on the sole condi"tion of its being always neutral and "free for the passage of the ships of "all nations on equal terms, except "that if we get into a war with any "nation we can shut its ships out "and take care of ourselves."

The passage from the letter of 1901, commenting on the spirit which Lord Lansdowne, then the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs of the British Government, had shown, is notable for the completeness of its interpretation of the negotiations and for the cordial feeling it expresses, which undoubtedly was felt by the other negotiators. The conclusion of the treaty in this temper, considering the vast and enduring interests involved, was a great achievement for civilization. Considering also the various elements in the public opinion of the two great democracies, it was an achievement of sound and skillful statesmanship, in which both nations may well feel pride. It is absurd as well as humiliating that at this late day there should arise a serious dispute as to this treaty, and that it should arise through the cunning effort of a favored monopoly to secure privileges to which it is in no possible way entitled. Still more mortifying is the injection into the dispute of a narrow, spiteful, treacherous national prejudice, and that the great peace-work should be endangered by the miserable impulses of race hatred, envy, and jealousy.

The statement by Mr. Choate is enlightening and conclusive. It is fortunate for the good name of the American Nation that it is in complete harmony with the views, the conception of national duty, and the action of the President. We have no doubt whatever that in the long run the country will stand by him, and that there will not be found enough Senators of either party to defeat the admirable stand he has taken for the honor of the nation.

THE TRIAL OF THE DOCTORS.

The eminent physicians of the University of Pennsylvania who are on trial in Philadelphia for alleged cruelty to animals used in their experimental work, acted instinctively, we suppose, when they saw the chief woman witness against them about to faint under cross-examination, and tried to get the unwitting examining lawyer to desist before she collapsed. In her physical need it was second nature to them to forget that the woman was their sworn enemy, and that the cross-examiner was intent on showing that notes of animal sufferings which she was consulting were not originals, as she had sworn.

It is significant, too, that the prosecutors admitted in the beginning that the trial was not to prove the cruelty of "vivisection," but was based on charges of neglect of animals after the experiments had been performed. Dr. Joshua Sweet, the first physician placed on trial, followed the testimony of Samuel Geyer, the ex-keeper of the university's kennels, that a dog came from the laboratory "covered with hypodermic punctures," with the statement that the "punctures" were simply sores produced by mange. In another case, Dr. Sweet testified, one of the doctors had experimented on the spinal cord of an animal, not by "dropping weights, breaking its back," as charged, but by an incision without breaking the back, after the animal had been put under an anaesthetic, and in the hope of finding a means of saving human life in cases of spinal injury. The complaint that bandages were not used after abdominal incisions was answered by testimony that bandages in such cases would be insanitary and not conducive to proper recovery. The charge that dogs were fed on garbage after operations resolved itself into the question whether scraps fresh from the university dining tables, sent to a suitably equipped and sanitary animal house, were not sufficiently nourishing.

Possibly the charges of laymen and women members of a society that is looking for examples of cruelty will prevail over the defense of these doctors. They are men who have achieved distinction in work that requires the nicest discipline and orderly procedure, work that is dedicated to mercy and the relief of human suffering. Some doctors have in the past been found remiss and criminally negligent in the discharge of their sacred tasks. That furnishes no argument against the practice of medicine. There is every presumption in the present trial that the doctors are innocent. But even if found guilty, the cause of animal experimentation cannot suffer.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Resentment Will Soon Disappear.

Evidently means have been found, in spite of the restrictions which naval discipline imposes, to inform Secretary Daniels that his order stopping the officers' wine mess on all the men-of-war, big and little, was distinctly displeasing to not a few of those whose wonted privilege it will abolish. The very much smaller number whose practices will be affected have probably been wise enough to say little or nothing at all, except possibly among themselves, but many officers whose use of intoxicants has been most moderate or who are total abstainers have felt that the issuance of the order gave a wrong impression to outsiders as to the habits of the navy as a whole, and with trusted friends they have discussed it resentfully.

Such expressions of opinion, of course, soon reached the Secretary, as it was no doubt the intention they should, and in his speech at the Navy League dinner he took pains to deny with emphasis that his action in regard to the wine mess was taken because he thought hard drinking was a common characteristic of naval officers.

He knew, he said, that such was not the case—that sobriety is as much the rule, nowadays, in the navy as elsewhere, where heavy responsibilities are carried by intelligent men. But he also knew the serious consequences that might follow on shipboard from an exceptional instance of intoxication, and his purpose was to minimize opportunity and temptation to overindulgence in the interests, first, of the national safety, and, second, of the inevitable few in so large a force who would not or could not control themselves when intoxicants were within reach. He denied that the order was any more a slur on the navy than were like regulations imposed on the employés of such corporations as the railways—regulations which had soon come to be considered honorable, not degrading, since they recognized rather than created an industrial aristocracy.

The defense thus made was not much applauded by its auditors, but their spokesman frankly admitted its adequacy, and on their behalf promised sincere support for the Secretary's policy. There is no question that in this matter he will also have the approval of the general public, which knows a lot more than it used to do about the effects of drinking on efficiency and commends every effort to promote temperance that it believes to be practical.

Rewards Are Not for Detectives.

Quite the ugliest feature of the revelations as to the organized stealing of automobiles and the systematic selling of the stolen machines is the incidental discovery that certain members of the detective force were wonderfully successful in recovering cars for the return of which rewards were offered, and wonderfully unsuccessful in arresting and convicting the thieves.

From that the natural and seemingly inevitable conclusion is that these policemen were at least more interested in the continuance than in the suppression of this nefarious commerce. The uncharitable will go further and see in the circumstances proof that the thieves and the implicated detectives were in league, but that is a hasty inference, and while not wholly unplausible, it is not necessary and therefore should not be drawn.

There is no doubt, however, that every effort should be made to prevent the acquisition by members of the police force of extra remuneration for the mere performance of their sworn duty, and it is questionable if rewards for the recovery of stolen property should be allowed to benefit them even indirectly by going into the pension fund. In the one case as in the other, the tendency is to give victims of theft who can afford to pay for the return of their property an improper advantage over those who cannot.

The only legitimate excuses for offering rewards at all when crimes have been committed are to incite the betrayal of the criminals by their accomplices or acquaintances, and to arouse the interest of amateurs who otherwise would have as little reason as obligation to do detective work. All that the professionals should expect or should get, besides their regular salaries, is the glory that results from displays of notable skill. And the legitimate excuses for rewards are none too legitimate. In most of them there is a hint of willingness to compound felony, and they all tend to create willingness to catch the right man if possible, but to catch somebody, right or wrong.

It's Easy to be Captious.

A correspondent whose fallibility was proved by his writing that "gee" orders horses or oxen to turn to the left is disturbed—or more probably delighted—because he has found in The Times an editorial use of the phrase "best of any."

He doesn't much wonder, he says, that Gov. Glynn spoke of New York as having "the best banking law of any State in the Union," but he is nothing less than horrified that the paper expected by him to be a model of the verbal proprieties should have fallen into the same "absolutely indefensible" locution.

Nonsense! "Best of any" isn't at all dreadful. To be sure it involves, on last analysis, the logical absurdity of admitting or declaring that a thing can be and is better than itself. But what of that? Logic and language never were on the best of terms, and, ever since growls and grunts turned into words, human beings have been taking short cuts to arrive at the expression of their meanings.

It wouldn't do to go quite so far as to say that what is understood is right, but the comprehensible is never "absolutely without defense"—no more than is the putting of an "absolutely" unnecessary "absolutely" in front of such a word as "indefensible." Our critic indulges in that obvious pleonasm, just as he committed the much greater sin of confounding "gee" with "haw," but only under great provocation would we have called his attention—and that of the Board of Education—to what we will denominate his carelessness or his ignorance, just as he prefers. Now how does he feel!

Men have died and gone elsewhere than to heaven, but not for saying "best of any." If one prefers "best of all," or "better than any other," he can safely use it and be happy.

MAN AS A DRONE.

Enough Work for Both Sexes in the Suffrage State.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mrs. John Martin, in the Magazine Section of last Sunday's Times, imagines a very dismal future for men if women obtain the right to vote in this State. At least I must conclude she means the State of New York, for in those States in which women have been accorded their political rights males have not as yet succumbed to the terrible influences of women except in the sweet old way and with similar results. Feminism, according to Mrs. Martin, is to bring man into the dust, to the condition of a drone in the beehive and that of a tomcat.

The correlation between bees and cats has yet to be made clear, but to Mrs. Martin, who sees glory in the condition of the cave women, who had nothing better in life than cooking meals for their fellow-savages, some different light is vouchsafed. I favor equal rights for women, but I do not see the resultant decadence of man. He will still dig out gold and coal from the earth, man the ships, build our houses, and protect us from invaders. There is much in the world for man to do without any necessity for his monopoly of political right. Nature is stronger than politics, and what nature has built up through the ages is not likely to fall through the assertion of women's rights.

The fact that one woman should recommend the cessation of necessary housework without specific payment does not signify that all suffragists think that way. The gloomy prospect of the world's work passing into the hands of spinster workers, as Mrs. Martin predicts, is absurd when it is borne in mind how much that is important in that work must always be performed by men.

"GEE" AND "HAW"

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It would have been much better if "A. E. P." had consulted his dictionary before writing the letter in to-day's Times regarding the use of the word "gee." He says "it is a direction to the horse to turn to the left, as opposed to 'haw' or 'hoy,' which means turn to the right."

Having lived in the country for over fifteen years, and therefore being more or less familiar with the terms used in its daily life, I had my own opinion as to the direction a well-bred horse or mule would turn when ordered to "gee." Strange to relate, it did not check up with the theory of "A. E. P." Therefore, following his advice, I consulted a dictionary, and here is what I discovered: "Gee, to cause (a draught animal) to turn to the right or from the driver." "Haw, to turn, or cause to turn, to the left in driving"; also "to gee up, to increase speed, hasten." So "A. E. P." was wrong in criticising Mr. Saine.

The Navy's "Plucking Board."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

How can citizens acquaint themselves with the workings of the "Plucking Board" of the United States Navy? Can it be possible that an officer who, because of unusual qualifications, was detailed to special duty of establishing aviation for the Goverment, can be plucked for lack of the sea duty of which he was thereby deprived?

This seems to be what has happened to Capt. W. I. Chambers, who was plucked in 1913. But does not such a law put a penalty on efficiency and tend to lower the standard of the navy? Should not the law be modified to suit the exigencies of each case? The acknowledged reason for not doing this is in order not to establish a precedent.

In the working out of the methods of the "Plucking Board," those valuable for special duty on shore in time of war are kept from going to the front—the special and laudable ambition of every officer. Yet this sea duty which they miss is the very thing that later causes their retirement, as has been frequently proved.

"HOMES."

Mr. Creel Wishes to Know Which Ones Suffragism Threatens.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At Wednesday's meeting of the New York State Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, when a campaign fund of $40,000 was solicited, practically every speaker declared that "to give the ballot to women will mean the disintegration of the home."

Whose home? What home? Surely they cannot mean the dark, squalid holes in the 13,000 licensed tenements in New York City alone, where whole families and adult boarders sleep, eat, and work in a single room, toiling incredible hours for incredible pittances?

Nor is it reasonable to assume that they refer to the old dog houses, dilapidated carriage sheds, chicken coops, and noisome "barracks" in which padrones herd the cannery workers of the Gulf Coast States, Delaware and Maryland, and the cranberry pickers of New Jersey?

Or to the "homes" of the 150 girls who were recently locked in the Triangle Shirtwaist Factory just as 147 dead workers had been locked in, the owner paying a fine of $20, which works out as a license fee of 13 cents for the privilege of endangering each girl's life?

Or the tattered tents of striking miners in the mountain sides of Colorado and West Virginia? Or the sickening hovels in the Pennsylvania coal region? Or the paper-walled shacks of the cotton-mill towns where children of 12 and under work ten and eleven hours a day?

Intelligence forbids the conclusion that they mean these "homes" where families rot in despair and children grow to maturity stunted in body and soiled in soul? And common decency holds back the thought that they mean the fine, splendid homes of Colorado and Wyoming, for even the most prejudiced would scarcely cover whole States with a blanket of mud.

What "home" do they mean then? Let them be more specific so that people may properly estimate the danger.

"THE LIGHTHOUSE."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I correct the error made in Mr. Choate's letter in this morning's Times? The sum pledged to the Lighthouse Fund for the Blind has now reached $101,000.

I would specially commend to your readers a consideration of the "Log of the Lighthouse," which is the seventh report of the society, and thoroughly reviews its exceptional labors and wonderful results. Our work has been well described as resembling that of the Eddystone. It consists of two lamps—one gives light through work and the other is a lamp of consolation. What we especially need at present is a fund out of which to supplement the incomes of industrious blind people in commercial enterprises, and $35,000 to pay off the mortgage on our Lighthouse. We depend entirely on voluntary contributions, and we can use anything—old shoes, theatre tickets, automobiles, five-cent pieces, and million dollar checks. Let me quote a few lines from our report:

> On behalf of the blind, close your eyes for five minutes and think during that time what it would mean to be alone, friendless, and without opportunity in your blindness. Think what the Lighthouse would mean to you then. Some one to tell you what you could do, despite your handicap, to keep you sane, to put eyes in your finger tips, and to give you back the interests and occupations which you seemed to have lost with your sight. When you have thought this over, give yourself the pledge of service. Write us the largest check that you possibly can, and then come to the Lighthouse and help us by your good-will and by interesting your friends in our efforts to find light through work.

Chairman of the Lighthouse Fund Committee.

SUNDAY THEATRE LAW.

Sabbath Committee Explains Complaint Against Opera Company.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In The Times of yesterday your reporter seeks to poke a little fun at Inspector Dwyer and the Sabbath Committee for supposing that the "Dance of the Hours," from the opera "La Gioconda," was thought to be a ballet number on the programme at the Century Opera House last Sunday night.

The complaint which we received had nothing to do with this number, but with the announcement on the official programme that Albertina Rasch and Edmund Makalif would appear in "The Evolution of the Dance."

The fact that the law was observed last Sunday night was due to the vigilance of the Inspector and the presence of the police. There was dancing at this place two weeks before, when the same Albertina Rasch and Edmund Makalif gave an illustration of saloon dances of all nations.

It would be hard to convince the public that these accomplished dancers had become overnight operatic vocalists, or even an orchestra for the rendition of musical selections.

While it is not the desire of those patrons of the Century Opera Company who are offended by these infringements of the religious liberty of the community and the desecration of the Sabbath, to deal harshly with the offenders, it may nevertheless become necessary to enforce the extreme penalties of the law upon those who persistently override the friendly warning against its violation. The penalties are heavy, $500 for each proved violation, in addition to a civil penalty of $500 and the revocation of the license of the house.

WM. P. SWARTZ,
Secretary New York Sabbath Committee.

The Greytown Claims.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read with interest your account of the bombardment by Commodore Hollins of the town of Greytown, Nicaragua, on June 13, 1854. Among the Americans who owned property in that town at the time was my father, the late Calvin Durand of New York, whose office was at 159 Maiden Lane.

He, like all others, had to suffer entire loss, the Committee on Claims in 1876, Washington, D. C., deciding adversely in the Trautmann Perrin bill for damages, this being a test case. It was said at the time that Lord Palmerston in Parliament denounced the bombardment and called it a "hen roost robbery." The Greytown claims were just and should have been paid in full by the United States Government.

GALWIDDEE.

Bleak and drear are the cliffs of Galwiddee,
Rising so gray to the lead of the sky,
Loud and successive the boom of the surf,
And eerie the sound of the wind's chilling cry.

Cruel as talons the rocks of Galwiddee,
Showing so sharp through the white of the foam.
Pity the mariner who hears the Black Friar,
Chanting a requiem there in the gloam!

Old Lyme Artists Show Pictures to be Sold for New Art Gallery.

Old Lyme has come to New York. The artists of the fine old paintable town, with the white horse and the white houses, and the white picket fences and the library, have become discontented, like the rest of us, with their restricted quarters, and are planning to raise money for a handsome new building that shall look just like an art gallery, in which to hold their annual exhibitions, what might be called their Labor Day exhibitions, when they have tea on the lawn and show the work of the season and the sketches that led up to it. With this in mind they have brought their leafy boughs to Dunsinane, and are showing in a gallery of the Frances Building a collection of pictures donated by members of their group, which they will sell to raise money for the new building.

Mr. Greacen shows his picture of the Old New York Post Office, not in the least topographical, just a pleasant blur of white and gray that is Post Office, and a motley of dim colors in the foreground that is Passing Show. There are sheep pictures, of course. Mr. Howe has painted the poor beasts after the shearing, when they look like scallops with the fried part taken off, and Mr. Turcas has painted a clever picture of a man in a wintry landscape, dragging home evergreens, with sheep following after and nibbling at the branches. Mr. Cohen has given two or three paintings dignified in composition, Mr. Burr's brisk little river scene, a Winter landscape by E. L. Warner, Charles Ebert's "Rockbound Coast," a vibrating "Edge of the Pasture," by Walter Griffin, an impressionistic (not Post) landscape by Mr. Ball, a dock picture by Frank Bicknell, and "Early Spring" by Clarke Voorhees, a violet and blue harmony by Chauncey F. Ryder, some very charming studies by Mr. Vezin, a straightforward, vivacious, unsentimental landscape by George H. Bruestle, a pasture scene by Mr. Poore, and an interior by Mr. Bittinger are among the works that attract attention.

There also is a preliminary statement, delicately colored, of the new building in its Lyme setting, but unfortunately the architect did not know about the stone wall that will enframe it, and gave it instead an ordinary picket fence. Visitors are asked to visualize the stone wall. Otherwise the new building looks delightfully satisfactory, clean and yellow, and no sign of a winding staircase. Nevertheless, those who know their Old Lyme sentimentally will mourn. First, the white church went as a constant theme, and now the new, real art gallery comes, and it stands to reason that a place in which pictures can be shown to advantage will not in itself be paintable. Whoever made a success of painting the Louvre or the London National Gallery, or our own National Academy? The next thing will be a ten-story hotel. But the artists have waited a long time to sound their knell. And they have thus escaped the charge made against us by foreign experts that we put up galleries before we have anything to put in them. There will be no danger of that kind in the case of the Lyme Gallery.

⁂

Announcement is made by the Board of Education that on Tuesday evening next at Metropolitan Temple, Seventh Avenue and Fourteenth Street, Manhattan, Alexander T. Van Laer will continue his course of free lectures on "The History of Painting" with a talk on "Landscape Painters of America." On Friday night at Public School 28, Anthony and Tremont Avenues, Mrs. Nettie L. Beal will lecture on "Leonardo da Vinci."

The exhibition of sculpture, paintings, and drawings, by Eli Harvey, at the American Museum of Natural History has been extended to April 28.

⁂

Owing to the interest manifested by the public in the Tapestry Exhibition at the Brooklyn Museum, Eastern Parkway, it will be continued for another week, the last day being Sunday, April 26, instead of April 21, as previously announced. The attendance at the museum on Sunday, April 12, was 5,202, and the splendid installation, in the dome room and the large picture gallery on the third floor, was much admired, especially the long vista, at the end of which appears the Hainauer Crucifixion.

ENGLISH CAPITAL WAITS.

Huge Investments, Says Le Dioyt, Hang on the Rate Decision.

W. H. Ellis, a naval architect, who is associated with the firm of John Brown & Co., Glasgow, builders of the Aquitania, arrived here yesterday on the Cunarder Lusitania. The new liner, he said, rapidly was nearing completion and would make her trial trip on May 10 and then go to Liverpool to get ready to sail for this city on May 30.

Sir Henry E. Knight, a former Lord Mayor of London, who is 81 years old, hale and hearty, came on the Lusitania to visit friends here and in Canada. W. J. Le Dioyt, an English financier, who was accompanied by his wife, said that there was $250,000,000 of capital tied up in England waiting to be invested in American and Canadian securities.

"English capitalists," said Mr. Le Dioyt, "always have favored American railroads for investment, but capitalists now are awaiting the decision by the Interstate Commerce Commission regarding the increase in rates. The new currency law is considered to be an excellent measure by English financiers, and the manufacturers over there are confident that the reduction of the tariff will result in an increase of their business with this country."

Mr. Le Dioyt said that bankers and business men with whom he had talked before sailing said that they approved President Wilson's Mexican policy.

Frank R. Atkinson, an English architect, another passenger on the Lusitania, came over to confer with the officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad about plans for the construction of a big hotel near the Pennsylvania Station. Mr. Atkinson drew the plans for the new Midland Adelphi Hotel in Liverpool, England.

SCHOOL CHILDREN GO UNFED

Principal Cyrus E. Smith of Public School 58, at Woodhaven, in Queens, has made an application to Mayor Mitchel on behalf of children of his school who are in dire need of relief. He is supported in this appeal by John H. Leich, a member of the Local School Board.

Mr. Smith asserts that the teachers of the school raised a fund to provide food and clothing for some of the children to keep them from actual stavation. At one time this Winter this fund amounted to $200. It was found that a number of children were sent to school every morning without breakfast, and the teachers arranged whereby milk was sent to the school each morning, and bread and milk were given daily to the unfed children.

Mayor Mitchel has been asked to favor a plan to establish a bureau of the Charities Department in Queens so that dire poverty can be relieved. The overworked bureau in Brooklyn now has supervision in Queens and it is unable to cope with the situation.

WOODLAWN OFFERS SANCTUARY TO BIRDS

FEEDING STANDS IN FALL

Ernest Harold Baynes, the Ornithologist Who Staged the Masque "Sanctuary," Aids in Plans.

Edward C. Moen, Vice President and a Director of Woodlawn Cemetery, announced yesterday that the Board of Directors had decided to establish a bird sanctuary in the cemetery. The idea originated with Ernest Harold Baynes, a well-known ornithologist, and a survey of the cemetery was made yesterday afternoon by Mr. Moen and Mr. Baynes to decide on the details. Mr. Baynes, who has established bird clubs in many of the principal cities of this country, is very enthusiastic over the Woodlawn sanctuary.

"There could hardly be a better place for birds," he said last night, "and I am sure that it will be one of the best sanctuaries in the United States. Mr. Moen and I decided that as a beginning 100 bird boxes would be placed in the trees. Then next Fall feeding stands will be erected, and next Spring when the birds have become domiciled baths will be ready for them. The bird boxes are made after the design of Baron Hans von Berlepsch, who uses them on his great estate in Thuringia, Germany. He has the greatest bird sanctuary in the world, and after many experiments hit upon this type of box, which is practically a hollowed out section of log similar to the burrow of a woodpecker."

The establishment of a bird sanctuary at Woodlawn has been debated for some time, and finally the Directors decided that there were four very good reasons for the action they have taken. These were given as follows: "The birds will keep down the insect pests and thus preserve the beautiful trees; encouragement of the wild birds is right in line with the nation-wide movement for bird conservation; the presence of numbers of birds will make the cemetery a more cheerful place, and, lastly, the sanctuary will encourage visitors to foster and protect birds in their own private gardens and everywhere else."

Mr. Baynes told of the movement on foot for the preservation of birds.

"Clubs have been established all over this country," he said, "and I have delivered lectures in a number of the larger cities to large and interested audiences, who have later taken up the work of caring for the birds. In the clubs we have tried particularly to interest the younger ones, the boys and girls. I have found that as soon as they understand the work and the pleasures of looking after the birds they become most enthusiastic and will go to any length to protect them.

"Small boys who usually would spend their time killing birds with sling-shots, as soon as they join one of the clubs are ready to fight any other small boy who tries to harm and kill a bird. This national interest in preservation of birds is more useful than sentimental. Of course, every one likes to hear and see the birds, but when you understand that a single bird in the course of a year will destroy many thousands of injurious insects you will see that bird preservation is a good investment."

The bird masque "Sanctuary," recently given at the Hotel Astor, was to spread the idea of bird conservation and was staged and costumed by Mr. Baynes.

TAXICAB RATES CUT.

New Zones Established for Railroad Terminals.

A new schedule of charges for taxicab service from the Grand Central Terminal, the Lackawanna at West Twenty-third Street, and the West Shore at the foot of West Forty-second Street was put into effect yesterday by the Westcott Express Company. They offer a considerable reductions to patrons.

The zone formerly established, which radiates from the West Shore Terminal, is bounded on the west by the Hudson River, on the north by Fifty-ninth Street, on the south by Twenty-sixth Street, and on the east by Lexington Avenue. A charge of 75 cents was made in that area. The new schedule establishes another zone bounded on the north by Fiftieth Street, on the south by Thirty-fourth Street, and on the east by Sixth Avenue, and the charge is 60 cents in this district. The charge of 75 cents will continue in effect for sections in the old area beyond the limits of the new zone.

The old 75-cent zone from the Grand Central extends from river to river and from Twenty-sixth Street on the south to Fifty-ninth Street on the north. The new 60-cent zone extends from Second Avenue on the east to Seventh Avenue on the west and from Twenty-sixth Street on the south to Fifty-ninth Street on the north. The old Delaware & Lackawanna zone extends from Fourth Avenue to the Hudson River and from Fourteenth Street to Thirty-fourth Street. The charge was 75 cents. The new zone in which the charge will be 60 cents is from Sixth Avenue on the east to the Hudson River on the west and from Fourteenth Street on the south to Thirty-fourth Street on the north.

These fares are for one or two persons. The rates in the new zones will be 85 cents for three or four more persons instead of $1, as formerly, and $1.25 for five or six persons instead of $1.50 as formerly.

The rate for hourly service is also reduced from $2.50 to $2 per hour. Additional time will be 50 cents for a period of 15 minutes instead of 12 minutes, as formerly, and for stops 50 cents for a period of 15 minutes instead of 12 minutes, as formerly.

CITIES WRONGLY GOVERNED.

Running Them on National Political Lines a Mistake, Says McAneny.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 17.—"American city government as we know it, historically, does not offer a flattering record," said George McAneny, President of the Board of Aldermen of New York, in the first of six Dodge lectures on "Responsibilities of Citizenship" at Yale to-night. "The basic difficulty, as I conceive it, is that we made the mistake of fashioning the forms of our city government upon the Governments of State and Union.

"Having made a miniature of this sort, suggesting at every point the entrance of partisan politics, we have run our cities upon national political lines. Whenever anything has gone wrong the cry has been, 'Change the government,' and the process of upsetting things at the polls, with the consequent 'turning out of the rascals,' has been accepted as the normal remedy for passing ills. The result has been that we have not only had a system of government utterly unsuited to its purpose, but a chaos of checks and balances that has reduced both opportunity for real service and responsibility for trust.

"Part of the task that lies before us is to drive home the conviction that every man and woman in the city is contributing, in one way or another, to the cost of its administration, and that when the public moneys are wasted, or insufficient service is given in return for what is spent, part of the loss must be borne, through higher rents and higher general cost of living, by every one of them."

Champ Clark to Speak Here.

Champ Clark, Speaker of the House, will deliver a lecture at the West End Presbyterian Church to-morrow evening. He will be the guest of Congressman Walter M. Chandler at dinner before the lecture.

UPHOLD OPERA BAN ON HAMMERSTEIN

Appellate Division of Supreme Court Unanimously Sustains Injunction Holding to 1920.

CAN MAKE DECISION FINAL

But Impresario and Son Say Attorneys Have Started an Appeal—May Give Musical Comedies.

The Appellate Division yesterday affirmed the judgment of the lower court in the case of the Metropolitan Opera Company against Oscar Hammerstein and his son Arthur. The opera company had applied to the Supreme Court for an injunction restraining the Hammersteins, father and son, from producing opera in the new opera house in Lexington Avenue, built last Summer and Fall, and the action, brought before Justice Pendleton in the Supreme Court, was decided in favor of granting the injunction, the decision being handed down early last December.

From this decision the Hammersteins appealed to the Appellate Division, and yesterday's verdict came from this body. The Justices of the Appellate Division were unanimous in deciding to uphold the judgment of the Supreme Court. No opinion accompanied the decision.

As the matter now stands Oscar and Arthur Hammerstein are enjoined permanently from producing opera in New York and Boston until April, 1920, which the Metropolitan Opera Company's complaint held was the date up to which they had contracted to stay out of the field in consideration of the purchase of Hammerstein's opera house in Philadelphia for $1,200,000 by the Metropolitan company in 1910.

The Appellate Division has it in its power to make yesterday's decision final as far as the courts of the State of New York are concerned. When a decision of this court is unanimous the parties to the action cannot take their cause to the Court of Appeals, the highest court of the State, unless the Justices of the Appellate Division give them permission to do so.

Both Oscar Hammerstein and his son said last night that their lawyers had already taken steps to carry the matter further. Ex-United States District Attorney Henry A. Wise represents Oscar Hammerstein, and John B. Stanchfield represents Arthur Hammerstein. Neither of them could be reached last night to explain what legal action would be taken as a result of yesterday's decision. Both the Hammersteins said their attorneys had informed them yesterday that an appeal had been started, and that it would be argued in June, Arthur adding that this time his case would be handled separately from that of his father.

The complaint in the action filed by the Metropolitan Opera Company stated that the Hammersteins had agreed not to produce opera in New York or Boston for a period of ten years if the Metropolitan would purchase Hammerstein's Philadelphia Opera House for $1,200,000, which was done in April, 1910, by E. T. Stotesbury, acting for the Metropolitan. Later, the complaint states, Hammerstein asked to be released from his agreement, but the complaining company refused to do this. The application for an injunction was made when Hammerstein announced his intention of producing opera in English at the New Lexington Opera House. The injunction was granted by Justice Pendleton, and the Hammersteins appealed from this decision, which was upheld by the Appellate Division yesterday.

The fate of the new Opera House which has just been completed at Lexington Avenue and Fiftieth Street hangs largely on this decision. If the Hammersteins are unable to give opera there it will have to be used for some variety of theatrical production. The impresario and his son are at liberty to give ordinary theatrical productions or musical comedies. Oscar Hammerstein said last night that if he could not use his opera house for opera, he would have no trouble in leasing it to some one else for opera or ordinary theatrical productions. He said he had no definite plans in regard to it.

Dance To-night for 'The Lonely Girl.'

An Easter dance for "The Lonely Girl in New York" will be given by the Board of Managers of the Virginia House, 228 East Twelfth Street, this evening at the hotel, which is managed as a home for girls who work in downtown offices. Refreshments will be served. Mrs. Richard Irwin, President of the board, and Miss Virginia, Vice President, after whom the home is named, will be patronesses. The board is now completing plans for a second home, on the order of the Virginia House, to be located in West Thirtieth Street, and to be called the Irwin House. The present home accommodates 100 girls and is crowded. The new one will accommodate 400.

Last Gotham Dinner Dance.

The third and last of the Gotham dinner dances took place last night in the Gotham ballroom. There were about 175 present. Each hostess had her own table. Among the dinner hostesses were Mrs. Prentice Kellogg, Mrs. Charles Connfelt, Mrs. James Mott Hartshorne, Mrs. Harden L. Crawford, Mrs. Bradish J. Carroll, Mrs. Oliver Harriman, Mrs. Richard Peabody, Mrs. Edward McVickar, Mrs. Adrian Larkin, Mrs. J. Stevens Ulman, Mrs. Kenneth Murchison, Mrs. Thomas Denny, Mrs. Van Vechten Olcott, and Miss Annabella Olyphant.

Last Metropolitan Dance.

The last of the season's Metropolitan dances for young girls not out took place last evening at Sherry's. This Winter's patronesses were Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., Mrs. R. Fulton Cutting, Mrs. Bradish Johnson, Mrs. Thomas Howard, Mrs. Ernesto Fabbri, Mrs. W. Pierson Hamilton and Mrs. Francis McN. Bacon. For the season of 1914-15 the patronesses will include Mrs. Archibald Murray, Mrs. James W. Markoe, Mrs. Winthrop Chanler, Mrs. Francis McN. Bacon and Mrs. Thomas Howard.

Luncheon for Young Girls.

Mrs. Lancaster Morgan gave a luncheon yesterday at her home, 180 West Fifty-ninth Street, for her young daughter, Miss Helen Ridgely Morgan, who will make her début next year. The guests were, with one exception, next Winter's buds, and were the Misses Marietta Chapin, Marie Boynton, Elizabeth Clarkson, Mary Frances Gilbert, Almy Gilford, Caryl Hackstaff, Kathryn Montgomery, Constance Peabody, Elise Rice, Edith Sloan, Eleanor Vredenberg, Josephine Bulkley Wells and Marion Hall.

MISS LADEW WEDS TO-DAY.

Bride to be of W. R. Grace Is Vice President of $2,000,000 Corporation

Miss Elise Wall Ladew will become the bride at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon of William Russell Grace. The ceremony will be performed at the Ladew country home, Elsinore, near Glen Cove, L. I., by the Rev. Father Bernard O'Reilly, rector of St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church of Glen Cove.

The bride was the guest of honor last evening at a dinner and dance at the Piping Rock Club, near Locust Valley, at which many of the 1,000 invited guests were present.

Harvey S. Ladew, brother of the bride, organized on Thursday the newly incorporated Edward R. Ladew Company, whose capital is $2,000,000. He is the President, his sister, Miss Elise Wall Ladew Vice President, and James I. Taylor Secretary-Treasurer. The factory in Glen Cove is said to be the largest leather belting establishment in the world.

WILSON WEDDING ON MAY 7.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—President and Mrs. Wilson to-day made a formal announcement that the wedding of Miss Eleanor Randolph Wilson and Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo will take place on Thursday, May 7.

In accordance with the wishes of Miss Wilson and Mr. McAdoo, the company witnessing the ceremony will be very small, only the Vice President and Mrs. Marshall, the Cabinet, and the immediate members of the two families to be present.

SOCIAL NOTES.

Sir Robert Perks and his son, R. Malcolm Perks, of England, have returned to the St. Regis from Chicago, where they spent several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Bierck are sailing to-day for England and France, and upon their return will open their cottage at Garden City, L. I., for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Osborne Baker are sailing next Thursday for Europe on the Amerika. They will visit England and Germany, making motor trips, returning in October to their place at East Orange, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Potter have returned from Europe, where they spent the Winter, and are at the Hotel Gotham before opening their place at Katonah, N. Y.

A considerable sum was realized yesterday afternoon by the café chantant given at the Plaza by the Woman's Auxiliary of the University Settlement Society for the benefit of the Girls' Summer Camp which is maintained by the society.

Mrs. Charles Appleton Terry and Miss Catharine L. Terry are sailing to-day for Europe on the Olympic. Mrs. Paul Morton, who is sailing to-day, will not return until next Autumn.

The Fin de Semaine Club has sent out invitations to the amateur dancers of New York who have won prizes during the season to attend the meeting of the club to-night at the Astor. Society women are to act as judges for the dancing contest.

The wedding of Miss Madeleine Cook, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Cook, and Theodore P. Dixon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Courtlandt P. Dixon, will take place a [illegible] o'clock this afternoon in the Central Presbyterian Church. A very small reception will follow at the Cook residence, 32 East Sixty-fourth Street.

Mrs. Henry M. Johnson will entertain this afternoon with a bridge party at the Gotham, followed by tea.

The Sans Egal Club will hold a meeting this evening at the Gotham in place of the Friday night gathering.

Mrs. George Powell Benjamin will give a reception this afternoon at her residence, 160 West Sixty-ninth Street.

The Pen and Brush Club will give a dinner dance this evening in the Winter Garden of the Hotel McAlpin.

Judge Ernest J. Heppenheimer of the New Jersey Court of Errors and Appeals, and Miss Ruth Hyde Norris, daughter of Mrs. George Norris of Jersey City, will be married in Trinity Church, lower Broadway, to-day at 1 o'clock. They will live at Walnut Manor, Highwood, N. J.

Mrs. Roger Watts is to give a lecture and a Greek dance illustrating perfect balance in movement and its psychological importance at the Booth Theatre on Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The Trio de Lutece will accompany the dance. Tea will be served in the lounge at 4:30.

A concert arranged by Miss Leary was held last night in the music room of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Clark's residence, 962 Fifth Avenue, for the benefit of the Abbe Gasquet fund. Frank Pollock sang. The other artists were Miss Raymonde Jacques; André Tourret, Camille Decreus, and Arthur Scott Brook. After the concert refreshments were served, and the picture gallery was thrown open.

The Friday afternoon dances arranged by Miss Doane resumed their sessions yesterday in the Waldorf-Astoria apartment. Among those taking parties were Mrs. William H. Bliss, Mrs. Walter McCorkle, Mrs. Albert B. Kerr, Mrs. Pierre Carter, Mrs. Walter Rutherfurd, and Mrs. Kurt Reisinger.

Mr. and Mrs. Ledyard Stevens, who spent the Winter at Southern Pines, Ga., are due in town to-day and will be at the St. Hubert, 120 West Fifty-seventh Street, until they open their East Hampton, L. I., cottage for the Summer.

Miss Annie Burr Jennings has invitations out for a dinner on Wednesday evening, April 22, at her residence, 48 Park Avenue. Francis Rogers will sing.

The girls of the Semple School will give their playlet, "A School for Clowns," in Cullum Hall, West Point, this evening for the benefit of the Army Relief Fund.

Sir Henry Knight of London has arrived at the Biltmore. William Orr gave a dance for 150 of his friends last night in the music room of the hotel.

Ball for New Hospital Fund.

A charity ball and floral fête is to take place at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory, Fort Washington Avenue, this evening, under the auspices of the Washington Heights Hospital Building Fund Committee. It is expected that $75,000 will be raised from the sale of tickets, advertisements in the souvenir journal, and donations. The entire proceeds will go toward the campaign recently started to raise $150,000 for the erection of a new hospital in the Heights section. Adolph Lewisohn is Chairman of the Reception Committee and Dr. Louis Neuwelt Chairman of the Arrangement Committee. The entertainment will be by professional talent. Prizes will be awarded to the best dancers.

"Five Frankforters" in German.

Carl Roessler's comedy, "The Five Frankforters," which was originally produced in New York at the Irving Place Theatre and later became a Broadway play, was revived at the German playhouse last night. The five brothers, natives of the City of Frankfort, were reproduced on the stage in the persons of Heinrich Matthaes, Ernst Robert, Christian Rub, Rudolf Aicher, and Heinrich Marlow, the latter as the Solomon of the piece. Otto Stoeckel, Annie Simson, and Marie Kierschner acted the other important characters.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

One thousand children from the various schools in the neighborhood of Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre will be the guests on Monday of Mr. Proctor to witness the Hepworth Motion Pictures of Charles Dickens's "The Old Curiosity Shop."

The performance of "Change" at the Park Theatre last night was under the auspices of the Columbia University Institute of Arts and Sciences. This afternoon the employes of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company will occupy the second balcony while the Consumers' League has provided for working girls from the department stores to-night.

The management of the Winter Garden announces that rehearsals will begin on Monday morning for the new Summer show, called "The Passing Show of 1914," which will be produced at the Winter Garden in June. "The Whirl of the World," the present attraction, will then be moved to Chicago for the Summer.

The United Booking Offices have sent out a warning to theatrical people that a man, representing himself as a member of the Consolidated Photoplay Company, and claiming to represent the Colonial Theatre and Edward F. Albee, has been obtaining money under false pretenses. Mr. Albee said that the man was a fraud and an effort was being made to arrest him.

MR. MAUDE APPEARS IN VARIOUS GUISES

FOR THE ACTORS' FUND

Special Performances Yield Large Sum—Burlesque Theatres Lead—Liberty Theatre Matinee Called Off

Something of the range of his gifts as a comedian was displayed by Cyril Maude yesterday at the special matinée at Wallack's, for in the course of the afternoon, he appeared as a shuffling tramp from off the Thames Embankment, as a graceless and rattle-pated young nobleman, and as Sir Peter Teazle. It was a brief but interesting glimpse of the versatility New York might have come to know had not "Grumpy" been tried so early in Mr. Maude's répertoire and proved so overwhelmingly a popular success.

The afternoon's entertainment, in which Lorain Wyman and Cecilia Loftus played a part, was for the Actors' Fund of America, one of many given throughout this and other cities. It is interesting that it should have been a visiting English player who arranged the only special programme given here for the benefit of this institution of the American stage. Mr. Maude went about the preparations whole-heartedly, and the response at Wallack's yesterday was appreciative, even if the big theatre was not actually packed to the doors.

"The School for Scandal" was represented by the two quarrel scenes between Sir Peter and his pretty, young wife, and by the famous screen scene in the library at Joseph Surface's. This Sir Peter Teazle was interesting, giving less emphasis to the irascibility, and rather more to the chuckling and doting side of the much troubled old gentleman. It would be a welcome thing if, on his return to America next season, Mr. Maude should present a répertoire of the classic comedies. Miss Margery Maude was a somewhat fragile Lady Teazle, Montague Love stepped from the villainy of "Grumpy" to the villainy of Sheridan, and Shelley Hull was the Charles Surface.

It was in "A Partic'kler Pet," a one-act adaptation from the French by Edward Knoblauch, that Mr. Maude appeared as a tramp. Very 'oarse and 'orrid dirty, looking for all the world as though he had stepped down from the pages of "Punch," this plaintive "casual" scuffles in for his night's lodging at a "casual ward" and is royally received there because the cautious Superintendent has conceived the quite groundless suspicion he is a reporter come in disguise to "write up" the establishment.

"Toddles" is another adaptation from the French, a Clyde Fitch farce, of which the second act was given yesterday, with Mr. Maude as Lord Meadows in the midst of his reluctant preparations for his wedding and quite desperate about it, too, until his difficulties are solved by the theft of his clothes. So we leave him, pajama-clad and happy. This act is an engaging trifle, and was particularly useful yesterday because it gave Mr. Maude a chance to show himself as a young man in rapid, buoyant farce.

Miss Wyman sand charmingly a ballad, an old English nursery song and two French songs. And, of course, Miss Loftus brought down the house with her imitations. Particularly striking were her bits from "Within the Law," when she followed a brief appearance as the slangy Aggie after the fashion of Florence Nash, with the impassioned first-act speech of Mary Turner's, remarkably in the manner of Miss Cowl.

The attendance at the New York theatres where special matinée performances were given for the Actors' Fund yesterday afternoon did not come up to expectations, although a large sum of money was raised for the fund. At the Liberty Theatre the matinée was called off, with the announcement that Miss Margery Maude was playing with her father at Wallack's Theatre, and that her part in Miss Anglin's production of "Lady Windermere's Fan" could not be filled.

Reports from other cities where special matinées were held showed better results, but it was impossible last night for the officers of the Fund to arrive at the amount of money raised.

The Burlesque Theatres of New York operated by the Columbia Amusement Company gave their regular daily matinées yesterday, and devoted their gross receipts to the fund. This was the first time the burlesque houses had been represented in the Fund entertainments and they made by far the best showing of any of the local theatres.

The theatres giving the special matinées yesterday were: Astor, Eltinge, Maxine Elliott, the Booth, the Harris, Hudson, Knickerbocker, Miner's Bronx, New Amsterdam, Gaiety, Forty-fourth Street, Cohan's, the Comedy, Fulton, Miner's People's, Columbia, Hurtig & Seamon's, Murray Hill, and Wallack's.

ARNOLD DALY QUITS.

"The Red Light of Mars," George Bronson Howard's play, which went into rehearsal at the Longacre Theatre last Tuesday with Arnold Daly in the star rôle, will not be produced by H. H. Frazee this season and, and when it is produced, if ever, by that manager Mr. Daly will not be among those present.

After two or three days of strenuous rehearsals the work was discontinued yesterday afternoon and the assembled company dismissed. There were several differences of opinion between Mr. Daly and Mr. Frazee as to the proper manner of presenting the play, and after a scene the star withdrew from the company and also returned to the management his contract.

Mr. Frazee announced last night that the play would not be produced until next Fall, and that no one had as yet been selected for Mr. Daly's rôle.

CHARITIES.

A WORK SUCH AS THIS DESERVES YOUR SUPPORT

Founded for the care of advanced and hopeless cases, patients in all stages of consumption are now received, without restriction as to sex, age, or race, fitted if possible to return to their homes capable of self-support, or given a home until death overtakes them.

Although there is a long waiting list, no patient is discharged to be a menace to his family and the public because his place is needed for another.

Your help is needed to enlarge the facilities.

A JOINT RECITAL.

Josef Hofmann and Mischa Elman were brought together by their common manager yesterday afternoon for a joint recital, as other artists with a common manager have been not infrequently of late. They played in Carnegie Hall, which was well filled, and there was enthusiasm, especially when there was any prospect of extracting "encores" by applause. This was successful seven times. The significant feature of the concert, however, the playing of the two artists together in César Franck's violin sonata in A, and Beethoven's violin sonata dedicated to Kreutzer appeared to be somewhat less esteemed.

Unhappily there must be some invidious comparison in discussing such a concert, for it was made plain that, on this occasion at least, Mr. Elman's artistic level stood below that of Mr. Hofmann's. It was plain in the performance of Franck's sonata, in which Mr. Hofmann's part was conceived in a more musical, more sincere, and more nobly artistic spirit. He might, it is true, have felt the sentiment of the first movement with a little more warmth, but it was oversentimentalized by Mr. Elman, and there were exaggerations in his interpretation of much of the sonata. He found a truer expression for the fantasy of the "recitative" of the third movement, and there was much brilliancy and elan the way the pair played the last movement in canon. Mr. Elman was more satisfactory in his views of at least the first movement of the Kreutzer sonata.

Mr. Hofmann played three pieces by Liszt as his contribution to the solo numbers. The "Funerailles," which very seldom occupies the attention of pianists in public, was worth hearing if only for the wonderful variety of tonal color that he put into it. The "Consolation" in D minor is also a rare item on concert programmes. The "Gnomenreigen" is played, but not often with such scintillating and delicate brilliancy; and in this Mr. Hofmann's memory, for a fraction of a second, played him false, as it so rarely does. He corrected it, however, as quick as a flash—quicker than most flashes; and the incident was highly unimportant, except as showing that Mr. Hofmann, too, is, after all, human. There was much applause for him and he added Chopin's F sharp nocturne and A flat waltz and Liszt's transcription of Paganini's "Campanella."

Mr. Elman's pieces were all transcribed piano music except Bazzini's "La Ronde des Lutins," which he took at a very rapid pace; a pace so rapid, indeed, that even his transcendent technique was barely equal to it. Then he added four more pieces, of which at least Beethoven's minuet in G and Schumann's "Vogel als Prophet" were also transcribed from the piano. It may be said that Schumann's fanciful little piece was shockingly maltreated in the process. Mr. Elman's vitality and his energetic and elastic bowing, his big tone and his extraordinary technical dexterity were evidently much admired. But it was not one of his fortunate days from a purely musical point of view.

FLORENCE DE COURCY SINGS

Contralto in Recital, Assisted by Miss Pelton-Jones and Vlado Herz.

Mme. Florence de Courcy, contralto, gave a recital under the modest title of "An Hour of Music" yesterday afternoon at the Waldorf, assisted by Miss Frances Pelton-Jones, harpsichordist, with Vlado Herz at the piano. To a large extent the artists devoted themselves to seventeenth and eighteenth century music. The singer governed a voice of very agreeable quality with understanding of the style and atmosphere the programme called for, imparting a charm to the old music. That she was not lacking in the dramatic style when it is appropriate was evidenced in her singing of the Habanero from "Carmen" and Chaminade's "Trahison."

Miss Pelton-Jones's playing on a harpsichord of the music which was originally written for that instrument, so different from the modern grand piano on which the music is played nowadays, had an interest all its own. The artist, as might be expected from her very choice of the instrument, has a thorough sympathy with her material and her medium.

Mr. Herz accompanied well. There was an audience of good size and it seemed to enjoy the music.

REAL BEAUTY SHOW IN LEAGUE PAGEANT

Commissioner Davis Leads Grand March with James Lees Laidlaw After Brilliant Performance.

The civil war scene was the most thrilling in the really beautiful pageant given last evening in the Seventy-first Regiment Armory by the Men's League for Woman Suffrage. The date was actually a few years after the war, at the time of the enfranchisement of the negro, but there were soldiers in it, and of course pretty women and girls dressed in the crinolined gowns of the times, and music with fifes and drums. The soldiers were the real thing, Company K of the Seventy-first Regiment, under the command of Sergt. S. W. Barkelew.

The pageant was well arranged, the scenes or episodes being given on one side of the big armory. Along this side from the gallery above had been hung a pale blue cheese cloth for a background, and with skillful lighting charming effects of shadows were seen upon this, while the groups on the floor were shown in different circles of light.

The scene opened with the soldiers in civil war uniform marching in with Uncle Sam, who took his place upon a raised dais, while the women and children cheered as they waved their handkerchiefs. After the soldiers came a group of negro men, with a band of army nurses.

"I have summoned you to do honor to our fellow-man, the negro," said Uncle Sam. "He is no longer a slave, and"—handing the negroes a roll of parchment—"I pronounce upon you the full right of citizenship."

At this Susan B. Anthony, whose part was taken by Miss Mabelle Blake, came forward, plainly dressed in dark clothes and bonnet, to demand the enfranchisement of the women. But they all shouted that woman could not bear arms and had no right to the franchise.

"Look at these women," replied the women's pioneer pointing to the nurses. "They, side by side with the soldier endured hardship, nursed him in his agony, and brought him back to life. Without the women the negro would not have been freed." But the women themselves rushed at her frantically, Uncle Sam called for peace, and they all marched out shaking their fists and leaving the pioneer alone with a few women friends.

The pageant opened with a pretty Indian scene before the coming of the white man, when the Indian sells his daughter away from her lover for a few skins. It was followed by the Puritans—groups of Priscillas and many John Ardens. The John Ardens were savage against witches and they carried off one of the village favorites to be burned. There was a pretty scene on the green in the Colonists days, which preceded the civil-war episode.

The remaining two episodes of the pageant showed the "Present" and the "Future," the Present with men and women together representing various professions and occupations, and the Future, an effective scene presenting the handsomest man and woman the suffragists could find in New York, all in classic dress. Mrs. Inez Milholland Boissevain, in a gown of cloth of gold with scarfs of purple and green—the colors of the English suffragettes as well as of the Women's Political Union of New York—and wearing a diadem, represented the future woman.

Justice, Mrs. Walter Kremer, in long, white flowing drapery and carrying a real Roman sword, presented a book of the law to the Woman of the future and the Man of the future, who was Spencer Miller, Jr. The Spirit of Triumph, Florence Fleming Noyes, in a fleecy dancing frock, with a cry of joy called forth a band of joyous sprites in yellow, who, in their own bare feet, danced a triumphant measure.

Other principals taking part in the different episodes were: Indians—Carey C. D. Briggs, Enid Watkins, Joseph F. Highland, John Wray, J. H. Lussier, and Edgar Stewart. Puritans—Margaret Wycherly, Ada Rainey, Isabel Parker, Alfred H. Brown.

The only individual work in the Colonist scene was done by the Town Crier, (A. Plummer), who called the men away from their co-workers, the women, to a town meeting to attend to the making of the laws by the men alone. F. W. Crandall made a noble Uncle Sam and C. D. Burchenal was the spokesman for the men in the civil war scene. Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw led the suffragists in the "Present Day" scene and Charles Kennedy represented "Law."

There were two real dogs in the Indian scene, a black and a red Chow, and the smallest live papoose was little Tom Chester Harris, 5 years old.

Following the pageant was a suffrage parade, in which all the performers took part, and the ball opened at its close. The march was led by James Lees Laidlaw, President of the Men's League, with Commissioner of Correction Dr. Katherine B. Davis.

On the General Committee for the pageant were R. C. Beadle, Chairman; Adeline M. Smith, Secretary; James Lees Laidlaw, Ward Melville, Benjamin A. Willis, Alfred H. Brown, Frank Kennett Drisler, and James E. Beggs.

Heading the long list of patronesses of the pageant and ball were Mayor John Purroy Mitchel, Dr. Katharine Bement Davis, William A. Prendergast, Robert Adamson, and Robert W. Bruere.

Five hundred persons took part in the pageant, which was written and staged under the direction of Miss Hazel Mackaye. Later Miss Mackaye expects to use the same pageant up-State for propaganda work.

Metropolitan Ball at Biltmore.

The Metropolitan ball was held last night at the Biltmore. There was competition dancing, and only those who had previously won prizes were allowed to enter the contest. Handsome prizes were awarded. The members of the Floor Committee included Sailing Baruch, Joseph O'Donohue, 3d, A. R. E. Fisher, Uriel Davis, and Walter Content. Among the boxholders, some of whom gave dinners before the ball, were William Strauss, John Lanigan, James Brady, Otto Kahn, and Albert Sanders.

Mrs. H. V. Newcombe Entertains.

Mrs. H. Victor Newcombe entertained yesterday in her apartment at the Savoy with a bridge and euchre party, followed by tea for eighty of her friends. The prizes were silver and crystal vases. Mrs. Newcombe will leave town in two weeks to spend the Spring in Kentucky and Virginia. She intends spending the Summer abroad. On her return she will be in the South until Winter, when she will reopen her apartment at the Savoy.

$400 FOR OLD PORTIERE.

Metropolitan Museum Also Makes Purchases at Benguiat Sale.

The Metropolitan Museum of Art made a number of purchases at the Vitall Benguiat sale at the American Art Galleries yesterday afternoon, getting a Gothic velvet panel, red on yellow, for $85; a Louis XIV. portière of red damask for $42.50; a Louis XIII. portière of rare ruby red damask for $32.50; an amber portière of damask, in Louis XIII. design, for $37.50; a Byzantine Greek embroidery on linen, a relic of the twelfth century, dated 1172, a rare museum piece, for $45, and a Venetian scarf of the seventeenth century design, birds in silver on pink damask, for $25.

A sixteenth century portière of red velvet bearing an heraldic shield, a royal coat of arms, appliqued, and finished with gold fringe and galoon, brought the highest price of the day, going to Bernet, agent, for $400. A Spanish Renaissance tapestry went to Brock for $310, and a Jewish temple hanging, showing in the embroidery a sanctuary lamp in heavy gold thread upon a ground of yellow needlework, went to the same buyer for $205.

A royal Persian portière of Bokhara jardinere velvet of the seventeenth century, ruby red centre and dark border, brought $220, and Austin paid $250 for a pair of red velvet curtains with Cardinal's coat of arms in heavy embroidery. Mrs. Hugh Murray paid $150 for a Renaissance panel of rich red embossed velvet with gold galoon and fringe, and $120 for a similar panel slightly smaller. The returns for the day were $13,499, and the total to date is $23,456.

Mrs. Orme Wilson was one of the purchasers, and among others present were Mrs. R. H. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Duncan, and Mrs. Hamilton Fish. The sale will be concluded this afternoon.

14 TUGS HELP LUSITANIA.

Big Cunard Liner Has Hard Task in Tying Up at New Pier.

The Cunarder Lusitania for the first time made fast at Pier 54 yesterday morning when she arrived from Liverpool, instead of Pier 56. A number of lighters and the ebb tide made it a difficult task to get the big liner in. It was accomplished in twenty minutes, however, with aid of fourteen tugs. Several of the lighters, whose skippers early had been told to get out of the way, were bumped by the Lusitania as she surged gently in to her pier.

In future Pier 54, which is at the foot of West Thirteenth Street, will be the mail boat pier for the Cunard liners, and it is now being extended 1,000 in readiness for the Aquitania, due on June 5.

The Lusitania was commanded on this voyage by Capt. W. T. Turner in place of Capt. Daniel Dow, who stayed ashore to recover from an attack of bronchitis. The Lusitania brought 500 cabin and 886 steerage passengers and 3,540 sacks of mail.

Capt. Turner said the liner did not leave Liverpool until 8 o'clock Saturday night, as she had to wait for high tide. She made the voyage of 3,123 miles in 5 days 9 hours and 53 minutes, at an average speed of 24.04 knots.

Bridge for Mountain Schools.

The New York Auxiliary of the Southern Industrial Association will give a large bridge and tea dance this afternoon in the Biltmore ballroom, the proceeds to go to schools for the poor whites in the mountains of the South. Mrs. Algernon Sydney Sullivan is President of the association, Mrs. Juan M. Ceballos, the Treasurer, and Mrs. James H. Dinwiddie is Chairman of the committee in charge of the entertainment. Many tickets have been sold, and a large and fashionable attendance is assured. Tickets will also be on sale at the door.

McKEE RANKIN DEAD.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 17.—McKee Rankin, the veteran actor, died here to-day. Mr. Rankin recently played a brief engagement here in vaudeville, but was taken ill and forced to give up his work. He had been confined to his room for several weeks suffering from age and a complication of infirmities.

Arthur McKee Rankin was born in Canada in 1841. His first appearance on the stage was made in Rochester under the name of George Henley. Five years later he appeared in London, using his own name. His New York début was made in "The Long Strike" in which he played Johnny Reilly. Until 1870 he was with Lydia Thompson at Niblo's Garden, but in that year became leading man at the Union Square Theatre, where he remained for five years.

On Aug. 22, 1877, Mr. Rankin appeared in his most famous part, that of Alexander McGee in "The Danites," which he produced at the Broadway Theatre. He afterward played this drama all over the world with his wife, Kitty Blanchard, with great success. In 1883 he became manager of the Third Avenue Theatre, and four years later appeared in "The Golden Giant." In 1890 he produced "The Canuck," and in 1892 "A Kentucky Colonel." This was followed in 1896 by his own play, "True to Life." In 1898, he became manager of Nance O'Neill, elevating her to a position as a star and supporting her in Shakespearean and other productions. Together they toured most of the English-speaking countries, and later appeared in this country in vaudeville. Mr. Rankin left a daughter, Phyllis Rankin, (Mrs. Harry Davenport,) a well-known actress.

Archie Boyd Dead.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, April 17.—Archie Boyd, who for forty years had been known as a creator of pastoral stage characters, died at his home here last night as a result of a nervous breakdown suffered several months ago. Mr. Boyd, who was a native of St. Louis, was 64 years of age. He kept up his stage work until a month ago. The funeral will be held to-morrow. Mr. Boyd was best known for his work in "The Village Post Master" and "'Way Down East."

Obituary Notes.

ALEXANDER DUNBAR, chief engineer of the Cunard liner Aquitania, is dead in Glasgow of pneumonia in his fifty-fifth year. He had been more than thirty years in the employ of the company, and was known to thousands of Americans who crossed on the Cunard steamers. When Mr. Dunbar was appointed to the Aquitania several months ago he left the Lusitania and went to Glasgow, where the Aquitania was being built at Clydebank.

SEYMOUR HERMAN, a retired manufacturer, died yesterday at his home, 20 Fifteenth Street, Bowne Park, Flushing, L. I., aged 58 years. He was born in Mobile, Ala., but most of his life was spent in New York. His widow and a daughter, Miss Ethel Herman, survive.

CLINTON S. VAN DE WATER, a lifelong resident of Flushing, L. I., died yesterday at his home, 38 Monroe Street, aged 58 years. He was a son of the late Silas Van De Water.

ARTHUR SMITH, 46 years old, proprietor of the Hotel Elms, on the Albany-Buffalo Turnpike, and known to thousands of touring motorists, died in Fort Plain, N. Y., yesterday of pneumonia.

GEORGE WASHINGTON FARIS, 60 years old, an ex-Congressman, died yesterday in Washington, D. C. He was elected to Congress from the Fifth Indiana Congressional District for three terms, starting in 1895 and ending in 1901.

FRANK HAYDEN, singer and actor, who retired from the stage fifteen years ago, and had since been in the theatrical costume business, died yesterday morning in his apartment in the Strathmore, at Broadway and Fifty-second Street, aged 65 years.

PAUL SIEGEL, 55 years old, son of the late Gen. Franz Siegel, died yesterday from heart disease at his home, 546 East 182d Street, Bronx. Mr. Siegel was a clerk in the Department of Health for many years. He was born in St. Louis, Mo., when his father was a teacher of mathematics and history in the German Institute of that city. Mr. Siegel is survived by his widow and two sons, one of whom is employed in the Department of Health.

WILLIAM CUSHMAN ANDERSON, 84 years old, for fifty-seven years a practising attorney in Onondaga County, died in Syracuse yesterday. He was one of the oldest lawyers engaged in active practice in Central New York.

HERMAN JOERG, a lawyer, with offices at 217 Havemeyer Street, Brooklyn, died late Wednesday night at his home, 467 Macon Street, that borough, of heart disease. Mr. Joerg was born fifty-seven years ago in Coudersport, Penn., and was the son of a prominent physician there. He began his law practice in Elmira, N. Y., coming to Brooklyn seven years ago. Mr. Joerg was a Past Grand Master of Baltic Lodge F. and A. M.

HERMAN WILLIAM SCHMITZ, a lawyer, and prominent in independent Democratic affairs of Brooklyn, died at his residence, 143 Herkimer Street, Brooklyn, on Wednesday.

ATHLETICS HELPLESS BEFORE CALDWELL

The spectacle of the Yankees winning ball games is getting to be so common that even the doubtful citizens realize that it is no accident when they romp in first. Again Chance's peppery team outclassed the Athletics at the Polo Grounds yesterday, administering a 4 to 0 whitewashing in a way which led taciturn Connie Mack to believe that his club swingers were suffering from muscular rheumatism.

Ray Caldwell teased the champs with a slow hypnotic floater, which dipped over the plate so easily that spectators in the grand stand could read Ban Johnson's signature on the leather. The Athletics got three hits, McInnis ripping off two, while Frank Baker nailed a liner to right. Two of these hits to right were barely missed by Cook, who could have grabbed them up if he had only imagined he was running to catch a train. Caldwell mixed some speed and twists with the slow floater and the Mackian batters were keenly surprised.

Carroll Brown, the best pitcher that ever promenaded the boardwalk at Atlantic City, was doing the pitching while the Yankees were gathering their four runs. Brown wore his new Spring suit to the Polo Grounds, and he was so worried that somebody might win it in the clubhouse that he had some difficulty in keeping his mind on his work. The Yanks bunched three singles on him in the fifth inning, and after two doubles and a single in the sixth the Beau Brummell of baseball was hauled back to the garage for repairs. He was succeeded by J. Weldon Wyckoff, a scholar from Bucknell College. His performance was another triumph for higher education as he stopped the Yanks quickly and they did no more hitting.

If the Athletics are beaten out by anybody for the streamer, the Yankees can hark back with pride to these first two games and say that they tipped the other clubs off as to how the crushing of the world's champions should be done.

The day was warm and clear enough for a Sunday School picnic, and about 10,000 enjoyed the outing. Manager Frank Chance acted on the coaching lines as if he had just received word that a rich uncle had passed away and left him a bale of wherewithal. Mr. Chance's legs are built along the same lines as ice tongs, and he danced up and down on them merrily.

Another happy individual was the Yankees' new mascot. Haven't you seen him yet? The one the Yanks had last year was asked to resign, and this season the club has a life-sized mascot. He comes from the Bronx, and his name is Milton Arthur. Milton is big enough to go to work, but he would rather be a mascot. If he is only a boy now, his family will never know him when he grows up. He wears the same sized uniform as Ed Sweeney.

The Yankees showed that they were wide awake in the first inning. After Murphy walked Daley tried to sacrifice, and popped to Caldwell, who whipped the ball to Williams and doubled Murphy off first. Hartzell, with one out in the first, tickled Brown for a two-bagger, Walsh raised a fly to Daley, Williams walked, and Holden ended the activity by grounding out to McInnis.

Frank Baker emitted a scare in the second when he poled a long, dangerous-looking liner to deep right, which Cook grabbed as it was fleeting toward the fence. McInnis smashed a grasser to centre, but was forced at second by Strunk, who took a big lead off the bag and Caldwell caught him far from the pillow.

The Yankees got the range of Brown's shooting in the fifth. Cook was out, McInnis to Brown at first, and Peckinpaugh whizzed a single to left. Sweeney hoisted a foul fly to Baker and Caldwell rapped a single between centre and right, sending Peckinpaugh to third. Caldwell stole second with minutes to spare. Fritz Maisel banged a neat liner to right and scored Peckinpaugh and Caldwell. Maisel died trying to steal second.

Hamilton Wins His First Game.

DETROIT, April 17.—Earl Hamilton celebrated his return to the American League from the Federals by pitching St. Louis to a 2 to 1 victory over Detroit here to-day. Covaleskie was on the mound for the Tigers, and the game was a twirlers' duel all the way. Timely hitting was responsible for all the runs. Detroit counted in the first inning when Bush walked and came home on Crawford's triple. Successful base running helped St. Louis to tie the score in the fourth. With two men out, Williams singled to left, and promptly stole second. Walker doubled, and Williams counted. The winning run came in the eighth, and again two men were retired before a St. Louis player reached first base. Austin tripled to centre, and Pratt drove a double to left, producing the tally. Crawford singled in the eighth with one out, but Crossin broke up a possible Detroit rally when he threw out Crawford on the latter's attempted steal. Score:

Chicago Sweeps the Series.

CHICAGO, April 17.—Collins's home-run drive to centre field after two were out in the ninth inning gave Chicago the long end of a 6 to 5 score to-day, making a clean sweep of the four-game series with Cleveland. Capt. Lord's batting gave the local club a comfortable lead early in the game, but the visitors by opportune hitting and taking advantage of wild pitches and errors, had little difficulty in tying the count. Lajoie failed to make a hit during the series. He came to the plate sixteen times, drew a base on balls, and made a sacrifice fly. Score:

Senators Win; Two Hits for Boston

BOSTON, April 17.—One run, scored in the ninth, gave Washington the victory over Boston to-day after a scoreless pitchers' battle of eight innings between Boehling and Leonard, youthful left-handers. Boehling pitched a remarkable early-season game. He allowed only two hits, one of which was a scratch. The Washington twirler never was in difficulty. Leonard pitched himself into and out of several holes. Errors figured in some of his difficulties. In the ninth, with one out, Morgan hit cleanly to centre. Speaker, trying to scoop the ball on a short bound, missed it, and the Washington man reached second. Scott threw wild on Shanks's grounder, Morgan going to third, and the latter scored on Henry's rolling hit to short, Scott's throw to the plate being just too late to catch him. Except in the final inning, Scott fielded sensationally. The score:

Birmingham Out for Season.

CHICAGO, April 17.—Examination of the injury to Joe Birmingham, manager of the Cleveland American League team to-day confirmed fears that he was hurt internally in Wednesday's game here. According to Dr. J. H. Blair, physician of the Chicago Americans, the Cleveland leader is likely to be put out of the game for the rest of the season.

Walter Kuhn and Andrew Sleight, substitute catchers with the Chicago Americans, were examined under X-rays to-day to determine the extent of injuries, Kuhn's right hand and Sleight's right shoulder having been hurt in practice.

MAYER KEEPS GIANTS ON THE LOSING SIDE

Superb Pitching and Fielding Brings 3 to 1 Victory for the Phillies.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 17.—Superb pitching by Erskine Mayer, supported by sensational fielding on the part of the Phillies, proved the winning combination against the Giants to-day. A home run drive within the centre field enclosure by Fred Merkle in the fourth inning save New York from a shut out, while an element of luck, coupled with three clean singles, gave the Phillies their runs and a 3-to-1 victory.

Spectacular fielding plays furnished the real features of the game, and the Phillies carried off all the honors in this respect. Mayer twirled a splendid article of ball all through the nine innings, being at his best when the Giants appeared most dangerous, but the support he received from his team mates proved a big factor in keeping the Giants from scoring.

Cravath was the particular star. In the second inning he grabbed Murray's drive almost off the fence, and in the third, with runners on second and third bases, with two out, "Cavvy" robbed New York of at least two runs by dashing to the flagpole, jumping up, and capturing a fly ball from the bat of George Burns. This catch fairly electrified the crowd of 6,000 fans, and caused Gov. Tener, who occupied a box with several friends, to applaud vigorously. Cravath again distinguished himself by making a pretty running catch of Merkle's foul fly in the sixth.

The Phillies' new infielders were also in the limelight of popular favor by reason of pretty fielding plays. Bobby Byrne, who has been forcing the fans to forget Otto Knabe's work around second base, put up another fine fielding game, his one hand pick-up and lightning throw which retired Fletcher in the first inning being a sparkling performance. Herb Murphy, the new shortstop, contributed a circus play that startled the fans in the eighth. With two out and a runner on second base, Doyle slashed a liner toward left. Murphy switched around and caught the ball backhanded.

Although the Phillies won by a margin of two runs, they had enough opportunities offered to have made the game more one-sided. Tesreau was on the slab for the Giants and was in trouble almost every inning, but managed to extricate himself in all except the fourth and eighth. In the fourth the Phillies had the bases filled with no one out, but could not hit the ball out of the infield. A dropped thrown ball and a force-out at second enabled Dooin's men to tally two runs in this inning. Byrne's one-hand play off Fletcher in the first and Cravath's catch in the second enlivened things in the first two innings when New York went out in order. Byrne walked and was caught stealing in the first, and Cravath was thrown out at second when he tried to take two bases on his drive to right field in the second.

With Fletcher out in the Third, McLean singled and Mayer's throw on Tesreau's bunt was too late to catch big Larry at second. Mayer pulled himself together and tossed out Bescher at first. The runners advanced, and then Cravath saved the day with his circus catch of Burns's wallop to the flagpole.

Merkle made his home run with two out in the fourth, and the Phillies went the Giants one better in their time at bat.

McGraw called on his emergency corps in the ninth and gave the crowd a bit of a scare. Merkle started with a single and Mike Donlin batted for Murray. Donlin shot one to Murphy, who tossed to Byrne, forcing Merkle. "Chief" Meyers batted for Stock and dropped a short fly in centre for a single. Pieh was sent to run for Meyers. McLean drove a fly to Magee, who almost doubled Donlin off second. Jim Thorpe, the Indian athlete, tried the "pinch" hit game, but the best he could do was to roll to Byrne, ending the game. Ames's Wildness Loses for Reds.

CINCINNATI, April 17.—Chicago won an exciting game from Cincinnati to-day, 6 to 5. The locals had two men on bases and two out in the ninth, when Marsans attempted, unsuccessfully, to steal home from third base, ending the game in favor of the visitors. Ames practically lost the game for Cincinnati by his wildness in the four innings he was on the mound. He gave four bases on balls, hit a man, and allowed three hits, two of which were for three bases. Davenport pitched effectively, yielding two hits in four innings, and was retired only to permit Yingling to bat for him. Vaughn, for Chicago, was also wild, and was taken out in the third inning, after giving three bases on balls in that inning, two of which developed into runs. Lavender was effective until the seventh inning, when Cincinnati scored two more runs on a base on balls, a double, and a single. In the eighth, after doubles by Gonzales and Yingling had produced another run, he was relieved by Cheney, who retired the Reds runless thereafter. The score:

AITCHISON BLANKS BRAVES.

Brooklyn Recruit Pitcher Holds Boston Team Runless.

Raleigh Aitchison, one of Brooklyn's recruit pitchers, made his début in the big show by whitewashing Boston with the aid of his teammates by the score of 5 to 0 at Ebbets Field yesterday afternoon, the Dodgers thus winding up their first series of the season without a defeat. The game was a pitchers' battle between Aitchison and Rudolph until the eighth inning, when Brooklyn squeezed in four runs on three hits. Aitchison allowed the Braves five hits, only two of which were good clean drives.

Despite the almost ideal weather, not more than 3,000 persons attended the game. J. Carlisle Smith was, aside from Aitchison, the star performer. Smith scored the first run for the Dodgers after singling to centre, and then brought in two more runs in the eighth with a triple to the left field fence.

Aitchison did not show a sign of weakness and handled himself like a veteran. Even with three men on the bags in the fifth inning he forced Johnnie Evers to hit a weak grounder to Cutshaw, which retired the side.

Evers, by the way, got himself in wrong with the crowd by attempting some of his old Cub tricks when Aitchison reached second base in the fifth inning. Apparently Evers tried to push Aitchison off the bag, but didn't succeed. The crowd hissed Evers when he came to the bench at the close of the inning. The ex-Cub again showed an atavistic tendency when he started a "kick" with Umpire Bill Klem for calling Egan safe when an attempt was made to catch him napping off first base.

With Aitchison, a left-hander, pitching, Manager Stallings shifted his line-up by putting in Collins and Mann in place of Gilbert and Connolly. Stallings uses Mann and Collins against left-handers and Connolly and Gilbert against right-handers.

In the two games played in Brooklyn the Braves have not played in the form which was expected as a result of the favorable reports of their exhibition games. The score:

Pirate Recruit Wins Game.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 17.—Recruit Kantlehner, with Pittsburgh, although wild at times, was steady in the pinches, while his teammates, by bunching hits in one inning, won, 2 to 0. The home team had men on second and third bases on two occasions, and once the bases were filled, but the Pittsburgh pitcher would tighten up and retire the side without a score. In the third inning Gibson opened with a single to centre and took second on Perritt's fumble of Kantlehner's roller. Both advanced a base on Carey's sacrifice and scored when Joe Kelly sent a hot single to centre. Kelly, by a great running overhead catch of Wilson's fly, was the fielding sensation. The score:

Giants at Brooklyn To-day.

There will be a lot of noise at Ebbets Field this afternoon, when the Giants will make their first appearance of the season in these parts. This is the first time in several years that McGraw has not brought his club home for exhibition games at the Polo Grounds. Cold weather has shown the wisdom of keeping the players South as long as possible. Squire Ebbets expects to pitch Pat Ragan against the Giants, while McGraw will probably send Mathewson to the mound, if the day is pleasant. Hostilities begin at 3 o'clock.

Johnson to Pitch Against Yankees.

Manager Clark Griffith flashed the tidings here yesterday that Walter Johnson would pitch against the Yankees at the Polo Grounds to-day. "Griff" expects that Johnson, with slight assistance, will win the American League pennant this season. Manager Chance will send either Ray Keating or "King" Cole against the Washington speeder, and, as both are in excellent shape, the Yankees feel confident of continuing their winning streak. The game will begin at 3 o'clock.

FEDERAL LEAGUE.

Kansas City Wins in Thirteenth.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 17.—Kansas City won a thirteen-inning game from the Chicago Federal League Club to-day, 4 to 3. Singles by Henning, Chadbourne, and Kenworthy scored the winning run. The score:

MILITARY CLASSES AT BROOKLYN SHOW

Military classes held the centre of the stage at the second session of the Brooklyn Riding and Driving Club Horse Show last night at the club arena, Prospect Park Plaza, Brooklyn. Five of the eleven classes scheduled were for army and militia entries, and the events ranged from artillery teams of six horses to mounted and unmounted chargers. From a spectacular standpoint the artillery teams led in general interest. It was the first time in the history of horse shows that regularly equipped batteries, with riders and gun crews, were judged indoors, and the innovation proved a pleasing success. The crew did not perform any gun evolutions, as the judging was confined to conformation and general appearance. Six teams were crowded into the limited confines of the riding academy, and they made an attractive appearance with their full-dress uniforms. The competition was keen, as the teams were evenly matched. The Cochrane Cup went to Capt. Walter P. Fox's Battery A of the Second Field Artillery, the general appearance of the team coming up to the full requirements of the military standard.

Undocked officers' charges and military mounts also furnished an attractive spectacle. The splendid military bearing of the riders, who wore full dress uniforms, and the facility with which they handled their mounts appealed to the spectators and kept up a sustained interest throughout the judging, which was somewhat prolonged owing to the many points to be judged. Lieut. H. H. McGee's black gelding went through the various aides and evolutions in the most approved manner, and found favor with the judges, with Lieut. Daniel D. Pullen's big Florentine second choice.

Premier honors in the saddle horse classes, which are the strongest and most representative in the show, went to Charles F. Hubbs's chestnut mare Fantasy, which won blue rosettes in both the combination and docked tail events. The owner's daughter, Miss Hubbs, rode Fantasy in splendid fashion, and brought out all the best points of the horse. Walter H. Hanley's sweet, good-looking bay mare Morning Glory was the runner-up in the combination class and secured the third award to Miss Margaret B. Rouss's Merry Countess in the docked class. Both events attracted a big entry list of high class horses and demonstrated the fast growing popularity of the saddle over the harness horse. Seldom has a better looking lot of saddle horses been judged in one class outside of the National Show.

Felix M. Warburg's black pair, Woodlands Countess and Woodlands Empress, splendidly driven by Miss Louisa Webb, easily won the class for pairs of harness horses to a ladies' phaeton. Miss Webb defeated Mrs. John Gerken, who drove Duchess and Princess, the Gregory entry. The summary:

Saddle Horses, docked or undocked, over 14.2 hands, up to carrying 200 pounds.—Won by Walter H. Hanley's ch. g. Iron Tail; Mrs. John Gerken's ch. m. Margaret Tate, second; Godfrey Preece's b. g. Statesman, third; William H. Meyers's ch. g. Duke, fourth.

Model Military Mounts, to be shown in hand by enlisted men in uniform.—Won by Major Howard K. Brown's ch. g. National Guard; Alden S. Blodgett's b. g. Justice, second; Squadron C Farm's b. g. Slogan, third; Second Field Artillery's b. g. Putnam, fourth.

Combination Harness and Saddle Horses, 14.2 hands or over.—Won by Sequatogue Farm's ch. m. Fantasy; Walter H. Hanley's b. m. Morning Glory, second; Clara S. Peck's ch. m. Princess Poppy, third; Dr. L. J. Ladinski's b. m. My Firefly, fourth.

Pairs of Harness Horses, to be shown to a lady's phaeton; manners to count 25 per cent.; ladies to drive.—Won by Felix M. Warburg's blk. m. Woodlands Empress and blk. m. Woodlands Countess, driven by Miss Louisa Webb; B. F. S. Gregory's blk. m. Duchess and blk. m. Princess, driven by Mrs. John Gerken, second; Emil Seelig's br. m. Leading Lady and br. m. Lady, driven by Miss Louise Van Wyck, third.

Artillery Teams of six horses, to be entered as a battery of either the Army or National Guard, riders and gun crew to wear the full dress uniform of their organization.—Won by Second Field Artillery, Battery A, (Capt Walter P. Fox;) Battery E, (Capt. John T. Delaney,) second; Battery D, (Capt. Harold Lawson,) third.

Officers' Chargers and Military Mounts, to be ridden by members of any branch of the Army or militia in full dress uniform, without side arms; horses owned or used in the Army or militia.—Won by Lieut. H. H. McGee's blk. g. Rex; Lieut. Daniel D. Pullen's br. g., Florentine, second; Sergt. Charles McDougall's br. g. Covington, third; Alden S. Blodget's b. g. Justice, fourth.

Saddle Horses, docked, over 15 hands and not exceeding 15.2 hands.—Won by Sequatogue Farm's ch. m. Fantasy; Miss Margaret B. Rouss's b. m. Merry Countess, second; Walter H. Hanley's b. m. Morning Glory, third; Clara S. Peck's ch. m. Princess Poppy, fourth.

Harness Horses, (pace to count 50 per cent., action 25 per cent., and conformation 25 per cent.)—Won by Walter H. Hanley's b. g. Brother Jed; Felix M. Warburg's blk. m. Woodlands Countess, second; William Ziegler, Jr.'s, br. g. The Pilot, third; Mrs. M. Maurice Dimond's b. g. Flash, fourth.

Saddle Horses, (docked or undocked, 15.2 hands or over.)—Won by Emil Antony's ch. g. Irish Heather; Mrs. John Gerken's ch. m. Margaret Tate, second; Mrs. Edwin Gates Babcock's blk. g. Woodford, third; Harry Balfe's blk. g. Macushla, fourth.

Officers' Chargers and Military Mounts, (to be ridden by members of any branch of the army or militia in full dress uniform.)—Won by Lieut. Leonard B. Smith's b. g. Coventry; Alden S. Blodget's b. g. Justice, second; Lieut. H. H. McGee's blk. g. Rex, third; Mrs. N. J. Hess's, ch. g. Dr. Garner, fourth.

Military Jumping Class, (to be ridden by members of the army or militia over jumps.)—Won by Squadron C. Farm's ch. m. Courrette; G. Hinman Barrett's b. g. Highball, second; Capt. R. G. Alexander's b. g. True Heart, third; Battery F, Second Field Artillery's b. g. Hazard, fourth.

Spring Football at West Point.

WEST POINT, N. Y., April 17.—Spring football practice for the Army team starts here to-morrow, to continue three or four weeks. Fifty candidates will report to Cadet Vernon E. Pritchard of Iowa, Captain of the Army team, and star quarter back of last year's eleven. Only light work, consisting of kicking, passing, and running, will be indulged in at the start, and the squad will be divided, the candidates for the line getting most of the work, and the ends and backfield men worked together on the fine points of the new football. Two afternoons in each week will be devoted to practice work. The Army team will lose six men by graduation of the class in June, including Hoge and Jouett of the back field; Wynne, tackle; Jones and Huston, guards, and Markoe, Merrillat's running mate at end. There is plenty of good material left, however, with which to fill these vacancies.

Celtic Wins Scottish Cup Tie.

LONDON, April 17.—The replayed final soccer tie for the Scottish Cup was brought forward from next Saturday and played off to-day at Glasgow between Celtic and Hibernians, to save further interference with the league programme. Thirty-five thousand people saw Celtic win the cup for the ninth time by 4 to 1. With only four more games to play, and having already made certain of the Scottish League championship, it is only fitting that this club finish up a brilliant season by winning the double event.

Yale Men Talk on Football.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 17.—Sixty candidates for next Fall's Yale football team met to-night and listened to optimistic talks by the coaches and Capt. Talbott preliminary to the Spring practice, which starts Monday. Head Coach Hinkey said the work will be lighter this Spring than usual. "It will be a pastime rather than a drudgery," he said. Practice will last three weeks.

Fordham and Columbia To-day.

Fordham and Columbia nines will play on South Field this afternoon. Kleelan will probably pitch for the Maroon, and Shea or O'Neale for the Blue and White. Hann, the former Harvard first baseman, has recovered from a turned ankle received while playing with the Blue and White at Atlantic City, and will play first base for Columbia. The Columbia freshman nine meets the Morris Academy team at Morristown, N. J., this afternoon.

RITCHIE WINS EASILY.

Murphy Shows Ability to Stand Punishment in 20-Round Bout.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 17.—Willie Ritchie, lightweight champion of the world, won a decision over "Harlem Tommy" Murphy in a twenty-round fight here to-night. Nearly every round was easily Ritchie's, but Murphy's ability to stand punishment astounded the crowd.

BOXER WHIPS POLICEMAN

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., April 17.—Three thousand people witnessed the National amateur trial bouts in seven classes at Mechanics' Hall to-night, the Cleveland amateurs showing up well in the different exhibitions that they contested. The New York boys won two of their bouts and lost one.

One of the surprises was the defeat of M. Swenger of New York by M. Zeolie of East Weymouth, Mass. The latter, who is somewhat of an awkward boxer, managed to be on top of the New Yorker in the majority of the three rounds, and, although the New Yorker kept forcing his opponent, his blows appeared to do little damage, and he lost the decision.

A victory well earned which met with the approval of the crowd was that of Arthur Sheridan of the Trinity Club of New York. He had as an opponent Robert McEachern, a police officer of Station 10 of Boston. The latter, after receiving a few stiff lefts to the jaw in the opening session, was forced to hug the mat twice in the opening period. He came forth in the second round, but after Sheridan had ripped a couple of lefts to the jaw and then countered on his body several times the police officer went down. He arose, only to be hooked with the left hand of Sheridan, and after the New Yorker had beat a tattoo on his body he hit the canvas with a thud.

The crowd sent up a howl for the New Yorker to knock him out, but the Boston police officer would not stand up and fight, but covered up, and after being hooked to the jaw he took his position on the floor of the ring and a yoke of oxen could not have made him continue. It was a great fight while it lasted, and the New Yorker, who is as popular as when he boxed here a couple of years ago, received an ovation as he left the ring.

"MICKEY" DUNN WINS.

"Kid" Goodman Slightly Outpointed in Good Bout at Polo A. C.

In a fine boxing show at the New Polo A. C. last night "Mickey" Dunn, by forcing the battle during most of the ten rounds, had a shade the advantage over "Kid" Goodman, but he received as much punishment as he gave. Dunn was the aggressor until the middle of the third round, when Goodman went after him in a strong rally, which made it even. They stood in close and slammed in blows until the spectators roared their approval.

The fourth was uninteresting, but the fifth was a hummer that again aroused the crowd. It went through the succeeding rounds at about even honors until the ninth, when Goodman almost had Dunn at his mercy. "Mickey" made a game attack in the tenth, but before the session was over Goodman again made a sensational rush during which he had Dunn on the ropes and nearly finished him.

"Burt" Papp of this city knocked out in the third round "Johnny" Burt of Ohio. They scaled at 132 pounds. It was a good go while it lasted. Papp is a rugged, strong punisher, while Burt, though a clean, clever boxer with a good left and all right at close work, is lacking with a hard punch. He was not fond of the smashes Papp handed him, and, although he scored well, seemed quite satisfied after he had been carried to his corner and was revived.

"Johnny" Glynn, weighing 124 pounds, and "Kid" Johnjo, at 125, put up a hurricane preliminary, which was full of hot execution by both boys while it lasted. Glynn had the better of the first round, the second was even, and it was then found that Johnjo had broken his right hand.

Winners with the Cue.

K. Yamada showed excellent form in his practice games for the coming 14.1 balk line championship by defeating his fellow-countryman, T. Tamura, at the Morningside Billiard Academy yesterday in two games. Yamada won the afternoon match by a score of 400 to 103 in fifteen innings. Yamada won in the evening by a score of 250 to 36 in nineteen innings.

Two matches at the new 14.1 game were played at Maurice Daly's Billiard Academy last night. In the first Ora Morningstar defeated Brooks by 400 to 112. His high runs were 56 and 45 and his average 14 2-7. Brooks's high run was 22 and his average 4 14-27. In the second game "Young" Jake Schaefer scored easily over Harar by 400 to 98. He made high runs of 77 and 72, and his average was the the best of the evening, 18 2-11. Harar could not gather better than 27 in any one inning, and his average was 4 2-8.

Crew Work Resumed at Yale.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 17.—Practice for the Yale oarsmen was resumed after the Easter vacation and Guy Nickalls sent the two 'Varsity eight-oared shells on a fourteen-mile row. The sweep swingers rowed thirty-two strokes to the minute for long stretches.

'Prep' Schoolboys Guests at N. Y. U.

Nearly 400 guests from the preparatory schools in the vicinity of New York witnessed the annual freshman-sophomore cane sprees and the senior-junior basket ball game at New York University last night, the occasion being the beginning of the yearly "prep" schoolday festivities.

Three weights were represented in the cane sprees, lightweight, middleweight, and heavyweight. The contestants in each bout had been in training for several weeks, and had been selected to represent their respective classes after a series of elimination "sprees" between the various candidates for the honor. The sophomores won two bouts of the three contested. The seniors won the basket ball game, 14 to 3.

The programme for the visitors to-day includes a baseball game in the morning with Hamilton College, and the annual New York University interscholastic track and field meet on Ohio Field in the afternoon.

"Billy" Allen Dies.

Wright Allen, better known as "Billy," a conspicuous figure in local saddle horse circles, died yesterday at the Polyclinic Hospital from an attack of pneumonia. For several years past Allen had been attached to Durland's Academy, where he was regarded as one of the best all-around authorities on the saddle horse. Coming from Kentucky fifteen years ago, where he gained his first insight of riding and driving, he was directly connected with the business until his death. He was a conspicuous figure at all horse shows, and any function where the saddle horse owner or rider was to be found, and many times piloted blue ribbon winners from the show ring. He entered the hospital only a few days before his death, and the news came as a great shock to those whom he taught the rudiments of riding as an instructor at the academy.

De Witt Clinton Chess Champions.

De Witt Clinton yesterday captured the interborough high school chess championship by winning the return match with the Brooklyn Moys' High School, last year's champions, at the Brooklyn Chess Club by the score of 3 to 1, making a total score of 5 to 3 for the series.

Army-Navy Deadlock Still On.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Representatives of the Athletic Associations of the United States Military and Navy Academies met to-day at the Navy Department to determine where the Army-Navy football game be played this year. Philadelphia, New York, and Washington were discussed, but it was said no final decision was reached.

"BIG FOUR" WINS POLO.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., April 17.—Refreshed by their three days' rest and inspired by the hard grilling their opponents put them through on Tuesday, the American polo team, with H. C. Phipps and C. C. Rumsey alternating at No. 1, played rings around the Red quartet this afternoon. The opposing four was made up of the strongest of the other candidates for the team, and for two periods it contained the best line-up in the country, with the exception of the big four. In spite of this, the Blue four rolled up eleven goals to their opponents' five.

The regular four showed better team work than for some days past. J. M. Waterbury was hitting in rare form, and the defensive work of Milburn and "Larry" Waterbury was noticeably improved. Stevenson was the backbone of the Reds, with La Montagne doing some excellent offensive work the few periods he played. Foxhall Keene played the early part of the game. He showed his old knack of following the ball, but was very unsteady in his strokes, missing a great many of them and slicing others.

From the first throw-in the plays were snappier than in Tuesday's game. The first goal came when Rumsey got out of the crowd for a spectacular gallop the entire length of the field, passing the ball to Beadleston for the goal. J. M. Waterbury scored on a tremendous drive in the fifth period, after Rumsey had placed the ball within striking distance of the posts, and the last goal of the game by La Montagne was of a sensational nature, the stroke being a back-hander under his own mount. The line-up:

Blue—H. C. Phipps, C. C. Rumsey, J. M. Waterbury, Jr., L. Waterbury, D. Milburn.

Red—C. C. Rumsey, H. C. Phipps, C. P. Beadleston, R. Montagne, Jr., Foxhall Keene, C. P. Beadleston, M. Stevenson.

Goals—First period—Beadleston. Second period—H. C. Phipps, J. M. Waterbury, 2. Third period—Stevenson. Fourth period—J. M. Waterbury, 4; Rumsey. Fifth period—J. M. Waterbury, 3; Milburn. Sixth period—La Montagne. Seventh period—Milburn. Eighth period—Rumsey. Referee—H. P. Whitney.

GOULD AND HUHN IN FINAL.

Court Tennis Stars Will Play Fearing and Russell To-day.

BOSTON, April 17.—The semi-final round of the national court tennis championship was finished at the Boston Racquet and Tennis Club to-day. To-morrow Jay Gould and W. H. T. Huhn will play G. R. Fearing, Jr., and C. T. Russell of Boston for the title.

Gould and Huhn continued their victories by defeating C. E. Sands and Payne Whitney of New York in straight sets to-day. Gould carried off a majority of strokes for his team. There was a big improvement in Huhn's defensive play, and although much of the attack was directed against Huhn he more than held his own. In the final set the New York players weakened, and Gould and Huhn won easily, 6—4, 6—4, 6—1.

Fearing and Russell had an easy time winning from Stevenson and Blanchard. They were the aggressors throughout, the the scores were 6—2, 6—2, 6—1. The summaries:

National Court Tennis Doubles Championship, Semi-final Round.—Jay Gould and W. H. T. Huhn, Philadelphia, defeated C. E. Sands and Payne Whitney, New York, 6—4, 6—4, 6—1; G. R. Fearing, Jr., and C. T. Russell, Boston, defeated R. H. Stevenson and H. Blanchard, Boston, 6—2, 6—2, 6—1.

NEW YORKERS BOWL.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, April 17.—A superb attack on five-man bowling records was made here to-night in the annual tournament of the National Bowling Association. The Lenox five of Paterson tallied 2,909 and the Roseville A. A. of Newark tallied 2,899, taking second and third places, respectively.

Meanwhile the Melrose Club of New York scored 2,853 and took fourth place, Fred Pump making 257 in the last game. All of these scores in past tournaments generally have been sufficient to win the national championship.

More than 100 New York bowlers arrived to-night in a special train, and in addition to competing in the tournament to-night and to-morrow will also attend the National Convention of Bowlers, which meets annually to regulate ten pins throughout the country. The scores follows:

Spartan, New York—823, 931, 859—2,613. Melrose, New York—901, 858, 994—2,853. Saginaw, New York—832, 914, 853—2,610. Mohawk, New York—713, 836, 777—2,326. Roseville, A. A., Newark—967, 890, 1,042—2,899. First Night, Newark—899, 863, 825—2,557. Grand Central, Brooklyn—810, 936, 909—2,655. Lenox Five, Paterson—1,004, 896, 1,009—2,909.

Five-Men Leaders—Genesee, Rochester—3,035. Lenox Five, Paterson—2,909. Roseville A. A., Newark—2,899. Melrose, New York—2,853. Wiedeman, Cleveland—2,816 Maneto, Philadelphia—2,790. Electra, Montreal—2,761. Germania, Brooklyn—2,693. Grand Centrals, Brooklyn—2,655. Majestic No. 1, Philadelphia—2,639. Majestic No. 2, Philadelphia—2,613. Spartan, New York—2,613.

Yale-Harvard Regatta Plans.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 17.—Decision as to whether the minor 'Varsity race in the annual Yale-Harvard regatta on the Thames, at New London, in June, shall be between four-oared or eight-oared boats is to be made by the crew Captains of the two universities before April 20, according to the official announcement at Yale to-day of the details of the agreement under which the regatta is to be held. The freshman four race will be on June 18, the 'Varsity four or second eight, and the freshman eight events on the morning of the 19th, with the chief race, the 'Varsity eight, in the afternoon. This latter is to be rowed up stream at 4:30 P. M. The other races are to be down stream. W. H. Meikleham is to be referee.

Evans to Play for British Title.

CHICAGO, April 17.—Charles Evans, Jr., former western golf champion, will sail April 28 to participate in the British amateur championship play at Sandwich May 18-21. Frazer Hale, another Chicagoan, former Western interscholastic champion, is now on his way to England to play at Sandwich.

Johnson Wins All-Alaska Dog Race.

NOME, Alaska, April 17.—John Johnson, holder of the record for the 12-mile All-Alaska sweepstakes dog team race, became the winner in the 1914 classic when he drove his eighteen Siberian wolves into Nome at three minutes after 6 o'clock last night, having covered 412 miles over the snow trail from Nome to Candle and return in 81 hours and three minutes. A. A. (Scotty) Allan, driver of the Allan-Darling team of eighteen Malamutes is still on the trail, but will finish second. Fred Ayer with his team of fourteen fox hounds will finish third.

The Siberian "wolves," driven by John Johnson, are a cross between the Alaska working dog and the Siberian wolf. They have the agility and endurance of the wolf and the faithful intelligence of the Alaskan dog. They are light in color, either white or gray, with a shaggy coat.

BRUERE UNRUFFLED BY BANKS' REFUSAL

ACTED AT BUYERS' BEHEST

Controller Buys Up $2,500,000 of Corporate Stock Notes Before Maturity, on a 2 1-2 Per Cent. Basis.

City Chamberlain Bruere emphasized yesterday the fact, stated in THE TIMES, that it was only at the request of the purchasers of the city bonds that he gave the opportunity to receive part of the proceeds of the sale to banks that did not care to take them.

"According to a custom prevailing for years, and in response to the Controller's request," he said, "the Chamberlain agreed to deposit the $65,000,000 in the banks indicated by the syndicate purchasing the bonds. The purpose of this practice is to avoid the great disarrangement in banking circles that would follow the payment of so large a sum.

"The ten banks indicated by the syndicate are all city depositories, but seven have not received funds since Feb. 10, because other banks have paid higher rates of interest than the banks in question offered. When the Chamberlain advised the banks indicated by the syndicate of the proportionate amount to be deposited in them, the Hanover National, the First National, and the Bank of Commerce stated that they were not in need of funds, because they already had more money than they could lend. The Hanover, to which $4,000,000 was first apportioned, took $500,000; the Bank of Commerce $6,000,000, and the First National none.

"The banks were not asked to take funds. The deposits were offered to them as an accommodation. Ordinarily, the curtesy would have been welcomed, but the present state of the money market made the banks desire less money instead of more. None of these banks acted in pique or raised a question regarding interest. They simply didn't need the money and said so, and we were not at all put out about it. One trust company requested that we leave with them the amount of their subscription to the syndicate. This was done.

"The deposits of the proceeds of the bond sale are, of course, very temporary because they will presently be paid out to redeem outstanding corporate stock notes.

"I wish to make it clear that we should not have had the slightest difficulty in placing this $65,000,000 in the seventy banks and trust companies that are now serving as active depositories. These banks have expressed themselves very emphatically in favor of the method instituted on Feb. 1 of making city deposits on a square deal basis. Several have to-day offered to take additional deposits, although they have no prospect of making any profit out of them.

"I may point out that every one of the banks indicated by the syndicate had offered on Feb. 1 to take money at 2 per cent. for this quarter. Had I cared to do so I could have made the deposits in these banks under these offers, and insisted on the payment of the 2 per cent. interest. There was no point in doing this because we are fully able to take care of all our funds in the active city depositories.

"I should have made the deposits in these banks had I not desired to follow the custom of extending the consideration of redeposit to the banks purchasing city bonds or designated by the successful bidders.

"In view of the splendid co-operation of the banks now carrying city deposits and the condition of the money market, together with the short term of the deposit, I have adopted the following rule: Temporary deposits of the proceeds of the bond sale made in banks carrying city deposits in excess of the maximum allotment under the Chamberlain's rule will be made at 2 per cent. instead of 3 or 2½ per cent., which these banks and trust companies are paying on their regular balances."

The offers by several banks to take additional deposits, as mentioned by Mr. Bruere, were taken as an indication that his plan for distributing city deposits according to an automatic schedule, without even the possibility of favoritism and at the best interest rates obtainable, had their hearty support, notwithstanding criticisms that have been heard for some weeks from other banking quarters, in which it has been intimated that the city was too grasping in the matter of interest. The favorable opinion of his plan was also expressed by many banks when it was first proposed. Here are some of the expressions contained in answers to Mr. Bruere's letters to the banks outlining the plan and inviting criticisms and suggestions:

> This appears to be a very fair way to apportion the city's deposits among the several banks, and we have no comment or criticism to make, except that we might suggest the use of net deposits instead of gross deposits in determining the ratio of capital and surplus to deposits.
>
> We have no criticism to offer; on the contrary, we think this plan to be an eminently fair one.
>
> I congratulate you on the very businesslike way you have handled the proposition, which is fair to every institution in the city, and I can see no reason for any one to make any complaint.
>
> We would compliment your office upon the eminent fairness of the method of distributing the city deposits.
>
> Seems to be an equitable arrangement, and we have no criticism of the plan to offer.
>
> We think the plan a very equitable one and we appreciate your advising us of same.
>
> * * * and which we think are satisfactory in every respect.
>
> The plan is perhaps as fair as any that can be devised on the basis of the figures of a bank's statement.
>
> We consider same an equitable one.
>
> * * * and think the plan as outlined is a good one.
>
> We consider the plan for the distribution of city deposits adopted by you to be a fair and unbiased solution for the allotment of city funds and meets with our views.
>
> I have no criticism to offer in relation to the plan, but, on the contrary, I wish to congratulate you on the manner in which you are handling the matter. By comparison with past performances in the matter of city deposits, it is certainly refreshing to see judgment and good sense prevail.
>
> We certainly cannot see anything to criticise in your plan. On the contrary, from every standpoint it seems to be fair and equitable to the depositories and beneficial to the city's interest.
>
> We are glad to see this worked out on a systematic basis, and believe you are doing a splendid work for the city.
>
> The method seems to us very fair and reasonable and meets with our approval.
>

The city's balances in the banks will continue high for some time, as a large part of the notes that are to be paid off with the proceeds of the bond sale will not fall due till May. Others will not mature until June. Some of these notes may be bought in by the city, however, before maturity, if favorable terms are offered.

A beginning in this direction was made yesterday when the Controller bought notes amounting to $2,500,000 on a 2½ per cent. basis. This amounts to the city's investing at 2½ per cent. money that would otherwise be drawing perhaps 2 per cent. if kept on deposit. The notes purchased, which will mature next month, were issued in francs and were held in this city for the account of a French concern.

P. R. R. TRAFFIC GROWS.

Freight Business for April, 1914, Exceeds That of April, 1913.

Special to The New York Times.

ALTOONA, Penn., April 17.—Notwithstanding the reports of a falling off in business, freight traffic over the Pennsylvania Railroad continues extremely good. Records compiled in the offices of the company here show that in the first fifteen days of April 81,000 cars were moved over the middle division, an average of 5,400 cars per day. This is over 1,000 more cars than were handled in the fifteen days of April, 1913, and more than 2,000 more than in the same period of 1912.

While the threat to shut down their mines until the new wage scale should be signed has not been put into general effect by the coal operators, many have suspended work, causing a considerable decrease in coal shipments for the first part of April. Other freight shipments, however, have maintained a high average, which indicates that general business conditions are fair for the time of the year.

Officials of the railroad company here refuse to comment on the increase in tonnage for the present year over that of the two years preceding. When asked how they reconciled their reports of increased freight tonnage with the stories published some time ago about a heavy falling off in business, they declined to talk.

TELLS OF TIN PLATE THREAT

Canmaker Says Trust Man Said He Would "Kill His Business."

Louis McDonald, formerly Secretary of the Mesereau Manufacturing Company, which was absorbed by the American Tin Plate Company, told of the methods used by the tin plate concern to acquire his company at the first hearing held in the Federal Building, Brooklyn, yesterday, in the Government's suit to dissolve the so-called Tin Plate Trust. The Mesereau Company was a Brooklyn concern, and it was bought by the Tin Plate Company in March, 1901, for $700,000, according to Mr. McDonald.

The witness said that in the negotiations before the sale was made he noticed a restrictive clause in the option papers of the American Tin Plate Company, forbidding him and his associates from going into the can business. He said he told his partners that the clause prevented him from making a living at the only business he knew; that he had worked for twenty years to develop his industry, and that he was not going to let any "high-binder" take it away from him. The disputed clause was eliminated.

A dispute arose between Edwin Norton, representing the "tin plate trust," and McDonald and his associates, the witness said in the course of further negotiations, and he asserted that Norton threatened "to put them out of business" in twelve months if they did not come to terms. Explaining the alleged threat of Norton, the witness said that the tin plate company's representative said to him:

"Within sixty days after this company is formed it will become a constituent part of the United States Steel Company, and where are you going to get your tin plate from?"

William T. Chantland, Special Assistant United States Attorney General, asked McDonald how his opponents could put him out of business.

"By cutting prices and side-tracking raw material," the witness answered. "If we can't get raw material we can't manufacture."

ANY GAS IN ANY TANK.

Appellate Division Rules Against the Contention of Illuminating Concern.

The Appellate Division ruled yesterday that illuminating gas tanks on motor cars could be filled with any kind of gas, regardless of the name on the tanks. The court dismissed the contention of the Prest-O-Lite Company that tanks made by it legally could be filled only with gas of its own manufacture

The patent on the tanks expired in 1910 after 750,000 of them had been sold, and another company, the Standard Searchlight Company, started to make gas in competition to supply the tanks already furnished. The Prest-O-Lite Company is expected to appeal.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES

Further information may be obtained from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Washington, D. C., and at the branch offices, 315 Custom House, by giving the number of the item referred to:

12,922. COTTON GOODS AND COTTON THREAD.—A commission house in an important centre of the Near East is in the market for cotton goods and cotton thread, cotton goods to include cabots, prints, and ticking. This firm handles goods on commission, but is willing to make any reasonable terms in reference to payments and in general will pay cash against documents.

12,923. FEED STUFFS AND FERTILIZERS.—A business firm in Germany desires the names of export houses and factories in the U. S. shipping feeding and fertilizing materials and raw products for the chemical and other industries. The firm is particularly interested in the residues of breweries, distilleries, sugar refineries, and oil and grain industries, as well as raw products of all kinds, and will pay cash against documents.

12,924. FUEL OIL AND LUBRICANTS.—A commission agent in a Mediterranean country desires to get in communication with Am. firms exporting crude oil for use as engine fuel and also lubricating oil for use on all kinds of machinery.

12,925. AGENCY FOR FORWARDING COMPANY.—A man in Europe with experience in general forwarding and money order business in that country and the U. S. would like to act as agent for a reliable Am. forwarding and express company.

12,926. HARDWARE OF ALL KINDS.—A firm of general merchants in the Far East desires the names of Am. mfrs. of building hardware, such as hinges of all sizes, locks, bolts, &c., suitable for doors and for windows; also shelf hardware, such as files, rasps, screw drivers, chisels, handsaws of all varieties, &c.

12,927. PUBLIC ABATTOIR.—There is considerable agitation in a Canadian city for a public abattoir in which all meat used locally could be prepared subject to inspection. The persons behind the proposition have no idea as to the cost of such an establishment or the nature of the equipment necessary to render it sanitary and efficient. If information on these points was sent to persons named by an American Consul it is not improbable the firm supplying it would shortly be asked for definite quotations and be given an order for the equipment.

12,928. LUMBER, IRON, AND PORTLAND CEMENT.—A commission house in the Near East is in the market for pitch and yellow pine, walnut, and other cabinet woods; iron to include structural, malleable, galvanized, plates, sheets, rods, and pipes, and Portland cement.

12,929. NITRATE OF SODA, PARAFFIN, NAPHTHALINE, PAPER, AND TIN PLATE.—A business man in the Far East desires to get in touch with the principal Am. mfrs. of refined nitrate of soda, paraffin, naphthaline, wrapping paper, and pasteboard; also of tin plate in thin sheets for the lining of packing cases.

STEAMSHIP TRUST HEARINGS FINISHED

13 VOLUMES OF TESTIMONY

Steerage Monopoly Effected Through 'Fighting Steamers'—Pooling ment Defended.

Before an expedition court, in the Federal Building, consisting of Judges Lacombe, Coxe, Ward, and Rogers, the final argument was made yesterday in the Government's Sherman law suit against the Atlantic Conference, an association formed by the Hamburg-American, the North German Lloyd, the International Mercantile Marine, the Cunard, the Holland-American, the Canadian Pacific Steamship, and other lines to regulate the steerage traffic. The result of this, it was charged, had been to drive out of the North Atlantic business the Russian Volunteer Fleet, and to force the Russian East Asiatic Steamship Company to join the Conferance. Moreover, it was charged that serious loss had been inflicted on the Uranian Line, and that the New York & Continental Line, and the Northwest Transport Company had been compelled to reorganize through losses.

The petition of the Government was filed on Jan. 4, 1911, and since then a voluminous record has been made of testimony taken here and in Europe. When the case was called, Charles C. Burlingham, for the International Marine Company, moved its adjournment, on the ground that it appeared likely that the Interstate Commerce Commission would soon receive jurisdiction over the steamship companies, and that it might find that such an arrangement as that attacked was legal. Moreover, he did not see how Judge Lacombe could peruse the thirteen volumes of testimony before he left for Europe next month.

The court, however, decided that, in view of the international importance of the case, it must proceed.

Assistant United States District Attorney Henry A. Guiler then opened the case for the Government. He laid stress on the attempt of the defendants to effect a virtual monopoly of the steerage traffic by means of what were known as "fighting steamers." These were run by an agreement between the conference companies, so as to compete directly with steamships belonging to companies outside of the conference. They would take passengers at the same or lower rates as the competitors, and would sail at about the same time. To compensate the company running a fighting steamer the other members of the conference agreed to pay it the sum it lost by its low rates, and if it booked more passengers than it could handle to provide accommodation for them on some other steamship.

Hit Rivals Through Agents.

Another weapon which Mr. Guiler told the court the conference companies used against their rivals was the prohibition they enforced against their agents handling the tickets for any non-conference line. A cablegram from the Secretary of the conference in London to the Secretary here was included in the Government's brief, in which emphasis was laid on the importance of enforcing this regulation, and other letters were printed to show that the members of the conference were well aware that in this practice they were sailing close to the wind, and admitted among themselves that there was danger of its resulting in proceedings against them under the anti-trust law.

Then Mr. Guiler paid particular attention to what were known as the commerical allowances. These were allowances of about 10 per cent. on the immigrant fares to points within the United States, which were paid by the railroads to the conference steamship lines. An immigrant, it was explained in the brief, would purchase from some point in the centre of Europe transportation to some point in the United States. It would, unless the immigrant expressly wished otherwise, be unrouted. So when the alien reached Ellis Island he would go to what was known as the Immigrant Clearing House. There he would deliver up his order for railroad transportation to the West, and would receive in return a railroad ticket. This might be over any one of eight different railroads, and the immigrants would be so directed at Ellis Island that each of the companies got its due share of the business.

Allusion was also made in the brief to the attempt of the defendants to show that the Government through the Panama Railroad and Steamship Company had signified its approval of pools and conferences, in that these concerns had become a member of the Carribean Conference. This attempt the Government contended failed because the witness called by the defense had admitted that the Panama Railroad Company had been elected a member of the conference without notification of the Government, and that as soon as the Government heard of it it repudiated the membership.

Lucius A. Beers, counsel for the Cunard Company, opened the argument for the defense. He argued that the question whether an agreement or an act was an unreasonable restraint of trade depended chiefly on facts. The Supreme Court, he said, had frequently pointed out that Congress could never have intended the Sherman law to condemn all combinations, which might be interpreted as restraining commerce, as, if it had, a large proportion of all the necessary agreements relating to trade would be illegal.

Cunard Co. Has Not Gained.

So he suggested that the court should consider the physical and financial conditions controlling the steerage trade, the conditions which led up to the pooling agreement and its actual effect on the carriage of steerage passengers. As a matter of fact, he argued, the agreement had not resulted in financial gain, the dividends of the Cunard Line being smaller since the bargain was made.

Ex-Senator John C. Spooner for the Hamburg-American Line, asked the court to consider that it was impossible to apply to a sea trafficking concern the same standards as were applied to a railroad or other land enterprises, and then Mr. Burlingham pointed out that there was no proof that the rivals of the Conference Lines did not get a fair share of passengers. Speaking of the effect of unlimited competition between agents he said there would be ruinous cuts in the fight among them, and he referred to the time when a policeman in this city, if he saw a group of persons, who looked like returning steerage passengers, would herd them into a steamship agent's office and then return in a few hours to ask $3 commission on every ticket sold.

There was no proof, he urged, that unreasonable rates had ever been charged or that there had ever been any attempt to shut up property from its regular use. Moreover, it was only natural that a steamship company which had built up a trade from its own country should take every means to protect it.

After N. B. Beecher, Mr. Burlingham's associate, had dwelt on the disposition of the Supreme Court since the Tobacco case to take a "reasonable" view of the Sherman act, and District Attorney Marshall had replied, the court took the case under advisement.

BUSINESS NOTES.

All three boards of the United States General Appraisers held simultaneous sessions yesterday for the purpose of hearing testimony. The full membership of the tribunal was present, with the exception of Judge Somerville, who is recovering from a serious illness. It usually happens that not more than two boards sit at the same time, the other members being engaged in preparing decisions or hearing cases at out-of-town ports. It is understood that the tribunal will clear up the files as far as possible in anticipation of the Summer vacation period.

The sixth annual convention and the fifth annual style congress of the National Ladies' Tailors' and Dressmakers' Association will be held at Niagara Falls on July 6 and 7. From present indications, soft colors will dominate Fall models so far as the association is concerned.

Side Throwsters Organize.

The Commission Throwsters Division of the Silk Association of America, organized under Division B, was formally launched at a general meeting of silk throwsters held yesterday afternoon at the rooms of the Silk Association of America. The throwsters up to about a year ago had an organization of their own, but this was disbanded. At yesterday's meeting by-laws were adopted and the following were elected to the Executive Committee: Jerome C. Read, Chairman; Marcus Frieder, Vice Chairman; A. G. B. Hunt, H. S. Hofer, Henry Leon, Peter R. Rowson, and Arthur G. Turner. Among other things, the association will investigate cost calculation methods.

The Raw Silk Markets.

Latest reports from the Yokohama raw silk market show it to be firm, with a fair amount of business coming from the European manufacturers. American buying is said to be light at present. Sales for the week totaled 4,400 bales. Canton reports a good demand, with prices somewhat firmer than they were a little while ago. Reelers seem unwilling to contract ahead any further on the new season's silk. Both the Shanghai and Milan markets are reported quiet. Seasonable inactivity governs the trading in the New York market, but prices are holding their own. Most of the orders now being placed here are for filling-in purposes.

Better Prospects for Dresses.

The present demand in dresses seems to centre around garments made up of crêpe de chines and satin-faced materials. With the change from the designs combining the bustle and other elaborate effects to long tunics, the conservative buyer has been given a freer field to work in, and business has picked up accordingly. One house reports a larger number of orders for the past week than for the preceding four. In waists, crêpe de chines are favored, and georgette crêpes are also proving popular. Lace, handkerchief linen, and organdie are used extensively in this connection. The general opinion seems to be that with the coming of styles which are more simple, and because of this appeal to a wider circle of states, prospects are much brighter.

Silverware Buyers Slow.

Buyers of silverware are said to be unusually late in coming to market this season. Two reasons are given for this in the trade, the effect of the general disturbed condition of the country on the retail jewelry trade and the lateness of Easter. A year ago this time business was booming, but then Easter came considerably earlier. None of the important Southern or Western buyers has been reported in the market yet, those who have done business for the June matrimonial season being located in this city or in nearby districts. The orders that have been placed, however, are said to be fairly liberal. There is nothing in the situation at present that presages an advance in prices on either sterling or plated ware, and active buying is looked for within the next two or three weeks.

Printcloths Still Quiet.

Inactivity continued to feature the local gray goods market yesterday, but prices stayed fairly steady. A few odd lots of printcloths were sold during the day, the principal sales being made on 38½-inch 64-56s at 4⅞ cents and 64-60s in the same width at 5 cents. The latter goods are now more plentiful at 5 cents than they have been at any other time since the break came. Despite the weakness shown in some of the other constructions, bids of 7 cents failed to bring out any 80 squares. These goods were firmly held at 7¼ cents for delivery this side of the half year. A fair business was done on cheap sateens in the course of the day, and novelty constructions were also taken in a fair way. The bulk of the business on these constructions, however, is said to have been placed.

⁂

Gain in Dutiable Silk Imports.

Dutiable silk imports at New York in the five weeks ended March 28 show a gain of nearly $500,000 over those of the corresponding period a year ago, according to figures compiled by the Silk Association of America. The respective totals for these periods are $2,965,702 and $2,470,197. To these totals, fabrics woven in the piece contributed, respectively, $1,043,691 and $779,477. The principal decline shown in the list was in receipts of velvet ribbons, which totaled only $141,496 last month. The heaviest gain, on the other hand, was shown in imports of silk ribbons. These showed a total value of $158,016, an increase of about 350 per cent. over similar imports in March last year. Of the free materials entered in the same period, raw silk led with a value of $1,308,584, against $1,212,693 last year.

Textile Alliance Officers.

The following officers were elected yesterday at a meeting of the Textile Alliance, Incorporated, which was held in the rooms of the American Association of Woolen and Worsted Manufacturers: President, A. M. Patterson; Vice President, Caesar Cone, and Secretary-Treasurer, J. J. Nevins. At the same meeting Dr. August Hunziker, who is Vice President of the Weidmann Silk Dyeing Company of Paterson, N. J., and who was nominated by the Silk Association of America to represent that organization in the alliance, was elected to a voting membership. Dr. Hunziker was also elected to the Board of Directors, which was increased to six for that purpose. The Textile Alliance was recently incorporated in this State, with the object of guarding its members against unscrupulous dealings on the part of dye-stuff concerns, to prosecute perpetrators of fraudulent transactions in dyestuffs and mill supplies generally, and to bring about trade reforms calculated to work to the benefit of the entire textile world.

Tobacco Importers Worried.

Importers of Havana tobacco are worried over the possibility of the plague district of Havana extending to the tobacco warehouse region, for it is said that if this happens the necessary fumigation will cause heavy loss to them. A special cable to THE TIMES said yesterday that $1,000,000 worth of tobacco was in danger of injury by fumigation. It was said in the local market that fully 90 per cent. of this tobacco was owned by Americans. It is said to be trade custom to leave the tobacco in storage in Havana until needed, and the present dull state of trade has made withdrawals unusually light of late. Consequently severe loss is faced. According to a letter received yesterday from Havana by a well-known tobacco importer it had been intimated there that the Cuban Government would attempt to reimburse any losses caused by fumigation, but the importer in question was not inclined to take the report seriously. It is said that while fumigation does not actually ruin the tobacco, it affects its taste and aroma to such a degree that it cannot be used for the American trade.

⁂

A Cigar Smoking Machine.

One of the latest mechanical devices put on the market is a machine that will smoke cigars. The body of the machine consists of a horizontal cone-shaped device which is somewhat similar in shape to the screw-top on small oil cans. From the upper side of the cone project five small cigar holders, into which the cigars are placed when the machine is in operation. At the end of the cone and perpendicular to its base is a sort of chimney, through which a draft is made by a small electric motor. This draft causes the cigars to draw. The entire machine is suspended from two supports, which are attached to a wooden base. It is made of aluminium, is 14 inches long and 11 inches high. The machine smokes from one to five cigars at a time, and its construction permits them to be smoked at eight different speeds. The primary object of the machine is to permit the maker or dealer of cigars to test the burn of the tobacco in them without having to smoke the cigars himself, thereby doing away with the headaches which are said often to accompany such tests at the moment. In addition to this, the machine is said to make an attractive window display. It weighs four pounds and sells for $30.

Imports of a Week.

Imports of general merchandise, including dry goods, at New York in the week ended April 11 were valued at $19,988,082, compared with $18,918,208 in the week before, and $19,020,173 in the week before that. Included in these imports are $462,696 worth of jewelry, precious stones and watches. The week previous they aggregated $512,419. Imports of leather, hides, &c., reached $1,644,451, compared with $1,234,348 the week previous, and $1,641,330 a fortnight ago. Imports of cotton showed a heavy increase last week, aggregating 2,490 bales, valued at $200,751, compared with only 130 bales worth $5,850 the week before. There were entered 53,139 bags of coffee returned at $755,502, compard with a valuation the week before of $1,233,061. Egg imports had a value of $17,563. India rubber, manufactures, waste, and substitutes were $2,210,558, compared with $1,655,167 the week previous. Sugar imports aggregated $1,256,759, compared with $2,518,270 the week before. Wool imports reached $437,458, against $260,929 the previous week. Imports of dry goods totaled $2,626,086, while the imports of silk goods were appraised at $628,085. The week before the totals for these classes were respectively $2,731,325 and $837,024. Withdrawals of dry goods of all kinds from bonded warehouses last week were $661,188, while those entered for warehouse aggregated $676,222. The previous week's figures were, respectively, $664,619 and $859,189.

FOREIGN TRADE INCREASE.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Both imports and domestic exports increased during March over March last year, according to preliminary figures announced to-day by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

March imports amounted to $181,930,039 against $155,445,498 in March last year, free merchandise representing $111,053,480, or 61 per cent. of the month's total, against $84,216,033, or 54 per cent. in March a year ago. Domestic exports in March totaled $183,921,371, a slight gain over $183,446,790 for March of last year, but decreased exports of foreign merchandise reduced total exports to $187,314,170 in March, 1914, compared with $187,426,711 in March last year.

For nine months ending with March the current year's imports totaled $1,397,727,313, against $1,401,844,183 last year; the domestic exports $1,839,107,589, against $1,881,043,972 last year. Foreign goods exported aggregated $23,935,376 in the nine months, compared with $27,014,401 last year.

The excess of exports over imports in March was $5,381,131 and in the nine months ending March, $485,315,652.

Gold imports during the month totaled $7,843,769, compared with $4,390,993 in March, 1913, while gold exports were but $2,632,049, against $18,076,594 in March last year.

DRY GOODS OUTLOOK.

Distribution Sustained—Shipments Show Little Slackening After Easter

Special to The New York Times.

"Distribution of dry goods and notions for the first half of the month indicates well sustained trade throughout the country, as compared with the corresponding two weeks in 1913.

"While new business this past week has not been as heavy as a year ago, immediate shipments are heavier, which suggests that the slackening in retail sales which might reasonably be expected following a late Easter has been only slight.

"Our retail shows a good increase in sales for the week.

"Business through our Eastern office is also ahead of that of a year ago.

"Cash receipts have improved over those of the two preceding weeks."

Men's Wear Trade Optimistic.

The present mean's wear market is chiefly concerned now with the matter of deliveries. Although some late orders have been received from the tailors to the trade, duplicate business from the manufacturing clothiers has not yet turned up in any appreciable volume. The opinion prevails that there is certain to be a change for the better in conditions which have for some time past confronted the clothiers, and with this feeling a more optimistic tone is noted in the market.

Aluminium Spoons Classified.

The Treasury Department has settled the dutiable status of aluminium kitchen spoons under the new tariff law by ordering customs officials to classify them as manufactures of metal at 20 per cent. ad valorem, under Paragraph 167. It appears that the Appraiser at Chicago has been returning goods of this kind at 25 per cent. ad valorem, under Paragraph 134, as hollow ware. An investigation disclosed that the spoons are not known in the trade as hollow ware. Collectors are therefore directed to return the articles at the lower rate.

FRAMES MUST PAY DUTY.

Are Not "Containers" Even if They Surround Pictures.

That picture frames are not "containers" within the meaning of the tariff laws is the conclusion reached by the United States Court of Customs Appeals in a test case just decided standing in the name of Kronfeld, Saunders & Co. of this city. The issue as presented to the court arose under the Act of 1909, but the principles laid down by Presiding Judge Montgomery will prevail under the present law.

Ever since the Tariff act of July 22, 1862, importers have questioned the right of the Treasury Department to exact duty on frames accompanying paintings when the pictures themselves were admitted free. Where the paintings were dutiable, it was contended that the frames should be included in the dutiable value of the canvas, rather than assessed at a separate rate. The Board of General Appraisers and the Federal Courts appear almost uniformly to have found against this interpretation of the law. In the case just decided, however, the importers raised a new point, namely, that the frames are to be regarded as "containers."

The paintings in the Kronfeld, Saunders case consist of works in ordinary gilded frames. Some of the paintings were assessed at 15 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 470 of the old law, while the others were passed free of duty under Paragraph 717. In both instances, however, the frames were separately assessed by the Collector at 35 per cent. ad valorem as "manufactures of wood." The importers went before the board with the claim that where the paintings are dutiable, the frames are dutiable at the same rate as part of the value of the paintings, and where the paintings are free, the frames also are exempt. This is the rule followed in many lines of merchandise shipped in coverings or containers.

Judge Montgomery, in his decision, says the term "containers" should be "limited in its application to articles which are designed and essential for the purpose of holding the article for importation or shipment. It is apparent that the frame of a picture bears no such relation to the picture itself. Either may be imported separately and often are."

How to Make the Best Investments

The prices of standard stocks and bonds are as sensitive to the laws of supply and demand and to business conditions as the prices of any commodities which are actively traded in.

Those who make their investments at times when it is particularly advantageous to make them, are not only able to obtain very attractive prices, but, in addition, incomes which are larger than may ordinarily be had.

We invite requests from those who have either small or large sums available, for our Investment Circular No. G-75 and for our recommendations as to the particular type of securities which is especially desirable now and for the best examples of that type.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Up to late afternoon, when the market became weak, a fairly strong tendency toward recovery was shown in all but a limited number of stocks. Conspicuous among these were Lehigh Valley and Missouri Pacific, which were under very heavy pressure. The large decline in them, running in each case to more than five points, eventually proved an important factor in turning the whole market downward. The losses elsewhere were confined to relatively narrow limits, and at no time did the average level of quotations fall quite as low as the bottom figure of Thursday's market. Some part in bringing about the late fall in quotations may have been played by the rumors of a hitch in the arrangements with President Huerta, but it was the unsettling effect of the heavy selling of the few stocks which broke so sharply that seemed to account chiefly for the selling which carried prices off toward the end of the day.

The liquidation in Missouri Pacific was associated with reports that a plan to provide for the company's notes which mature June 1 by a sale of bonds now pledged as security for those notes had been abandoned. Assurances were renewed, however, that other plans were being laid to care for this obligation, and that the company felt amply able to provide the necessary funds. The selling of the stock persisted up to the very end of the day. The final quotation was but a small fraction above the lowest. For the selling of Lehigh Valley the chief explanation offered was a report that the dividend, which is now being paid at the rate of 10 per cent., would be lowered to 8 per cent. These reports were quite possibly as much the product of the decline as they were the explanation of that decline. They were not, however, received with complete skepticism, inasmuch as it is known, of course, that Lehigh Valley, along with other railroads, has suffered losses in earings, which might induce the Directors to put the company's dividend payments on a lower basis.

Such reports, moreover, had influence beyond the stock primarily affected. They directed increased attention to the current earning power of the railways which has been reduced, not only by the decline which has come about in business, but by the increased inroads which expenses have made into railroad receipts. The latter the railroads have undertaken to correct as far as possible by the economies which they have lately put into effect. But that, of course, does not reach to the causes responsible for the decline in gross earnings. The daily experience of bankers shows the effect which the recent course of railroad affairs has produced upon the minds of investors. One of the most important effects which a favorable decision in the rate case would have would seem to be the change for the better which it might be counted upon to produce in the investment attitude toward railroad undertakings. That would be a change of far-reaching effect and one which is much needed.

The market was awaiting yesterday news of the financing of the New Haven's requirements in respect to its maturing short-term obligations. The understanding was that the arrangement contemplated the raising of the necessary money from the road's own stockholders upon terms which would insure their participation in the plan. It was believed further that the new financing would be done in a form which would largely reduce the road's outstanding obligations by making use of treasury assets for this purpose. Such a plan has the advantage of cutting down fixed charges and of putting the company in a position to provide more easily for its further requirements for improvements. The financing which the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul proposes to do and which was very near announcement two days ago is likely to be allowed to go over for some time.

Not the least interesting financial incident of the day was the discounting in this market of bills accepted by State institutions under the new banking law, which became effective yesterday. A new banking mechanism has thus been put into operation, and from this small beginning large results are to be expected in the course of time. The new State banking law, much more fully than the Federal Reserve act, equips the institutions operating under it for accepting bills, thus supplying the class of paper best fitted for the purposes of an open discount market. The reduced reserve requirements of State institutions became effective yesterday and possibly exerted some influence upon the money market. Twelve months' loans were reported at rates as low as 3⅞ per cent. A further rise in sterling exchange, which carried it to a level ten points above the highest figure of January, may also have been brought about in part by the fact that balances abroad subject to draft can under the new State law be deducted from an institution's deposits in figuring the reserve which it is required to keep.

The day's trade advices did not differ materially from those which have lately been coming to hand, although the commercial agencies reported some improvement in sentiment because of the very bright agricultural outlook. Very good crops, and such are now promised, will do probably more than any other one thing could do to turn the tide of trade into more active and more profitable channels. Estimates of the week's bank clearings indicate a falling off of from 7 per cent. to 8 per cent. compared with the corresponding week of last year.

PULLMAN CO. MUST DEFEND.

Jury to Pass On Loss of Goldstein's Valise While He Slept.

Overruling the City Court and the Appellate Term of the Supreme Court the Appellate Division handed down a decision yesterday ordering the suit of Louis Goldstein, a suit manufacturer, against the Pullman Company for the loss of his gripsack containing $300 worth of jewelry to be brought to trial. The lower courts had upheld the Pullman Company's contention that it was not responsible for the theft of Goldstein's gripsack while he was asleep in a berth of one of its cars attached to a Baltimore & Ohio Railroad train between Cincinnati and Wheeling several months ago.

The Appellate Division said that a jury should pass on the question as to whether the Pullman Company had taken proper precautions to protect Goldstein's property. It said he could not be expected to watch it while he slept.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

George A. Gaston has been elected President of the Northwestern Pennsylvania Railway Company, to succeed H. W. Thornton, who has become General Manager of the Great Eastern Railway of England.

Charles F. Mathewson has been elected a Director of the Columbia-Knickerbocker Trust Company.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

A Tale of a Block of Bonds.

Investors are eager for municipal bonds, but it takes time for some issues to get to the ultimate buyer. Here is a tale of a small block of bonds put out a few weeks ago by a city in another State: They were bought by a firm in this city and offered to customers at a price to net 4.25 per cent. on the purchase price. There was no immediate response to the circulars sent out, and the bonds afterward were sold to another house on a 4.20 per cent. basis. This firm, in turn, disposed of the block to another concern, which passed the bonds on to another firm on a 4.18 basis. Still the bonds were not taken up by investors, and they went, by and by, to a fourth commission house at a price to yield 4.15 per cent., and from this owner to a fifth on a 4.08 basis. The bonds are still in the Street.

Oil Shares Follow Oil Downward.

A cut of 10 cents a barrel on crude petroleum in the Pennsylvania fields unsettled the market for Standard Oil issues on the Curb yesterday. Before the reduction was announced prices in the open-air market had been looking up and fairly heavy purchases were reported. While a decline in Pennsylvania oil quotations had been looked for, because of reductions previously ordered in the mid-continent region, so large a recession was not anticipated by some persons. The Pennsylvania is in especial demand by refiners for the manufacture of gasoline. The market for this product has been fairly steady, in the face of a falling demand for other refined oils, and it was expected to be a sustaining factor in the Pennsylvania crude situation.

Prices Yesterday and a Year Ago.

With the exception of Union Pacific, all the active stocks closed last night below the prices recorded a year ago. This list gives a comparison of quotations:

Atchison	96	102
Baltimore & Ohio	88⅝	99¾
New York Central	87½	103
Erie	28	30
Great Northern pf	121⅞	126⅞
Lehigh Valley	135	159½
Northern Pacific	109⅝	115⅞
Reading	162⅛	164⅞
Southern Pacific	91⅝	100⅞
Union Pacific	153⅞	153¼
Copper	73½	76½
Smelters	66⅛	69¼
Steel	58⅛	62⅞

In the case of Reading and Erie the difference was not large, but the quotations of the others, it will be seen, are wide apart.

⁂

The Strong Undertone Delusion.

When the stock market does nothing on Monday, and a little less on Tuesday, and perhaps nothing at all on Wednesday, advisers who must say something are fond of announcing that the list has a strong undertone. It is a comforting thought for the customer whose stock will not go up to learn that in all probability it will not go down much. Prices may hang around the same level for a fortnight at a time, but "the strong undertone" is brought forth every few minutes when some one asks a question. Eventually one of two things happens: either business picks up or good news of some other kind comes out and the market shakes off its lethargy with a good advance; or an occasion for selling arises and the market breaks through at every point where orders converge. Then it becomes evident that the strong undertone was, after all, nothing but a myth, to be dissolved at the first attack on quotations. When heavy selling of one security, with its resulting break in price, undermines support of the entire list it cannot truthfully be said that the market had a strong undertone.

Market's Weakness Betrayed.

If yesterday's market had been in a healthy condition, with a really strong undertone, no amount of selling of Missouri Pacific could have brought about a slump in the good dividend stocks. There was no secondary defense back of a line which presented a false appearance of strength. When some one sold 68,000 shares of Missouri Pacific he showed the inherent weakness of the whole market, and invited attacks on other stocks. Traders were quick to see that it was going to be just as easy to depress Lehigh Valley, and if they had worked in concert it is not at all unlikely that they could have produced almost as great a decline in any one of half a dozen other issues.

Municipal Luck.

If the sale of New York City's $65,000,000 of new bonds had been held one day earlier, the Controller would have received an average price a shade higher than the one established by Kuhn, Loeb-W. A. Read & Co.'s bid, the difference being due to the demand for an apology from Huerta. But on the other hand, had the sale been held two days later, the average price would very likely have been two shades lower.

⁂

Living on Expectations.

The freight rate increase is becoming a state of mind in the financial district. Bankers get up with it in the morning, read it in every article in their breakfast newspaper, and view it as a background in all of their discussions throughout the day. Crops, business, and war with Mexico all seem to be contingent upon the action to be taken by the commission. If the full 5 per cent. is granted to the Eastern roads, it may mean $50,000,000 a year to them. That would be small reparation for the mental wear and tear which a great many persons are undergoing while waiting for a decision.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC SUIT UP.

Milburn Calls Common Stockholders 'Poor Devils' in Appeal Argument.

John G. Milburn, who appeared before the Appellate Division yesterday to oppose the appeal of the preferred stockholders from an order of Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum permitting the Directors of the Southern Pacific Railroad to distribute $82,000,000 surplus among the common stockholders, referred to his own clients, the common stockholders, as "poor devils." He said that they had made sacrifices and taken risks, which had built up the big surplus.

The preferred stockholders, on the other hand, he said, had made a "safe investment" and were entitled to only their customary dividends. C. E. Pierson, representing the Equitable Life Assurance Society, which holds $1,000,000 of the preferred stock, argued for the reversal of Justice Greenbaum's decision. The Appellate Division reserved decision.

Lackawanna Coal Sales Decrease.

The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Coal Company reports gross sales in the fiscal year ended on Dec. 31, 1913, of $38,376,486, a decline from the preceding year of $1,023,423. Net income amounted to $1,708,714, showing a decline of $572,373. Revenue from other sources than mining and selling coal was $298,067. The balance available for dividends was equivalent to 31.8 per cent. on the stock. The company's total surplus at the close of the year was $4,617,953.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Oil Stocks Improve in the Early Trading, but They Ease Off Later.

Transactions in the outside security market yesterday amounted to 83,912 shares of stocks and $309,000 of bonds. The sales of stock were divided as follows: Industrials, 8,130; oils, 4,037, and mining, 71,745. The range of prices in all issues in which transactions were reported was:

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

The trading on the Consolidated Exchange was on an active scale, particularly in Steel, Reading, Missouri Pacific, Lehigh Valley, Union Pacific, Central Leather, and American Can. The heavy break in the price of Missouri Pacific quite early in the day tended to check an improving tendency in the rest of the market, and reports of a hitch in the settlement with Huerta also had an adverse effect. The market gradually retreated, with special weakness developing in American Can and Lehigh Valley in the later trading.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

Prices Improve in All Markets as a Result of Tampico Reports.

LONDON, April 17.—Money was in plentiful supply to-day. The improvement in foreign exchanges lessened fears of gold exports and made discount rates easier, and also lowered the price of gold bars an eighth, to 77s 9 1-8d per ounce.

The stock market developed strength on the changed Mexican situation, and every section improved, especially Mexican rails, largely on bear covering. The public remained quiet, however, and after a slight reaction the market closed quiet.

American securities opened steady and from one-eighth to a point above parity. A reaction followed, but renewed buying carried prices back to the opening level before noon. Later the trading was limited, but the gains were maintained, and the market closed steady.

PARIS, April 17.—Prices were higher on the Bourse to-day on improved Mexican reports.

Three per cent. rentes, 86 francs 67½ centimes for the account.

BERLIN, April 17.—Prices improved considerably on the Boerse to-day on favorable New York advices and the better Mexican situation.

RUMORS START DROP IN MISSOURI PACIFIC

But George J. Gould and President Bush Say Maturing Obligations Will Be Met.

STOCK LOWEST IN 17 YEARS

Gould Denies That He Is Responsible for Rush of Selling Orders That Flooded Yesterday's Market.

A rush of selling orders in Missouri Pacific, which continued right up to the close of the Stock Exchange, broke the price of that issue yesterday to the lowest point touched in seventeen years. George J. Gould and President B. F. Bush, denying rumors heard in the course of the day, said that the maturing obligations of the company would be taken care of next week.

Not in years has the financial district given such a large share of its attention to the behavior of Missouri Pacific as it did yesterday. After opening at 24½ it sold down on orders, which all seemed to originate in one source, to 18½. The closing price was only ¼ above the low point. Transactions in the one issue amounted to 68,000 shares, exceeding the total in United States Steel, usually the leader in activity.

The extreme weakness displayed suddenly by Missouri Pacific, after its recent advance on the reports of negotiations for a sale of the controlling interest in the property to John D. Rockefeller and associates, took the market by surprise. Nearly all of the sales were made by the representatives of one Broadway house, and it was rumored on the Stock Exchange that the stock was being supplied by George J. Gould. Mr. Gould and his associates denied any knowledge of the identity of the seller. They said that the company's big note issue would be taken care of at maturity.

Another story which gained credence in the course of the break in Missouri Pacific was that a banking group, which had determined to eliminate George Gould from the railroad situation, had been liquidating stock picked up some time ago in anticipation of a change in control. This story could not be confirmed.

The Missouri Pacific has an issue of $25,000,000 of 5 per cent. collateral notes put out in 1911 which falls due on June 1. These notes were quoted yesterday afternoon at 95 asked and 91 bid. These notes are secured by the deposit of $22,000,000 of St. Louis & Iron Mountain first and refunding 6 per cent. bonds, $1,070,000 of Iron Mountain stock, $1,972,000 of Missouri Pacific first and refunding 5s, $9,800,000 preferred and $15,000,000 of Denver & Rio Grande common stock, and other securities having a market value even at present prices in excess of the amount of the notes. Tentative plans for selling Iron Mountain bonds were made recently, but the price offered for them was not acceptable to the company.

President Bush, who was in New York yesterday, said that arrangements for financing these notes would be made next week, either through a sale of new notes or an extension of the present issue. It was reported yesterday afternoon that Mr. Gould was taking home with him a plan for a new issue of 6 per cent. notes which the company's bankers stood ready to underwrite.

A report still persists that negotiations looking to the transfer of the Gould holdings, carrying control of Missouri Pacific and allied roads, to John D. Rockefeller and bankers associated with him, were almost concluded when they were broken off through a refusal on the part of Mr. Gould to accede to the terms proposed.

PORPHYRY COPPER REPORTS

Two of the leading porphyry copper companies, Chino and Ray Consolidated, issued their annual reports for 1913 yesterday. Gross income of the Ray Consolidated Company from operation was $7,809,721, an increase over the preceding year of $2,424,156. Net income amounted to $2,675,193, showing an increase of $745,930. After paying dividends of $1,631,504 a surplus of $1,043,689 was left.

During the year the company produced 52,341,029 pounds of copper, against 34,674,275 pounds in 1912. A price of 15.01 cents a pound was received for the output, after deducting delivery charges. President Aldrich told shareholders that in the closing month of the year all construction and addition to equipment previously planned was completed, leaving the company in a position to mine and treat at least 8,000 tons of ore daily.

The Chino Company reported a total income of $7,621,419, a gain of $3,277,157. Of this amount $3,190,293 was saved in the way of profits, an increase over 1912 of $990,524. The year's surplus, after paying dividends, was $1,314,963, a gain of $861,942. Total surplus was $3,743,167.

The output was 50,511,661 pounds of copper, which brought a net price of 15.088 cents a pound. The cost of producing the metal was 8.78 cents a pound. The report said that the plant was in excellent condition at the close of the year, and the outlook for 1914 was toward higher tonnages and more uniform operating conditions than in the past.

To the holders of Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company coupon and registered Unified Four Per Cent. Gold Bonds, issued under the mortgage dated November 16, 1909:

New York, April 14, 1914.

The Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company, by action of its Stockholders and Directors, has closed its Unified Four Per Cent. Gold Mortgage, dated November 16, 1909, and no additional issue of Bonds can hereafter be made under that mortgage.

At the same meetings the Stockholders and Directors authorized a new General Unified Mortgage practically similar to the closed mortgage in terms and authorized amount, except that Bonds issued thereunder, instead of being limited to a maximum interest rate of 4 per cent., can be issued in Series bearing different rates not exceeding 6 per cent., as may be fixed by the Board of Directors.

Under this Series "A" issue, Bonds to an amount of $30,847,000 have already been authorized and are hereby offered in exchange par for par to the holders of the $30,847,000 of 4 per cent. Bonds issued under the recently closed Unified Mortgage of November 16, 1909.

Under resolution of the Board of Directors this privilege of exchange will expire on December 1, 1914.

As the new General Unified Series "A" Bonds will bear interest at 4½ per cent. from June 1, 1914, if the exchange of Bonds be made before June 1, 1914, the coupon or registered interest for $20 due June 1, 1914, upon each Bond surrendered will be paid in cash when exchange is made.

The exchange of Bonds must be made at the United States Trust Company of New York, 45 Wall Street, which is the corporate Trustee of the new mortgage and is now prepared to issue temporary receipts exchangeable, on and after July 15, 1914, for permanent Bonds.

H. L. BORDEN,
Secretary.

FIRST ACCEPTANCES UNDER STATE LAW

Broker Negotiates Loans with Local Banks Under System Based on European Practice.

SELLS THEM TO OTHERS

Dealings in Two-Name Paper Start Without Waiting for Establishment of Federal Reserve System.

The first step in the establishment of a discount market based on "acceptances," such as prevails in London and other European financial centres, followed yesterday upon the announcement that Gov. Glynn had signed the bill for a new State banking law.

This law authorizes State banks and trust companies to make acceptances and the provision took effect immediately. Before the day was over, two such bills were negotiated by Theodore H. Price in behalf of clients whose names were withheld.

One of these clients wanted to borrow $100,000. If the occasion had arisen a day sooner, Mr. Price would have taken the client's note for that amount to a bank or trust company and discounted it. With the new law in effect he took instead a draft drawn by his client on the Corn Exchange Bank at ninety days' sight, payable to the drawer and indorsed by the drawer in blank, to the Corn Exchange Bank, which put its acceptance on it. Mr. Price then sold the accepted draft to the Guaranty Trust Company at a low rate of discount.

The Corn Exchange Bank received a commission for putting its credit behind that of the borrower. Its acceptance made the Corn Exchange liable for the payment of the draft at maturity, with the same liability remaining upon the borrower. Should the acceptance be held by the Guaranty Trust Company till maturity it would present it at the Corn Exchange Bank for payment. The Corn Exchange would have received the money in the meantime from the borrower who arranged to obtain its acceptance. Under conditions of a fully developed market for this kind of commercial paper, such as that in London, the bill might pass through several hands before being presented for payment.

The other acceptance made yesterday was also negotiated by Mr. Price, who has added to his business a new department for handling such credits. This was drawn on the Guaranty Trust Company for $125,000 to the borrower's order, by whom it was indorsed in blank, and was accepted by it. It was then sold by Mr. Price to the Equitable Trust Company.

Borrowing money in this way on an accepted draft differs materially from the prevailing practice in this country of borrowing on the note of the debtor. In the latter case, the bank that discounts the note has only the borrower to look to for its payment, while in the case of an accepted draft both the drawer and the acceptor are liable. For this reason acceptances are known as two-name paper, as distinguished from notes, or single-name paper.

Bankers' acceptances, such as those made yesterday, have a ready sale in foreign centres, as the purchaser regards almost entirely the name of the acceptor, and does not have to consider the credit of the drawer. The presence of large amounts of such bills in the market, of brokers who deal in them daily, and the fact that they can be discounted at the Bank of England or pledged as security for loans to their holders, makes them assets of the most liquid character, and the banks invest in them heavily instead of lending on the Stock Exchange all the money that must be kept immediately available.

The establishment of such a market here, with a resultant withdrawal of funds from speculation and their diversion to meeting the needs of commercial business is one of the objects of the Federal Reserve act. That act, however, provides only for acceptances growing out of import or export transactions. The power of national banks to make such acceptances will not be effective until the Federal reserve system is in operation.

In the meantime, the Van Tuyl Commission, which was at work on a revision of the State banking laws, decided to follow the Federal Reserve act by conferring the same power on State banks and trust companies which may or may not enter the Federal system. The commission and the Legislature went further, however, than Congress and gave State institutions power to accept drafts arising out of domestic trade. The signing of the bill on Thursday made this provision effective in advance of the establishment of the Federal reserve system, so that the beginning of the use of bank acceptances arose under the State law with yesterday's transactions.

The State law is also more liberal in that it imposes no restriction on the amount of acceptances that may be made by any bank. By the Federal Reserve act a member bank is empowered to "accept drafts or bills of exchange drawn upon it and growing out of transactions involving the importation or exportation of goods, having not more than six months' sight to run; but no bank shall accept such bills to an amount equal at any time in the aggregate to more than one-half of its paid-up capital stock and surplus."

The State law authorizes a bank or trust company "to accept for payment at a future date drafts drawn upon it by its customers and to issue letters of credit authorizing the holders thereof to draw drafts upon it or its correspondents at sight or on time not exceeding one year," without limitation on the aggregate amount. Mr. Price, in discussing the advantages of acceptances, said:

"The borrowers obtain their money more cheaply than they could otherwise. The obligation created to secure it is the very best known to finance, a banker's acceptance. The ultimate lender is in possession of a readily convertible evidence of debt, upon which money can always be secured, and which in the case of a bank or trust company can properly be reckoned as part of the secondary reserve, being readily available for rediscount.

"As a secondary reserve it is much to be preferred to call loans, which, though nominally available on the instant, are, most bankers well understand, practically uncallable in times of panic or distress, or to insist upon their payment would result in such a depreciation of the securities behind them that general ruin and insolvency would ensue.

"In fact, the call loan is both a delusion and a menace in American finance. In theory call loans are always liquid, and our New York banks have therefore used them as an investment for their secondary reserve at rates which are absurdly low in proportion to the trouble involved, and are moreover misleading and irritating to the average mercantile borrower, who does not understand why he should pay more than is charged for call money.

"As a substitute for the illusive call loan, the banker's acceptance, payable at a specified date, should be most attractive. It ought to pay a little higher rate of interest in the first place. In the second, it is far less trouble. In the third, it is far more available, and in the fourth, it makes of the accepting concern a monitor of credit, under whose surveillance confidence is far less likely to be abused, and whose guarantee of the borrower's responsibility will eliminate most of the hazard incidental to the use of single-name paper.

"The banker's acceptance will, moreover, put at the disposal of the credit market a large amount of private funds against which idle bank reserves have to be maintained, because there has been no form of short-time investment for them than does not involve the risk of depreciation or loss.

"From the standpoint of the borrower the situation has also many attractive features. His credit is improved by the association with the acceptor's name. A relationship so established is likely to be a permanent one and always available whether money be scarce or plenty. A general disclosure of his affairs and business will be necessary only to the acceptance concern, and need not be made to others, who will buy his bill upon the strength of the acceptor's responsibility. Credit, instead of being a matter of slow growth, will become immediately available to those whose candor, character, and business methods entitle them to the confidence of acceptors whose immense resources, known to all, put their obligations beyond all possibility of criticism."

NEW HAVEN TO MEET NOTES.

Morgan Confers with Directors on Plan to Finance Maturities.

J. P. Morgan and W. H. Porter of J. P. Morgan & Co., until recently the fiscal agents of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, and George F. Baker, Chairman of the First National Bank, conferred with Chairman Howard Elliott and other Directors of the New Haven yesterday on a plan for financing the New Haven's maturing obligations. Mr. Elliott said that favorable progress had been made, but that the details of the plan had not been completed.

Up to and including July 26, 1914, the New Haven has maturities to meet totaling $54,000,000. The most important item is an issue of six-months notes for $46,000,000, which was made last November, when the proposed debenture bond issue for $67,000,000 was held up by injunctions. This falls due one month from to-day.

The arrangements, which have been practically completed, are understood to call for a sale of part of the securities which the New Haven holds in its treasury. This method of financing, it was pointed out in the financial district, would have the effect of paying off the notes soon to mature without replacing them by any other obligation of the company. In other words, its debt and fixed charges would be actually reduced.

It was expected that the stockholders of the road would have the right to purchase the securities to be put out at this time, and that they would be taken by the bankers subject to this right of the shareholders to subscribe.

The New Haven treasury contains among other assets $40,000 of Connecticut Company stock, $12,000,000 of Old Colony, $24,000,000 Rhode Island Company stock, $27,000,000 of Boston Railroad Holding Company preferred and common stock, and other marketable securities. Mr. Elliott has agreed with Attorney General McReynolds to sell certain trolley and steamship companies, and it is expected that a syndicate composed largely of Boston bankers will take over some of these securities soon. The new financing now under discussion will be handled, Wall Street heard, by J. P. Morgan & Co., the First National Bank, the National City Bank, Kidder, Peabody & Co., and Lee, Higginson & Co.

UNITED CIGAR INCREASE.

Gross sales of the United Cigar Stores Company of America increased $2,850,859 over those of the preceding year, according to the annual report for 1913, which was issued yesterday. The total amount of the sales was not given. Dividends and interest received on investments aggregated $2,171,516. The year's surplus was $360,716, and the company's total surplus at the end of the year was $1,446,268.

The report said that thirty-six new stores had been added to the company's chain in the year. The increased sales were credited to the policy of putting back into the business a large part of the earnings.

THE CONDITION OF TRADE.

Commenting on the condition of trade and the business of the banks, Dun's Review says:

> Adverse weather conditions accentuate the prevailing quietness in general trade. Evidences of improvement are not wholly absent, yet progress is checked by the backward Spring. This retards the distribution of seasonable merchandise and has caused accumulation of goods in some quarters. The supply of commercial paper continues abnormally light notwithstanding the attractive terms offered by financial institutions. Confidence in the future, however, is maintained, largely because of the splendid agricultural outlook. Winter wheat is in such excellent shape that even last year's banner yield will probably be surpassed; everything points to an increased cotton acreage, while the other leading crops apparently are starting the season well.
>
> Bank exchanges this week at the principal cities in the United States display considerable falling off, the total amounting to $2,754,448,705, a decrease of 8 per cent. as compared with the $2,990,867,734 of the same week last year and 16.2 per cent. as contrasted with the $3,287,812,517 of the corresponding week in 1912.

Bradstreet's says:

> Trade and industrial advices are still irregular, with business as a whole still on the quiet side. Warmer, more seasonable weather west and south, excellent Winter wheat crop advices, and prospects for full areas to be planted in leading crops are a stimulus to Spring retail trade and better jobbing demand in sections affected. Spring dry goods, wearing apparel, agricultural implements and seeds show fair though not record activity. In wholesale and manufacturing lines progress is but halting, however, and hand-to-mouth buying or ordering seems the rule. Special mention is made of the use of the telegraph and express facilities by jobbers in replenishing broken stocks, and the sum total of this business is probably large.

Grand Central Terminal, New York,
April 11, 1914.

To Holders of THE NEW YORK CENTRAL AND HUDSON RIVER RAILROAD COMPANY'S 3½% GOLD BONDS, LAKE SHORE COLLATERAL:

The holders of more than seventy-five per cent. in amount of all the outstanding New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company's Three and One-half Per cent. Gold Bonds, Lake Shore Collateral, having consented to the consolidation of The New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company and the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway Company, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the offer to consenting holders of the privilege of exchanging, following consolidation, their 3½ per cent. bonds for 4 per cent. mortgage bonds, as set forth in the letter from the Company to the Lake Shore collateral bondholders, dated May 14, 1913, is withdrawn as to holders of such bonds who have not prior to April 11, 1914, given their consent to consolidation.

By order of the Board of Directors.

DWIGHT W. PARDEE, Secretary.

Pere Marquette Railroad Company

Four Per Cent. Fifty-Year Gold Bonds Issued Under Consolidated Mortgage, Dated January 2, 1901.

More than a majority of the Consolidated Mortgage Bonds having been deposited under the Bondholders' Agreement dated June 3, 1912, the undersigned Committee requested the Trustee to proceed upon the defaults under the covenants of the Consolidated Mortgage. A bill to foreclose the said Mortgage was accordingly filed in the Federal Court in Detroit last week. Default having been made on April 1st, 1914, on certain of the obligations of the Company secured by underlying liens upon various portions of the property of the Pere Marquette Railroad Company, which are superior to the lien of the Consolidated Bonds, a Committee has been formed for the purpose of protecting the holders of the underlying bonds. This action on the part of the underlying bondholders has emphasized the necessity for united action on behalf of the holders of the Consolidated Bonds.

In view of the foregoing facts the Committee invite those holders of Consolidated Mortgage Bonds who have not already deposited their bonds under the Agreement to do so at once.

Dated April 4th, 1914.

EDUCATION NOTES.

A written examination for license as teacher of physical training in the elementary schools will be conducted by the Board of Examiners at the Board of Education Hall on Monday, beginning at 9 A. M. It will include a practical test with a class in physical training, as well as an individual performance. Applicants should provide themselves with gymnasium suits for use in the practical tests. For applicants coming from a distance the oral and practical examination will be given on Monday afternoon or Tuesday. No person will be eligible who has not reached his twenty-first or who has passed his forty-first birthday, except that the holder of a permanent license to teach in New York City schools shall not be regarded as ineligible on account of age until he has reached his fifty-first birthday. In the written and oral answers to examination questions applicants must give evidence of ability to use the English language correctly. The salaries paid to teachers of physical training in the elementary schools are as follows: For the first to third year, inclusive, $880; thereafter an annual increase of $80, conditioned upon satisfactory service, until the maximum of $1,920 is reached in the sixteenth year.

The Manhattan Trade School for Girls, 209 East Twenty-third Street, will give an exhibition on April 22 and 23 of the work done by its pupils.

RECEIVERS' SALES.

NOTICE OF RECEIVERS' SALE
WALPOLE TIRE AND RUBBER COMPANY.

Pursuant to the terms of a decree of the United States District Court for the District of Massachusetts, entered March 31, 1914, to which attention is directed, the receivers of the Walpole Tire and Rubber Company will offer for sale at public auction on Monday, May 11th, 1914, at 10:30 o'clock A. M., upon the premises at the office of said company in Walpole, Massachusetts, all the property, real and personal, including all formulae, patents, trade-marks, trade names, good will, contract rights, water rights, stocks, bonds, securities, accounts receivable, choses in action, machinery, equipment and appliances, the auto truck, office furniture and fixtures, stock in trade, raw materials, and all other property of every kind and description, of the Walpole Tire and Rubber Company, with the exception of the cash in bank or in the hands of the receivers. Said property will be offered in lots, and also as a whole, as a going concern, and includes all the capital stock of the Walpole Rubber Co., Ltd., of Granby, Quebec, and all the capital stock of the Walpole Shoe Supply Co. of Boston, Mass.

Bidders whose bids are accepted under Section 1 of Paragraph 7 of said decree will be required to make a deposit of 10 per cent. on the amount of their bids, in cash or by certified check to the receivers.

A bidder under Clause A of Section 2 of Paragraph 7 of said decree will be required to make a deposit of $50,000 in cash or by certified check to the receivers.

A bidder under Clause B of Section 2 of Paragraph 7 of said decree will be required to make a deposit of $5,000 in cash or by certified check to the receivers.

A bidder under Clause C of Section 2 of Paragraph 7 of said decree will be required to make a deposit of $5,000 in cash or by certified check to the receivers.

A bidder under Section 3 of Paragraph 7 of said decree will be required to make a deposit of $60,000 in cash or by certified check to the receivers.

All bids accepted at the sale will be subject to confirmation by the Court to whom the accepted bids will be presented at the earliest possible moment after the auction. Deposits made by unsuccessful bidders will be returned upon acceptance of the highest bid. Deposits made upon accepted bids not subsequently confirmed by the Court will also be returned.

The sale will be consummated and the property delivered within thirty (30) days from the confirmation of the sale by the Court; payment of the balance of said purchase price to be made upon delivery of title deeds.

The business of the company will be conducted in its regular course for the account of the purchaser by the receivers until delivery. Prepaid insurance and other similar items will be adjusted as of the date of the transfer of title. The purchaser will have the privilege of assuming all outstanding contracts and sales so far as the same may be assumed.

The property will not be sold unless the aggregate of the bids received on separate lots or the bid for the property as an entirety shall be at least One Million One Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars, ($1,150,000.)

(a) The following described parcels of real estate, with the exception of certain conveyances made by the Massachusetts Chemical Company and noted herein, situated in the Town of Walpole, in the County of Norfolk, and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, with all buildings thereon and rights appurtenant thereto.

(1) A certain parcel of land on the southeasterly side of South Street in the Town of Walpole, bounded and described as follows, viz: Commencing at the northerly corner of said lot, adjoining land hereinbefore conveyed to one Jeremiah Contoi, and being Lot Four (4) on a plan entitled "Union Mills Property, Walpole, Mass., John B. Rooney, Proprietor, by Edmund Grover, C. E.," dated March 23d, 1896; thence continuing in a substantially southeasterly direction along said Contoi's land about three hundred one and 52-100 (301.52) feet to land of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company; thence in a substantially southwesterly direction along the land of said New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company about one hundred forty-three and 3-10 (143.3) feet to the millpond; thence along said millpond in a substantially northwesterly direction to said South Street; thence in a substantially northeasterly direction along said South Street about two hundred three and 6-10 (203.6) feet to the point of beginning. Said lot hereby conveyed, comprising Lots Five (5,) Six, (6,) and Eight, (8,) as shown on said plan of Union Mills Property.

(2) A certain parcel of land, with the buildings thereon, situated on the northwesterly side of South Street in said Walpole, bounded and described as follows, viz: Commencing at the southerly corner of said lot on South Street, thence in a westerly or southwesterly direction one hundred forty-eight and 8-100 (148.08) feet to a point; thence in a substantially northwesterly direction ninety-seven (97) feet to a point; thence turning at an angle and continuing in a substantially northerly direction as shown on a plan hereinafter referred to forty-six and 3-10 (46.3) feet; thence turning at an angle and continuing about sixty (60) feet as shown on said plan to centre of river; thence along centre of river in a substantially northwesterly direction about thirty-seven and 50-100 (37.50) feet to a point; thence in a substantially northeasterly direction about three hundred twenty-five (325) feet to a point at the junction of two fences: thence continuing in a southeasterly direction one hundred sixty and 5-10 (160.5) feet to said South Street; thence in a substantially southwesterly direction along said South Street about three hundred eleven (311) feet to the point of beginning; together with such rights as now exist in and to the millpond and mill privilege connected with said premises.

(3) The following described parcels of land, with the buildings thereon, situated in said Walpole and shown on a plan of the estate of John H. Blackburn, made by E. Worthington, dated August, 1900, recorded with said Norfolk Deeds, Plan Book 28, Plan 1255.

First—A parcel of land on the westerly bank of the Neponset River, bounded and described, viz: Beginning at a point on the westerly bank of said Neponset River which is in line with the boundary line between other land of the grantor and land of heirs of Jerome B. Cram, on the opposite side of said river; thence running westerly by land now or late of Alice Joy twenty-two and 44-100 (22.44) feet to a point; thence turning and running southerly by land of said Joy ninety-nine (99) feet to a point; thence turning and running a little more southerly by an irregular line one hundred thirty-eight and 6-10 (138.6) feet to the bank of said Neponset River; thence turning and running in a northerly and westerly direction on said Neponset River three hundred thirty-five (335) feet to the point of beginning, and containing sixty one-hundredths (60-100) of an acre, be any or all of said measurements more or less.

Second—A parcel of land, with the buildings thereon, bounded and described, viz.: Beginning at a maple tree shown on said plan on the northerly side of the Neponset River and being a bound between land of the grantor and land now or formerly of Alice Joy, thence running westerly in a straight line by land now or formerly of said Joy ninety and 42-100 (90.42) feet to a private way, thence across said private way in the same direction and being a continuation of said straight line fifty (50) feet to a point, thence turning at a right angle and running almost southerly and crossing said Neponset River one hundred ten (110) feet to a point, thence turning at a right angle and running almost easterly two hundred (200) feet to a point, thence turning at a right angle and running almost northerly one hundred ten (110) feet to a point, thence turning at a right angle and running almost easterly (westerly?) fifty-nine and 58-100 (59.58) feet to point of beginning; containing about one-half (½) acre, be all of said measurements more or less; excepting and reserving unto one Eva A. Caldwell, her heirs or assigns, a right of way over said land and footbridge across said Neponset River and said private way.

Third—A parcel of land situated at the saw-mill dam as shown on said plan, sufficient on which to construct a dam and to maintain the same, and no more.

Fourth—A parcel of land situated at the footbridge over the Neponset River near the foundry, as shown on said plan, sufficient on which to erect and construct a dam and maintain the same, and no more.

Fifth—Together with all the land conveyed to the Massachusetts Chemical Company by deed of Eva A. Caldwell, dated August 21, 1900, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 877, page 583, lying and being within the area which might be flowed by said dam therein referred to, and subject to such rights of said Eva A. Caldwell reserved in said deed as are now existing, and together with all the rights appurtenant to said lands as granted in said deed.

(4) A certain parcel of land on South Street situated in said Walpole and shown on a plan made by E. Worthington, dated August 1900, and recorded with Plan Book 28, Plan 1255, and bounded and described, viz.: Westerly by South Street eighty-seven (87) feet, northerly by land now or formerly of Warren Clapp six hundred thirty-five and 8-10 (635.8) feet, easterly by Neponset River two hundred (200) feet, and southerly by land now or formerly of Gayland Mann seven hundred seventy-one (771) feet, containing one and 76-100 (1.76) acres, be all of said measurements more or less; together with such flowage rights as may now exist.

(5) A certain tract of meadow land situated in the southerly part of said Walpole on South Street, containing four (4) acres and thirteen (13) rods by measure, and bounded, viz.: Beginning at northwesterly corner of said lot on South Street and line of land belonging to heirs of John P. Bowker, thence northeasterly 88° East ten (10) chains fifty-one (51) links, on said heirs' land to Neponset River, thence on said River upstream to land belonging to James Gallagher, thence westerly 84½° West four (4) chains forty-three (43) links on said Gallagher's land to South Street, thence on said South Street to the first starting point mentioned.

(6) The following parcels of land, with the buildings thereon, located in said Walpole, bounded and described, viz.:

First—Being Lots No. 2 and No. 3 on a plan of land formerly belonging to E. W. Clapp, situated in the southerly part of said Walpole, surveyed October, 1861, by Horatio Wood, containing seven (7) acres and ten (10) rods, bounded and described, viz.: Commencing on South Street at dividing line of Lots 1 and 2, as shown on said plan, thence the line runs southerly and southwesterly along said South Street to a stake and stone at line of land of late J. H. Blackburn, thence turning at a right angle and running along line of land of late J. H. Blackburn to Neponset River, thence along bed of the Neponset River easterly and northerly to a stake and stone at the division line between said Lots No. 1 and No. 2 on said plan, to point of beginning on said South Street.

Second—A lot of meadow land, so called, situated in the southerly part of said Walpole on South Street, containing two (2) acres, more or less, and bounded, viz.: Beginning at southerly corner of said lot on said South Street, thence northerly along said South Street to land belonging formerly to J. H. Blackburn, thence easterly on said Blackburn's land at right angles to a stake and stone and the Neponset River, thence southeasterly on said River to corner stake and stone and land of Aaron Hutchinson, thence on said Aaron Hutchinson's land to said South Street, the first starting point mentioned; subject to the right of way reserved to James E. Hutchinson in deed from said Hutchinson to the Massachusetts Chemical Company, dated October 1, 1900, and recorded with Norfolk Registry of Deeds, Book 880, page 263, from South Street along the dividing line between Lots No. 1 and No. 2 on said plan, in order to enter his said Lot 1 from South Street.

(7) That certain lot of land situated in said Walpole bounded and described, viz.: Westerly by the location of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad (known as the Wrentham Branch of said railroad,) southerly by the leading way running from South Street to land of one Blackburn, northerly and easterly by land now or late of said Blackburn and the Neponset River.

(8) All the remaining part of a certain parcel of land more particularly described immediately here below, left after a certain conveyance of approximately ten thousand (10,000) square feet of land, made to Porter S. Boyden by deed dated November 28, 1911, recorded with Norfolk Registry of Deeds, Book 1199, page 469, to which reference may be had for a more particular description of the parcel therein conveyed and taken from the below described lot:

A certain lot of land situated in said Walpole, bounded and described, viz.: Beginning at a stake on the northwesterly side of South Street at a corner of land now or formerly of Porter S. Boyden, thence running along said side of South Street two hundred seventy-one and one-half (271½) feet, more or less, to the corner of land now or formerly belonging to the Massachusetts Chemical Company, thence northwesterly along land now or formerly of said Massachusetts Chemical Company one hundred sixty (160) feet to a corner, thence southwesterly along land now or formerly of Massachusetts Chemical Company three hundred ten (310) feet, more or less, to Neponset River, thence northwesterly along Neponset River three hundred twenty (320) feet to land now or formerly of Abbie T. N. Cobb, thence northeasterly along land of said Cobb three hundred eighty-four (384) feet to a corner of land now or formerly of one John E. Horton, thence southeasterly along land now or formerly of said Horton and across Clark Avenue, and along land now or formerly of one White two hundred forty (240) feet, thence northeasterly along land of said White one hundred eighty (180) feet, more or less, to a corner of land now or formerly of J. Ella Boyden, thence northeasterly along said land of said Boyden one hundred (100) feet to a corner of land of one Henry M. Stowell, thence southeasterly along land now or formerly of Estate of Beeri Clark ninety-three (93) feet, more or less, to a line of land of Porter S. Boyden, thence southwesterly along land of said Porter S. Boyden seventeen (17) feet, more or less, to a stake at the corner of said land of said Boyden, thence southeasterly along said land of said Boyden one hundred ten (110) feet to the point of beginning; except such land as the Massachusetts Chemical Company now may have or formerly had title to as a right of way for their canal, and subject to continuation of grant, verbal or otherwise, by the late owners for the right to the Town of Walpole to maintain an underground drainpipe as laid from Clark Avenue to the canal.

All the remaining part of two certain parcels of land more particularly described immediately here below, left after two (2) conveyances aggregating approximately twelve thousand eight hundred (12,800) square feet, made to Edward Ducat by deed dated September 28, 1910, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 1154, page 62, and to Jeremiah Contoi by deed dated September 8, 1910, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 1154, page 61, to which deeds reference may be had for a more particular description of the parcels therein conveyed and taken from the below described lots.

(9) A certain tract of land, with the buildings thereon, situated in said Walpole on the southeasterly side of said South Street, described, viz.: Beginning at a point on said street at corner of land of one Ellis, thence in a southerly direction on said street one hundred eight and 9-10 (108.9) feet to a corner, thence at right angles in an easterly direction two hundred ninety-nine and 8-10 (299.8) feet to land of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, thence northerly along said New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company's land thirty-four and 5-10 (34.5) feet to said Ellis's land, a corner, thence westerly along said Ellis's land three hundred twelve and 4-10 (312.4) feet to said South Street and the point of beginning, being Lot No. 1 on a plan of land of Union Mills Property, dated March 23d, 1896, together with a portion of Lot 7, immediately in the rear of Lot 1, which portion is formed by continuing the southwesterly line of said Lot 1 in a straight southeasterly direction substantially until it comes to said New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company.

(10) A certain lot of land, with the buildings thereon, situated in said Walpole on the easterly side of South Street, bounded and described, viz.: Commencing at a point on said South Street adjoining land now or formerly of Jordan Lee, thence continuing in a southwesterly direction along said South Street eighty (80) feet to a point on said South Street, thence at right angles in a southeasterly direction about three hundred one (301) feet to land of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, thence in a northwesterly direction about seventy-three (73) feet to said land of Lee, thence in a northwesterly direction along said Lee's land two hundred ninety-nine and 8-10 (299.8) feet to the point of beginning: being Lot No. 2, described on a certain plan of the Union Mills Property, dated March 23, 1896, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, together with that portion of Lot 7, immediately in the rear of Lot 2 in straight lines to land of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company as shown on said plan.

(11) A parcel of land, with the buildings thereon, situated on the southeasterly side of South Street in the Town of Walpole, bounded and described, viz.: Commencing at the southwesterly corner on South Street of land conveyed by John B. Rooney to Harry L. Howard in a certain deed dated July 26, 1897, recorded Norfolk Deeds, Book 792, Page 511, thence continuing in a southwesterly direction along said South Street eighty-five (85) feet to a point, thence at right angles in a southeasterly direction about three hundred four (304) feet to land of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, thence in a northeasterly direction along land of said railroad company eighty-four and one-half (84½) feet to the lot conveyed by John B. Rooney to said Harry L. Howard as hereinbefore mentioned, thence in a northwesterly direction about three hundred one (301) feet to said South Street.

(12) A certain lot of land, with the buildings thereon, situated upon the southeasterly side of South Street in said Walpole, and bounded and described, viz.: Beginning at a point on said South Street adjoining land formerly of Harry L. Howard, thence running southeasterly along said land formerly of said Howard about two hundred ninety-nine (299) feet to land of New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, thence along land of said railroad company in a southerly direction fifty-eight (58) feet to a point, thence in a northwesterly direction about three hundred one and 5-10 (301.5) feet to a point on South Street, thence in a northeasterly direction along said South Street fifty-eight (58) feet to point of beginning.

(13) A certain lot of land situated on South Street in said Walpole, bounded and described, viz.: Westerly by said South Street, southerly by land of one Myers, northerly and easterly by Union Pond, so called; said lot containing one-half (½) an acre, more or less.

(14) A certain parcel of land, situated in said Walpole, known as Lot 2 on a plan drawn by Edmund Grover, C. E., dated January, 1899, and entitled "Plan of Two House Lots, a Part of the Estate of the late Beeri Clark, in Walpole, Mass.," said lot being described, viz.: Beginning at a stake on the northwesterly side of South Street in said Walpole, at the easterly corner of said Lot 2 on the plan above mentioned, thence south 40° and 33' west along the line of said South Street one hundred (100) feet to a stake, thence leaving South Street and running north 48° and 44' west along land of one Clark now or formerly one hundred ten (110) feet to a stake, thence north 40° and 33' east along said Clark's land one hundred (100) feet to a stake, thence south 48° and 44' east along land of said Clark fifteen (15) feet to a stake at the corner of Lot 1 on said plan, thence same course by said Lot No. 1 ninety-five (95) feet, to the point of beginning; containing in all eleven thousand (11,000) square feet, be the same measurements more or less, or however otherwise bounded or described.

(15) A certain tract of land, containing seven (7) acres, more or less, situated in said Walpole and bounded as follows, viz.: Beginning on the easterly side of South Street at a lane leading to Blackburn's factory, formerly so called, thence northerly by said lane till it comes to land formerly of said John H. Blackburn, thence easterly by said Blackburn land till it comes to said South Street above the house formerly of William Blackburn, thence on said South Street to the bound first mentioned, being the first parcel described in deed of Smith Gray and Eleanor M. Gray to Aaron Hutchinson, dated April 21st, 1862, recorded Norfolk Book 306, page 29: excepting, however, a certain parcel of land containing 43-100 (.43) acres, conveyed to the Old Colony Railroad Company, as shown on plan dated August, 1890, George S. Morrill, Engineer, said plan being recorded with Norfolk County Deeds.

(16) A certain tract of land, with the buildings and improvements thereon, situated on the southeasterly side of Beacon Street in said Walpole, at a point two hundred seventy and 5-10 (270.5) feet from Common Street, thence southeasterly one hundred five (105) feet on Lot 14, thence northeasterly seventy-five (75) feet on Lot 6, thence northwesterly one hundred five (105) feet on Lot 12 to said Beacon Street, thence southwesterly seventy-five (75) feet on said Beacon Street, to the point of beginning: meaning and intending to convey Lot 13 on plan of residence lots belonging to Mayrard H. Boyden, dated November, 1901, Edmund Grover, C. E., and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book of Plans 38, Plan 1753.

NOTE: Upon said parcels of land at Walpole will be found the following described buildings:

Building No. 1—A two-story brick office building, 72 feet by 29 feet;

Building No. 2—A two-story brick mill building, 242 feet by 50 feet;

NOTE: Building No. 2 is connected by bridges with Buildings No. 11 and 13 across South Street, and the Edison Electric Illuminating Company has been given the right to attach its wires to said bridges.

The New York Times,

The first advertisement of The German Classics in The New York Times has produced 259 inquiries to date. The resulting number of sales has been most satisfactory. We might add incidentally that of the other New York papers used the next best gave us only about one-tenth the number of inquiries that we received from the Times.

Advertising in the Times has always produced excellent results for us and its value as an advertising medium seems to improve each year.

Very truly yours,

$42,300,000 IN POST BANKS

Total Estimated for March by Postmaster General Burleson.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Growth of deposits in postal savings banks is revealed in an official communication from Postmaster General Burleson to the Senate filed to-day.

During October of last year the total grew to $37,693,986, an increase of $1,189,082 during that month. On Nov. 30 the total had reached $38,938,203; on Dec. 31, $39,749,530, and on Jan. 31, 1914, $40,037,884.

The low increase during January, compared with other months, the Postmaster General says, was due to withdrawals during that month, which included the semi-annual conversions of deposits into United States bonds, a privilege afforded depositors under the system. The amount of deposits converted into bonds was $1,129,820. The sum remained, in fact, in the possession of the Government, and the Department says the amount of actual increase during January, therefore, was $1,418,174.

Figures for February and March have not been compiled, but Postmaster General Burleson estimates that the first named month will show a total deposit of $41,500,000 and March of $42,300,000.

WINS CASE AFTER 23 YEARS.

It Cost Donnelly $186,000 to Recover $48,000 Judgment.

The case of Donnelly against McArdle, which has been in the courts for more than twenty-three years, is settled at last, and Michael Donnelly, the plaintiff, will within ten days receive the $48,000 judgment for which he has spent the best years of his life and about $186,000 in expenses to obtain.

Mr. Donnelly was in the iron business in 1889 in partnership with his brother-in-law, Patrick J. McArdle, who died four years ago. Believing that the firm was insolvent, Mr. Donnelly gave his partner a bill of sale, covering his interest in the firm, in order to make his partner secure until business was better. Mr. Donnelly always insisted that this was not an actual transfer of his interest in the firm, and he sued to recover. Now, after many years, he is successful.

Now that this case is ended, Mr. Donnelly has further litigation in mind. He intends to begin three suits for $150,000 each against ex-Judges Charles F. McLean, Martin L. Stover, and Henry A. Gildersleeve, three of the Judges before whom the case was tried at various times.

ANGER CO. SCHEDULES.

Baking Concern Has $153,963 Liabilities—Nominal Assets $229,587.

By the schedules in bankruptcy filed yesterday in the Federal District Court by the Anger Baking Company, Incorporated, of 636 Greenwich Street, it appeared that the liabilities of the concern were $153,963, and the nominal assets $229,587. Of the liabilities $27,045 were secured, $126,304 unsecured, $327 for taxes, and $287 for wages.

Among the assets were: stock, $39,221; machinery and plant, $95,000; accounts, $60,592; notes of the Oneida Milling Corporation, $25,000; customer's notes, $740; cash, $2,041; ten horses of the value of $3,270; wagon sand trucks, $2,280, and insurance, $1,448.

Among the secured creditors are the New York County National Bank, $8,043; Greenwich Bank, $2,229; Wormser & Co., $16,357, and Maintenance Company, $3,430. Among the unsecured creditors are the Public Bank, $6,711; Yorkville Bank, $706; Van Boskerck & Son, $10,000; Rowland & Co., $5,500, and John A. Anger, $8,785.

WANTS NEGROES TO PROTEST

Washington Urges Them to Fight Discrimination by Railroads.

Dr. Booker T. Washington, Principal of the Tuskegee Normal Industrial Institute has asked the negroes of this country to set aside Sunday, June 7, and Monday, June 8, as special days on which to protest to railroads against showing discrimination in the accommodations provided for colored passengers.

He has asked that the churches, secret societies, business leagues, women's clubs, and other agencies organize and send on those days representatives to the officials of the lines that have provided poorer accommodations for negro than for white travelers.

FIGHT ZIEGLER ACCOUNTING.

Guardian for Brandt Objects to Payments Made by Executors.

Objections to the accounting of William S. Champ and the late Mayor Gaynor as executors of the estate of William Ziegler, the baking powder manufacturer, were filed in the Surrogate's Court yesterday by John J. Hynes of 290 Broadway, the special guardian of John William Brandt, one of Mr. Ziegler's legatees.

Mr. Hynes objects to the accounting on the ground that a payment of $250,075, which was supposed to represent the income from the Ziegler estate from July 21 to Nov. 30, 1912, and which was paid to William Ziegler, Jr., was larger by $65,051 than it should have been. He objects also to the payment of commissions to the estate of the late Mayor Gaynor for his services as executor. The decree ordering the payment of the commissions was signed after the Mayor's death, he said, and the Mayor's estate was not entitled to them therefore.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—The Atlantic storm has passed off the Canadian Coast and clear weather now prevails in the Atlantic States and lower lake region.

The western disturbance has moved slowly north-northeastward to eastern South Dakota with about the same energy, and scattered showers have occurred in the plains States and the Northwest, and snows and rains in the central Rocky Mountain region. In the Far West the weather was generally fair.

It is decidedly warmer in the Ohio Valley, the lake region and the interior of the Atlantic States and high temperatures also continue in the Mississippi and Red River of the North Valleys. It is considerably colder over the districts where showers occurred and warmer in the Far West, especially in California.

The Northwest disturbance will continue northeastward with prospect of the formation of a second disturbance from its south portion now over northern Texas, and unsettled, showery weather may be expected Sunday in the Central Valleys and the West Gulf States, extending Saturday night or Sunday into the East Gulf States and the lower lake region. The showers will be accompanied by rapidly falling temperatures.

In the Atlantic States and from the east slope of the Rocky Mountains west the weather will be generally fair Saturday and Sunday and will also be fair Sunday in the Mississippi and Missouri Valleys. It will be warmer Saturday in the Atlantic States and the Central West and warmer Sunday in the Plains States and the Rocky Mountain region.

Winds for Saturday and Sunday along the North Atlantic Coast will be light to gentle variable breezes; Middle Atlantic Coast, light to moderate shifting breezes becoming southeast; South Atlantic Coast, moderate south breezes except east of the Florida Coast.

FORECASTS: TO-DAY AND SUNDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair, warmer Saturday, Sunday, increasing cloudiness; moderate, shifting winds, becoming south.

Southern New England—Fair, warmer Saturday and probably Sunday; moderate, shifting winds, becoming south.

Western New York—Warmer Saturday, Sunday, probably showers and cooler; south to southwest winds, becoming fresh to strong.

Northern New England—Fair Saturday and Sunday; warmer in interior; moderate, shifting winds, becoming south.

INTER OCEAN BONDS VALID.

Judge Establishes Priority of Newspaper Issue—Sale Postponed.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 17.—Judge Carpenter in the United States District Court entered a decree to-day establishing the validity and priority of the $600,000 issue of bonds of the Inter Ocean Newspaper Company. Judge Carpenter also ordered that the sale of the assets of The Inter Ocean be postponed until April 28.

A significant point of the decree is that it enables George W. Hinman, the majority bondholder, to bid for the property with his bonds at the sale.

United States.

The United States Civil Service Commission will hold an open competitive examination at the New York Custom House for Inspector of Safety Appliances and Inspector of Hours of Service, for men only, on April 24 and 25 to fill vacancies in the Interstate Commerce Commission at salaries of $1,800 per annum, with necessary allowances for expenses incurred while absent from headquarters in the discharge of official duties. It is expected that several appointments will be made to the position of Inspector of Safety Appliances and to the position of Inspector of Hours of Service.

The duties of the Safety Appliance Inspectors will comprise the making of inspections and reports as required by the Safety Appliance acts; the duties of the Hours of Service Inspectors will be the making of inspections and reports as required by the so-called Hours of Service act. Both Safety Appliance and Hours of Service Inspectors may be required to investigate accidents as required by Section 3 of the Accident Investigation act of May 6, 1910.

Applicants must have reached their twenty-fifth, but not their fiftieth, birthday on the date of the examination. An applicant for the position of Inspector of Safety Appliances must have had at least eight years' experience in steam railroad service as conductor, engineer, trainman, yardman, fireman, or yardmaster, or at least five years' such experience as manager, general or division superintendent, trainmaster, master mechanic, master car builder, general car foreman, road foreman of engines or airbrake supervisor, and must within two years next preceding the date of his application have been in active service in one or more of the capacities mentioned, or as an inspector of steam railroad equipment under the Government of the United States or any State or Territory, provided he has had experience in any one or more of the positions above referred to. An applicant for the position of Inspector of Hours of Service must have had at least eight years' experience as trainmaster, yardmaster, train dispatcher, telegraph operator, block signal operator, conductor, engineer, fireman, trainman, or yardman, or at least five years' experience as manager or as general or division superintendent, and must within two years next preceding the date of his application have been in active service in one or more of the capacities mentioned, or as an inspector of steam railroad equipment under the Government of the United States or any State or Territory, provided he has had experience in any one or more of the positions above referred to.

No person interested either directly or indirectly in any patented article required to be used on any locomotive or car under inspection, or who is intemperate in his habits, shall be eligible for appointment to either of these positions.

Competitors will be examined in spelling, arithmetic, report writing, practical questions, training and experience in railroad work and general fitness. Further information may be obtained from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

The feature of yesterday's realty market was the disposal of a block front on the east side of Park Avenue, between Fiftieth and Fifty-first Streets, by Rudolph I. Schaefer, President of the F. & M. Schaefer Brewing Company, for a price of approximately $1,500,000.

There are about nineteen full city lots in the plot at present, covered by rambling old brewery buildings. The buyer is reported to be a semi-philanthropic institution.

Mission Buys Dwelling.

The National Florence Crittenton Mission has purchased from the estate of Frances E. Young 427 West Twenty-first Street, a three-story dwelling, on a lot 22 by 99.7, between Ninth and Tenth Avenues. William B. May & Co. and W. H. Archibald were the brokers.

Grand Street Theatre Site.

As a site for a moving picture theatre, Rinelli & Guardadin have purchased from the New York Life Insurance and Trust Company, trustees for Katherine Turnbull, the three old buildings, on plot 48 by 80, at 209 and 211 Grand Street. Charles F. Noyes represented the seller. This property has not changed hands in 100 years.

A Manhattan-Queens Trade.

Friday & Lehmann have sold for the heirs of Adolph E. Lux, deceased, the five-story apartment house, 548 West 132d Street, to an investor, who gave in payment three two-family dwellings, 718, 722, and 724 Rector Avenue, Queens.

Bronx Sales.

Martin Taendler has sold a three-family house, located at 1,988 Bathgate Avenue, the Bronx, near Tremont Avenue, on a plot 16.8x85.8, for Frederick Brown to Anna M. Hawlick, who gave in part payment a newly finished residence, on a plot 40 by 100, at St. Albans, L. I. Mr. Brown will occupy the St. Albans home.

The Advance Construction Company (Adelstein & Avrutine) has resold the plot, 54 by 47 by irregular, at the southwest corner of Stebbins Avenue and Chisholm Street.

M. A. Broderick and Thomas S. Burke sold 267 Warburton Avenue, a three-story brick dwelling, on a plot 50 by 100, for the Corporate Investing Company to Margaret H. Cullen; also the two-family house at 213 Buena Vista Avenue for Catherine A. Cuthill, executrix, to Alexander Ferfuson.

Arnold, Byrne & Baumann have sold for Osserman & Gottlieb 782 Prospect Avenue, 80 feet south of Longwood Avenue, a five-story house, on plot 37.6 by 120 by irregular. It was held at $45,000.

Brooklyn.

The Jerome Property Corporation has sold the southwest corner of Sixth Street and Sixth Avenue, known as 378 Sixth Avenue, on lot 20 by 80, a three-story and basement stone residence, to Mrs. George O'Neill for a home. This property was recently traded by Lowenfeld & Prager of Manhattan for a New York apartment house. The same firm also has sold 176 Eighth Street, a three-story flat, for the Rogers Improvement Company to a client for investment; also a detached one-family residence on the south side of Seventy-third Street, between Tenth and Eleventh Avenues, to M. Rosenberg for investment.

Long Island.

The Soundview Realty and Construction Company purchased four plots, improved with modern dwellings, on Fairview Avenue, Third Street and Elmwood Avenue, Bayside. The seller was George Hernden and the price $29,000. In exchange the company conveyed to Hernden twenty-five lots on Chamners Street, between Warburton and Ashburton Avenues, on which twelve houses are to be constructed at once.

The G. X. Matthews Company, builders, of Ridgewood, purchased from Richard and Joseph Meyerrose and M. Brunges nineteen lots with a frontage of 382 feet on Madison Street, Ridgewood, for $27,000. The Matthews Company has given builders' mortgages on the property for $96,000, and will build immediately on the property.

Paul Schindler has purchased from Edgar J. Wright the residence on the west side of Bayside Boulevard, between Ashburton and Warburton Avenues, Bayside, L. I. The purchase price was $12,000. The property consists of an acre of ground with a house of the Colonial type.

The Lewis H. May Company has sold for Frederick Weisbrod, Jr., his cottage and garage on the southwest corner of Washington and West End Avenues, Rockaway Park, L. I., on a plot 100 by 100, to Dr. Hugh De Groot, for his own occupancy.

In the Ridgewood section the G. X. Matthews Company have sold to Christopher Hoenighausen, the six-family brick and stone flat house, occupying a lot 25 by 100, on the southwest corner of Onderdonk Avenue and Madison Street, for $18,500, and to Julia Lease a similar structure at 1,868 Madison Street, on a lot 27.6 by 100, for $11,500.

Leases Site for Big East Side Garage.

William H. Whiting & Co. have leased for the Central Crosstown Railway for a period of twenty-one years, from May 1, 1914, the northwest corner of Avenue A and East Twenty-second Street, a plot with a frontage of 172.9¾ on Avenue A and 117.6 on East Twenty-second Street, comprising in all about 20,000 square feet. The lessee is H. J. Benjamin, President of the Auto Truck Storage and Exchange Company, who will erect on the site a fireproof garage. It will be the largest commercial garage in the State, and will have accommodations for more than 400 cars. The property was formerly used by the Crosstown Railway as a car barn.

Loans Placed.

Smith & Phelps have placed a first mortgage loan of $13,000 on the vacant plot about 166 by 100 feet, situated on the west side of Webster Avenue, beginning 50 feet south of 173d Street.

Robert P. Zobel has secured from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company a mortgage loan of $500,000 at 5½ per cent. on the new twelve-story loft building at 63 to 67 West Thirty-eighth Street, extending through to 62 and 64 West Thirty-ninth Street, with frontages of 61.9 feet and 46 feet, respectively.

George W. Brettell has placed a loan of $10,000 for a client of Thomas Ford's on the flat property at the northeast corner of 122d Street and Pleasant Avenue.

$564,624 for Queens Buildings.

An indication of the activity in building operations in the Borough of Queens was shown during the past week when in one day the total amount of the estimated cost of projected plans exceeded $200,000. The total cost for the week was $564,624, in which there were 182 applications for new buildings of an estimated cost of $423,625; 95 applications for alterations of an estimated cost of $82,406, and 72 applications for plumbing permits of an estimated cost of $38,593.

New Uptown Apartment.

Plans were filed yesterday for a six-story apartment house on the southeast corner of Fort Washington Avenue and 179th Street for the H. M. Construction Company, to cost $160,000. It will have a frontage of 92.7 feet. Charles B. Meyers is the architect. Plans were also filed by Andrew J. Thomas, architect, for a five-story apartment, on the southeast corner of Audubon Avenue and 186th Street, with a frontage of 95 feet, to accommodate twenty-five families, at a cost of $60,000; also for two five-story tenements on the east side of Audubon Avenue, 54.2 feet north of 185th Street, to cost $90,000, and for a five-story tenement on the northeast corner of Audubon Avenue and 185th Street, 120 by 48.1 feet, to cost $75,000, all for the Aspinwall Apartments, Charles L. Grad, President.

Taxpayers' Calendar.

The "Taxpayers' Calendar," printed March 29, was taken from The Indicator, published monthly by Pease & Elliman, who reprinted it from an advertising circular issued by the Columbia-Knickerbocker Trust Company.

Realty Notes.

A meeting of the Real Estate Owners' Protective Association has been called for Monday evening, April 20, at the Riverside Theatre Building, Ninety-sixth Street and Broadway.

Duff & Conger negotiated the sale of the property at 124 and 126 East Eighty-sixth Street to the Corn Exchange Bank, reported yesterday.

Private Dwellings Leased.

Pease & Elliman have leased for Mrs. D. Hunter McAlpin her house of four stories and basement, on a lot 25 by 100, at 46 West Fifty-eighth Street, to Mrs. Edna E. Ackerson.

James Kyle & Sons have leased the three-story and basement private house 582 Lexington Avenue to Annie Vallin for George W. Bond, Jr.

The Clark Estates has leased for a term of years the four-story and basement private dwelling 49 West Seventy-third Street to Leonard A. Hockstader.

Commercial Leases.

Frederick J. Feuerbach has leased for William J. Frey, lessee of the northeast corner of Lenox Avenue and 125th Street, the store at 79 West 125th Street for a term of years to Joseph Kruh for a restaurant.

Spear & Co. have rented for Philip Braender the entire store and basement in the Ashland Building, 315 Fourth Avenue, to Otto E. Dryfoos & Sons, hosiery and underwear, who have been located on Church Street for over thirty years. The rental of this store removes from the market the last large store on Fourth Avenue. It was previously occupied by the Rogers, Thompson, Givernaud Company, silk merchants. W. J. Schoonmaker represented the owners.

S. Lowenfeld has leased nine stores at the northwest corner of 112th Street and Park Avenue for a term of years. Also the southwest corner store of Seventy-ninth Street and Avenue A to Bernard Gross as a wholesale grocery.

Forest Hills Gardens

15 MINUTES FROM HERALD SQUARE

A new type of home community planned and developed with a definite purpose: To demonstrate that more tasteful surroundings and open spacings contribute toward higher and broader standards in suburban development.

Even the casual visitor is aware that Forest Hills Gardens differs greatly from all other suburbs. The basic causes that produce this difference may not, at first glance, be understood, yet the effect is immediately recognized.

In its general aspect, as in its architecture, plottings, streets, walks, parkings, landscaping, lighting and smallest details—the Gardens is unusual, individual, symmetrical—different. There is unity in its variety and variety in its unity.

Forest Hills Gardens is an established community—not an experiment. In less than three years, seventy-five per cent. of the entire property has been fully improved at a total outlay of over $1,000,000, while two hundred houses of distinctive design have been completed, nearly all of which are sold and occupied.

Some of the social features of the Gardens are: The Forest Hills Inn, Tea Garden, Tennis and Squash Courts; the recently organized Forest Hills Gardens Country Club (work upon the completion of the grounds and clubhouse is rapidly progressing), the Forest Hills Gardens Audubon Society, and the 18-hole golf course in Forest Park, adjoining the Gardens.

The new clubhouse of the West Side Tennis Club of New York and its sixty-five magnificent courts (where it is expected the international matches for the famous Davis Cup will be played) are located at Forest Hills Gardens.

Owing to the substantial character of the development work and the superior construction of the houses, the initial cost of a house and plot in the Gardens is necessarily higher than is warranted in the usual ephemeral suburban development; the purchaser receives greater benefits from his investment, first, because the intrinsic value is greater; second, because the Company (not organized solely for profit) is satisfied with the usual rate of interest from funds invested. Terms of purchase are made as reasonable as consistent with good business methods.

Long Island Electric Trains leave Pennsylvania Terminal, Manhattan, at frequent intervals, arriving at Forest Hills Station in thirteen to fifteen minutes. Twenty-five minutes by automobile from Herald Square via Queensboro (59th St.) Bridge and Hoffman Boulevard to the property.

Transportation, booklet, or any desired information, may be secured from Dept. T., New York Office, 47 West 34th St.

Office Opportunity In Times Tower

Several interesting suggestions await business men who call upon the rental agent at The Times Building (Room 406). Space having many possibilities and advantages is available in the upper floors, which are quiet, clean, well equipped and well served with elevators day and night. Business men who are now handicapped by undesirable quarters would find these lofty offices an investment as well as an improvement.

FIX MILLS ESTATE TOTAL $36,227,391

MANY WORTHLESS STOCKS

Mills Building Is Appraised at $4,225,000—Notes for Large Amounts Described as of No Value.

The work of appraising the estate of Darius Ogden Mills, who died in San Francisco on Jan. 3, 1910, has just been completed. It shows that the gross value of the estate at the time of his death was $36,227,391.67, and the net value $35,019,803.55. The will, which divided the entire estate equally between Ogden Mills, a son, and Elizabeth Mills Reid, a daughter and the widow of Whitelaw Reid, was filed for probate Jan. 18, 1910, and in June of the same year the estate paid a transfer tax of $340,717.

The only realty owned in this city by Mr. Mills was the building at 15 Broad Street, valued at $4,225,000, and the garage at 109 West Fifty-second Street, valued at $55,000. He had other real estate in California. The three Mills hotels are not included because Mr. Mills disposed of them before his death.

The deductions made from the estate amount to $807,588.12 and consist of $3,057.63 for the funeral expenses; debts, $29,602.65; administration expenses, $50,000, and commissions to the executors, $724,927.84. These commissions go to the two heirs who were named as the executors.

Each one of the heirs received $17,509,901. Mr. Mills left to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the American Museum of Natural History, and the Home for Incurables, all in the city, $100,000 each; New York Botanical Gardens, $50,000, and $25,000 each to the American Geographical Society and to the American National Red Cross.

The lease of Mr. Mills' home at 634 Fifth Avenue is valued by the appraiser at $25,000 and its contents at $137,550. The furniture in his office at 15 Broad Street is valued at $1,000. His cattle ranch, known as the Camatta Ranch, at San Luis, Cal., is valued at $21,570, and his property at Millbrae Park, Cal., is valued at $21,953. His farming implements and horses and cows are estimated to be worth a little more than $20,000. Among other interesting items in the appraisal are accrued rents in the Mills Building in this city, $31,853; the steamship "Mills," $145,000; cash in London, $267, and dividends declared by companies whose books closed before Mr. Mills died, $89,958.94; and accrued interest on bonds, notes, &c., the value being based on an affidavit made by Ogden Mills, Dec. 1, 1910, $56,554.18.

The cash balances of Mr. Mills are set forth as follows: Bank of New York, $47,335.11; Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, $14,335.70; German-American Bank, $50,617.48; Metropolitan Trust Company, $1,127,872.51; Bank of California, $73,654.58; Mercantile Trust Company of San Francisco, $30,891.11; National Bank of D. O. Mills, San Francisco, $14,046.79; Security Savings Bank of San Francisco, $7,660.17, and petty cash in office safe, $45.52. The jewelry and personal belongings of Mr. Mills are valued at $3,000.

Many Worthless Securities.

The list of securities owned by Mr. Mills is interesting because of the high value fixed for stocks and bonds which are little known, and also because of the large number of securities which the appraiser found to be worthless. The face value of these worthless securities aggregates many millions. Mr. Mills got a number of them as collateral on loans which were never paid.

The larger holdings of stocks with the appraiser's valuations were: 6,310 shares of Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé, $777,707; 16,000 shares New York Central, $1,996,000; 13,500 shares Rock Island Company preferred, $1,218,375; 15,970 shares Portland Railway, Light and Power Company, $1,644,910; 10,659 shares People's Gas Light Coke Company of Chicago, $1,227,117; 49,224 shares Bunker Hill and Sullivan Mining and Concentration Company, par value, $10, $1,230,600; 15,878 shares International Paper Company preferred, $979,497; 34,550 shares Shredded Wheat Company, $1,140,150; 600 shares Standard Oil Company, $394,600; 5,000 shares Tidewater Oil Company, $500,000.

Percival E. Nagle appraised the estate. Thomas E. Rush was the attorney for the State Controller and Stetson, Jennings & Russell were the attorneys for the executors.

ARRESTED BESIDE GRAVE.

Special to The New York Times.

NORWAY, Me., April 17.—William H. Adams of Albany, Me., was arrested today, charged with the murder of his young stepdaughter, Mrs. Ethel Maude Cummings. He had just stepped out of a sleigh in which he had followed the body to the grave, when the warrant was served on him.

Expecting the arrest, a large crowd attended the funeral, which was held in a district school house at the Albany Crossroads. Throughout the service Sherman Cummings of Groveton, Vt., the husband of the dead girl, sobbed bitterly. He accompanied the family in the funeral and stood by in silence when Adams was arrested.

Cummings had been employed in Bethel, a neighboring town, and for several months his wife had not been with him. She had been living at the home of her parents here, but was said to have been preparing to rejoin her husband.

According to the authorities, her marriage a year ago, when she was but 17 years old, was against her step-father's wishes. Last Tuesday she was found dead in the parlor of the Adams home, with a shotgun lying near. Adams and his wife maintained that she had been despondent and had committed suicide.

ROOSEVELT COLLEGE HEAD?

Report That He Will Have an Offer from Washington and Jefferson.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Penn., April 17.—It was reported from Faculty sources today that ex-President Theodore Roosevelt would receive the offer of an election to the Presidency of Washington and Jefferson College on his return to the United States. The college Trustees are silent on the matter and decline to make any sort of statement.

The unexpected resignation this week of Dr. James D. Moffat as head of the college has caused all manner of speculation as to his successor. The name of Congressman Henry W. Temple of the Twenty-fourth Pennsylvania District was at once put forward, but in a telegram the Congressman to-day said that the use of his name was unauthorized and that he was not a candidate for the place.

C. W. FAIRBANKS HURT.

FRANKFORT, IND., April 17.—Charles W. Fairbanks, ex-Vice President, was slightly injured to-day when the speaker's stand on the Court House lawn collapsed during the Arbor Day exercises here.

In company with Mayor Gard and other officials, Mr. Fairbanks was reviewing a parade of school children when the decorated structure suddenly collapsed, throwing the occupants to ground with the wrecked frame work. Mr. Fairbanks's right leg was injured and he was bruised about the body.

GREAT MEADOW CONVICTION.

Hudson Valley Construction Company Found Guilty.

HUDSON FALLS, April 17.—The Hudson Valley Construction Company of Troy, which erected buildings at Great Meadow Prison, was convicted of grand larceny in the second degree by a jury which reported at 3:40 o'clock this morning. Justice Borst will pass sentence on April 27. The maximum penalty is a fine of $5,000.

The jury was out many hours, having retired to consider a verdict early yesterday afternoon.

An exceptionally high standard—so high that higher prices would be justified. But we always give more than money's worth in Young's Hats

JUSTICES APPROVE COURT HOUSE PLANS

FOR THE CIRCULAR DESIGN

Two Estimates Put Cost Under $10,000,000—Site Rectification Next Step to be Taken.

Approval of the preliminary plans by Guy Lowell for the round Court House were received yesterday from nearly all the Supreme Court Justices. A few refused to sign the formal document expressing this approval, but a large majority did so, and it appears certain now that the circular design will be accepted. Consequently, the Court House Board executed yesterday afternoon the formal contract with Mr. Lowell, making him their architect and guaranteeing him 6 per cent. of the cost of the Court House, which is likely to bring him in $600,000 in the gross.

According to the arrangements made by the Court House Board, three sets of plans have to be submitted. The first is the competitive drawing, on which the selection of an architect was made. The second is the preliminary plans, which have to include general specifications and an estimate of the cost of the completed building. The third are the final plans, which have to be worked up from the preliminary drawing, but may be modified from it in many details.

The Supreme Court Justices in the first place refused the approval which they were required to give to the competitive drawing of Mr. Lowell, but three weeks ago, after they had consulted experts on light and ventilation and Mr. Lowell had explained how he proposed to modify his first ideas, they withdrew their objections. They have now assented to the preliminary plans and these are to be sent immediately to the Board of Estimate and to the Art Commission for their approval.

Little doubt is felt that the Art Commission will assent to Mr. Lowell's proposals, as their consideration of them is from the artistic point of view only, and as long as they are satisfied that the proposed building will be a worthy building, according to the architect's standpoint, they will have no excuse for raising objections. The Board of Estimate is likely to be guided largely by the question of expense, and President McAneny has declared that he will not support any plan which will cost the city more than $10,000,000. The Court House Board has received estimates from three firms of builders as to the cost of erecting Mr. Lowell's court house. They were the George A. Fuller Company, the Thompson-Starrett Company, and the J. W. Bishop Company. Two of these said it could be put up for less than $10,000,000, and one thought it would cost somewhat more.

The Court House Board believes this to be a quite satisfactory result. The effect of the modifications introduced by Mr. Lowell in his preliminary plans has been to make them more compact than the competitive design, and it is reckoned that in drawing his final plans he will still further reduce the size and consequently the cost. The building as designed for competitive purposes would have cost between $13,000,000 and $14,000,000 to erect.

From the percentage that Mr. Lowell is to receive upon the cost of the Court House he will have to retain at his own expense such specialists as the Court House Board may consider necessary for the construction of a successful building. Thus he will have to pay experts in foundation work, electric lighting, and so on. It has generally been the custom of the city to pay the architect 5 per cent. of the cost of a building as his fee, and to make him an allowance of 2½ per cent. on the cost of those portions of the work which needed expert supervision to enable him to get what advice he needed.

This plan has generally resulted in payments for architects and experts amounting to about 7 per cent. on the total cost of a building, so that it is reckoned that by paying Mr. Lowell 6 per cent. and making him provide his own experts the city will make a considerable saving. The Board of Estimate appropriated on Jan. 30 last year $600,000 for the purposes of the Court House Board, and the first payment of 1 per cent., or $100,000, will be due Mr. Lowell as soon as the preliminary plans have been accepted by the Board of Estimate. If for any reason the city were now to abandon the Court House plan, Mr. Lowell would receive a sum proportionate to the amount of services he has already rendered.

The next step to be taken in the construction of the new Court House is likely to be the rectification of the site. At present the Court House Board is in possession of six plots of land behind the Municipal Building and the Hall of Records. They are cut up by several streets, and to close the streets, to shift the street car tracks and the sub-surface structures, and, above all, to protect the Loop Subway, would, it is considered by the Court House Board, be very expensive.

So it has been suggested that the site should be shifted to the east of Centre Street, so as to adjoin Mulberry Bend Park, and that the property acquired by the city for the Court House purposes to the west of Centre Street should be sold off. It is also intended to cut a new broad thoroughfare from behind the Municipal Building toward the Manhattan Bridge, which would act as a tangent to the circle, in which the circular Court House is likely to be built.

To do this, it is understood, will need the purchase of about $4,000,000 of land in addition to the $6,374,421, which has been already expended on acquiring a site. Careful calculation, however, has been made of the comparative cost of building on the present site and of taking more land to change the actual position of the new courts. These calculations have shown that when the western part of the present site is sold and the saving on such matters as foundation sinking and the diversion of car lines is reckoned, there will be real economy to the city in departing from its original ideas on the matter.

Capt. Polack's Hundredth Voyage.

Capt. Charles Polack of the North German Lloyd liner Kronprinzessin Cecilie was entertained at dinner at Delmonico's last night by a number of his friends in this city to celebrate his hundredth round voyage as a commander in the company's service. Among those who attended the dinner were Dock Commissioner R. A. C. Smith, Gen. Howard Carroll, Gustave Schwab, George C. Clausen, Daniel E. Seybel, John V. Black, Daniel Schnakenberg, Edward Van Volkenburgh, Aaron Naumberg, Charles Zoller, and William P. Stymus, Jr.
